SATURDAY, NOV., 9, - - 1895.

A thoughtful editor observes that "the ladder of journalism" is a great thing if you can only reach the roof and then kick it down before the sheriff gets there.—Atlanta Constitution.

A young man in the east, says an exchange, hung himself because the people found fault with him. If the practice should become general the shade trees in every town would be hanging full of preachers, school-teachers and editors.

Oakland City (Ind.) Enterprise: The worst enemy that infests the rocky peninsula of time, is the person who appears friendly while in our presence, only to catch a hidden thought or a whispered word, that he may spread it among our openly declared enemies, with intent of drowning the voice of returning peace and mocking the tear-stained entreaties of pardon.

Science in farming is being recognized by farmers who are progressive. The records of the State Agricultural Colleges show that the attendance of students is very large, and thst farmers' sons are taking "courses in agriculture," which include chemistry, the nature of soils and fertilizers, charactistics and diseases of stock, as well as the habits of insects. The result will be better class of farmers in the future and a higher system of cultivation.

About $200,000,000 is the estimate by careful authorities of the world's production of gold during the year 1895. The figure last year was $180,000,000, an increase of $23,000,000 over 1893. In three years the world's stock of gold has been increased by $537,000,000, and the stream of fresh gold from the mines grows larger and larger. It is a highly interesting fact, and its effect npon the financial system will be watched with the keenest attention.

Binger Herman continues to keep the political flies brushed off him. The Statesman says: Congressman and Mrs. Binger Hermann arrived at Jefferson yesterday and are guests with the members of the Looney family in that neighborhood. Mr. Hermann, aside from the social features of the visit, is in that vicinity for the purpose of making an examination of the Santiam river with the view to having the government improve the stream so as to make it navigable from its mouth to Jefferson or rather up.

East Oregonian: The crazy people of London who are investing in South African mining shares are simply fools filling the pockets of knaves with wealth. When it dawns on their minds that they have been swindled they will be quick to blame and condemn every body else but themselves. They will probably go so far as to demand a law for the punishment of designing men who originated mining bubbles. In short, in all transactions of this kind, the fool is just as guilty as the knave and should be punished accordingly. If it were not for the fools there would be no knaves and it is foolish for the state to attempt to rid society of the latter while allowing the greatest liberty to the former. The fly is no better than the spider and not half so ingenious. In truth, if the fly could he would be the worst kind of a spider and consumer of flies.

Salem Statesman: There is a delecate condition of affairs staring the state land authorities in the face just at present. A number of some of the best, oldest and most respected citizens of the state have been pinched by the fiancial stringences of the past few years so that they have been unable to pay the interest on loans which they had secured upon their property from the state, which has kept accumulating until there seems no way of getting rid of it except by foreclosure and sale or by deed of the property without the costs of foreclosure. The state authorities dislike to have the cold arm of the law reached out, for two reasons: A foreclosure now will mean in some cases the stripping of families of every foot of property they have and forcing them to begin life anew, at an age, too, when such a beginning is very discouraging; then it is not desirable for the state to be forced to bid in a lot of farming property in different portions of the state and have it on hands to look after. On the other hand, the cry of a decreasing school fund apportionment is heard, there being delinquent interest out to the amount of over $100,000, and so, as stated in the beginning the situation of affairs is delicate and disagreeable.

PULL TOGETHER AND LOVE ONE ANOTHER.

Pendleton is going to have a wollen mill and a cold storage plant to cost $3000. Hurrrh for Pendleton. Hurrah for the enterprising people. The East Oregonian gives the following encouraging talk:

"Let's keep busy; not busy fighting and squabbling, but busy pulling together for mutual profit. Let's love our neighbors, let's take the advice of Plutarch. "A man should not allow himself to hate even his enemies, because if you indulge this passion on some occasions, it will rise of itself in others; if you hate your enemies, you will contract such a vicious habit of mind as by degrees you will break out upon those who are your friends or those who are indifferent to you." This was the wisdom of Plutarch. He was a great fellow and accomplished a great deal.

"Suppose every man in Pendleton possessed the spirit of Plutarch! Why we would have a mighty inland city here; a city of happy homes and busy workshops. We can have it. All we have got to do is to make a strong pull, a long pull, a pull together, and 'keep everlastingly at it.' Now fellow citizens, begin this good work by loving your enemies, by forgetting and forgiving the petty differences of the past; subdue predjudices by association. The profit derived from doing these things will surprise you. The wealth of Golcoda is not equal to it. Men who can do such things are big-hearted, big-minded and always very happy.

