American Bar Association Fears the Day Is Coming When the Workman Can Find but One Possible Employer,

REMEDIES PROPOSED.

Tax them to death, or if that is too radical, make the franchise tax graduatton upward instead of downward. Compel cheaper and better service by railroads, for example, wherever, by any combination, competition is pre-the industrial field as a competitor.

HOT SPRINGS, Va., Aug. E.-At the morning session of the American Bar Association the annual address was delivered by Hon. Baron D. Colt, of Rhode Island, United States Judge of the first circuit. Judge Colt's subject was "The Reasonableness of the Law."

Walter S. Logan, of New York, made a verbal report from the committee on commercial law. He commended the National bankrupt law and then discussed the trust question. He said it would have to be set tled by lawyers; if they did not do it, the demagogues would. If combinations con-tinued competition would cease and commercial jurisprudence eventually be en tirely changed. The committee, he said, had reached the unanimous opinion that modern industrial combinations should be

Hon. Charles F. Manderson, of