"A man who loves himself very much, who is stuck on himself, is very apt to hate his fellowmen and learn to believe that they are in his way of occomplishing something, and such impressions are of the greatest barrier in the path of general prosperity. We should have no such in Pendleton. Even if Pendleton is a small town, with small buildings and small businesses, it can have big ideas and it is big ideas that accomplish big things and make men enjoy life. The smallest minded thing always has the worst time. Let's make Pendleton big minded!"

J. R. Sage, of Des Moines, Iowa, recently delivered an address touching upon the hog and his history, before the Iowa Swine Breeders' Association, in which, among many other apposite things, he remarked:

"The American hog affords a striking proof and illustration of the law of evolution and heredity. From the position of the most despised and reviled of all four-footed beasts he has slowly risen, by the force of his inherent excellence, until today he occupies a high place in public favor. Associations are formed to devise methods and discuss measures for his improvement, expert judges of distinguished ability meet to score his high points of merit, the most eminent males of his class are dubbed dukes and the females duchesses, and their names are inscribed in the herd books of royalty. This certainly is a lofty pinnacle of fame to be reached in so short a time by the humblest and most derided of all creatures, affording, as we sometimes say in our biographies, 'new illustrations of the possibilities of citizenship in this great country.' These modern dukes and duchesses, or the bloated aristocracy of swinedom, like some of their prototypes of biped royality, are the lineal discendants of predatory and savage hordes of the forests and jungles of the Old World. There is about the same measure of difference between the modern, domestic, high-grade hog of Iowa and the wild boars of Europe, Asia, and Africa as there is between the civilized man of today and the savage tribes of barbaric ages.

"So I think we may say there is a close relationship between swine and civilization. In all ages and countries the herds of swine may be taken as a measure or gauge of the civilization attained by the inhabitants. Like hog, like people. Show me the swine of a country and I will tell you off hand what sort of human beings dwell therein. Where there is wildness, savagery, disorder among the people, the very hogs will partake of that type of character. Where the people are domestic and peaceful, their swine will display the best domestic qualities. In the progress from barbarism toward civilization the swine has kept even pace with the races of mankind."

Mr. Sage proceeded at length to say: "You cannot raise the best breeds of domestic animals unless you raise the best class of citizens to associate with them," and he cited the rail-splitters of the South and the lank swine of Arkansas raised among a shiftless, lazy people.

Mr. Sage related the fact that in Iowa the hog has done more than the one of the Irishman in his front parlor—he has more than "paid the rint." He has paid for thousands and thousands of farms; built fine homes all over the prairies; sent the sons and daughters of farmers to school, thus giving the polish as the basis of civilization."

Mr. Sage, in paying his respects to Iowa's best friend, the hog, pointed a moral for Oregon farmers. The hog will raise every farm mortgage in the Webfoot land, if the mortgages will only give him a fair show. He is free from disease here, and industry will produce in abundance everything necessary for his growth and full development.

Do You Want an Orchard?

If you do you cannot afford to cultivate a failure. With years of personal and practical experience in raising fruit for profit—with long experience in picking, packing and shipping fruit to the better markets I am able to serve well all who wish to purchase fruit trees, plants, vines, shrubbery or roses. The large amount of nursery stock which I entend planting on Rose Hill Villa, a few minutes walk from the S. P. Railroad depot, enables me to select and sell the very and vigorous growers. In establishing the

Absolutely First Class

Fruit Tree Furnishing Business

with headquarters at the ECHO-LEADER office, I propose perfect satisfaction to persons wanting a half dozen or 10,000 fruit trees, at reasonable prices, with instructions that will assure perfect success. Publishing one of the leading and most progressive journals in Oregon—with a large and valuable exchange list of first class papers on the Pacific Coast and in many of the Eastern states—with a personal acquaintance with numerous prominent and successful fruit growers and large fruit stock raisers, I enjoy peculiar and valuable information worth hundreds of dollars to those planting orchards for profit.

I am inseparably identified with this section of Oregon, with its magnificent aggregation of colossal natural resources for development—with its golden opportunities for all who possess energy, nerve and pluck to forge ahead in the great race for success. The growing of fruit for commercial purposes must in the near future bring thousands of honest and progressive workers to help develop the industrial fruit interests which will bring to our glorious state millions of dollars. Desiring to help everybody in forwarding their financial success in growing first class fruit for the market of the world, I kindly ask a liberal share of the fruit tree business. Respectfully

THE NEW FARM.

Oregon Statesman: The American farm of the future will be the small farm. Large farms will no longer pay. Change is written on every rural industry; change of methods, of implements, of modes of packing and distribution. The farmer of thirty years ago is becoming a back number. It is a change from primitive culture in the direction of scientific farming, from surface scratching to thorough cultivation, from very low to high yields, from waste to economy and clean culture. It has been a slow movement, and is only yet a beginning, but its indications are numerous and somewhat marked. The revolution of mechanism in agriculture has been as constant and active as in locomotion or bicycling. The implements and machines of today are superceded by different and improved forms almost before they have time to rust.

It's just as easy to try One Minute Cough Cure as any thing else. It's easier to cure a severe cough or cold with it. Let your next purchase for a cough be One Minute Cough Cure. Better medicine; better results; better try it. J. P. Currin.

GREAT NEED OF RAIN.

Oregon Statesman: There has been no rain for weeks in a part of Indiana and Ohio, Kentucky and West Verginia. Water is almost an unknown thing in all these parts except in a few holes in the Scioto and Miami, and the Ohio is only two feet six inches in the channel. In the southern part of Ohio, along the line of the Cincinnati, Portsmouth and Virginia railroad, the water famine is so great that that road has generously donated two tank trains to haul water to the people. A score of small towns are without a drop. The reports from Kentucky describe much suffering for lack of water, which has in some cases to be hauled twenty miles. The Ohio river cannot float a single boat.

This is the day of anti-this, and anti-that, but what people need most nowadays is, the anti-bilious medicine Simmons Liver Regulator, the King of Liver Medicines, and Better than Pills. "I have used no other anti-bilious remedy for six years, and know from experience that for ladies of a constipated habit nothing equals it."—Laura V Craig, Ellenbury, Fla.

The Yellowstone National Park is one of the greatest of natural wonders, and much has been done to make the trip through it comfortable and enjoyable. But, according to the report of the Superintendent, the number of visitors is decreasing instead of increasing. In 1890, it was nearly 4000; in 1893, it was 3076; last year, it was 1635; and this year up to July 25, it was only 425. And yet the travel to Europe grows larger every year, while this and other interesting regions of our own country are neglected.

ALAS, POOR HORSE!

Fossil Journal: The horse is gradually sinking lower and lower in the social scale. Recently reduced to feed for men, he is not permitted to stop there in degradation; now he is being killed to make food for coyotes, a species of varmint that he was raised to look down upon. Well, well, every dog has his day, and we suppose it is all right that the coyote is now having his. But the reader must not for a moment think that the Gilliam county coyote is being fattened on juicy horse steaks for the love of him, or with a view to perpetuating the breed. Far from it. Whenever a coyote stoops to horse beef he is a goner, as every steak, roast or boil set out for him is placed by the side of a buried steel trap, in which the critter generally finds one of his legs before he has completed his breakfast.

This homily was suggested by Bill Shepherd, who came to town one day this week to inform us that he has a number of horses to sell for coyote bait A couple of West Fork trappers bought two of Bill's horses at $5 each, and with one of them for bait trapped 11 coyotes, whose scalps are worth $22. One of bill's neighbors killed a sucking colt for bait and got four scalps from it. This industry bids fair to grow to large proportions, and the sheep men are laughing in their sleeves, for they see that with the extention of this scheme the horse will disrppear with the coyote from the range.

TO BE A GREAT CITY.—Upon being interviewed in San Francisco, Mr. A. B. Hammond said: "Just imagine, ships have now to go to Tacoma to load Columbia river grain, lumber and salmon, etc., making a detour of fully six hundred miles, but when our road is built they will lie in the harbor of Astoria instead and do the loading there. We will have side tracks running from all the canneries and lumber camps direct to our main line, and the salmon canner will have through car service so as to avoid breaking bulk as he has to do now His goods will reach, therefore, the markets in better shape and reflect more credit on his establishment, besides the saving of money and time he will enjoy, Henry Villard in his wisdom pointed out to me more than ten years ago that Astoria, the oldest town in the northwest, will also be the greatest city of that region in the future, and his prophecy is now about to come true!"

The healing properties of DeWitts Witch Hazel Salve are well known. It cures eczema, skin affections and is simply a perfect remedy for piles. J. P. Currin.

The Salem Journal tells the following: A Salem girl is not only an equestrienne but a good shot with a rifle or shotgun. The other day she discovered a polcat making a raid on the poultry. She mounted a horse, rode to a neighbor's to borrow a shotgun, returned and blew the animal's head off at the first shot.

STATE BOARD OF HORTICULTURE.

Rules For Inspecting Nurseries, Nursery Stock, Fruits, etc.

Rule 14. This rule is hereby changed and made to read as follows.

The fee for the inspection of apple, pear, peach, nectarine, prune, cherry, apricot, nut-bearing trees, shrubs and plants, shall be as follows:

Thirty cents per hour, including the time from leaving home, inspection, and return home of the inspector, and actual traveling and other expenses.

When nursery stock, trees or plants are found to be infested with insect pests or diseases, a charge of 50 per cent, will be added to the foregoing rates to pay expenses of the quarantine officer for supervising disinfection and subsequent inspection.

On all fruits, the fee for inspection shall be One Dollar on any sum up to 35 Dollars, and Two Dollars on any sum over that amount, and Five Dollars for car-load lots.

Inspection fee must be paid in all cases before Certificates is granted.

Rule 15. All persons growing Nursery stock, trees and plants for sale or to be offered for sale, are hereby required to report to the Commissioner of the District in which said Nursery stock, trees or plants are grown, for inspection, during the months of September, October or November of each and every year, and the Commissioner of such District, or his duly appointed Deputy, shall inspect such Nursery stock trees or plants, prior to shipment and delivery.

When said Nursery stock, trees or plants are found by said inspecting officer to be worthy of a Certificate setting forth the freedom of such Nursery stock, tree or plants from live injurious insect pests, their eggs, larvae, pupae or fungus diseases, the said Inspection officer shall then issue to the owner or owners of said Nursery stock, trees or plants, a Certificate of Inspection.

The condition under which this Certificate is granted is, that the party or parties receiving such certificates shall be compelled to disinfect by fumigation hydrocyanic acid gas, as described in Rule 8, all apple trees or other stock grown on apple roots, after lifting the same and before delivery in purchased or carriers; and in case said fumigation is neglected, said Certificate of Inspection shall be void and of no effect.

The fees for inspection of Nursery stock, trees or plants, and issuing a Certificate therefore, shall be Three Dollars and actual expenses per day, and must be paid by the party or parties before said Certificate is granted.

All fees so collected shall be reported at the regular meeting of this Board, and no member of the Board, while engaged in inspection for which fees may be collected, shall charge the per diem allowed by law.

Passed at the meeting of the state Board of Horticulture, at Salem, October 15th, A. D., 1895.

Have You It?

It takes two car loads of paper every year, made in the East and shipped across the Continent, to print the Illustrated Catalogue of WEINSTOCK, LUBIN & Co., Retailers, Sacramento. Several fast steam presses are used in printing; and thousands of dollars are expended for engravings, editing, printing, mailing, etc.

And what does it all mean! Back of it all there is a great truth. It pays to send to them for whatever you need to wear.

This Catalogue (free to any address) places their great stock at your very doors. It lets you select at leisure, and select what you wish. It does not over-persuade you to buy what your judgement the next day will tell you is an unwise purchase. You can make out your order, lay it aside for a day or two, then review it and see if it still seems a wise one. Do salesmen give you this privilege?

If goods are not as ordered, you are at liberty to return them at their expense and get your money back.

A garden can not be had without extra effort. Cover it well with manure this fall and work the manure into the soil. No value can be placed on a garden because it provides something which money can not always secure—fresh fruits and vegetables for the family. No doubt, one can buy all the small fruits and vegetables required, but they can not be had in that fresh condition as when they are transferred from the garden to the table in a few minutes. Prepare for the garden by the use of plenty of manure now so as to have it thoroughly decomposed by spring.

The school statistics of this country are decidedly imposing. According to the report of the United States School Commissioner for 1882-3 the number of school houses was 236,426, valued at $398,435,039, and conducted at an annual cost of $165,000,000. The male teachers numbered 122,056 and the female teachers 260,954. The public schools alone were attended by 13,510,718 pupils. The whole number of pupils enrolled in schools and colleges was 15,083,630, or 22.5 per cent of the total population. According to this percentage the population of St. Louis is over 700,000.
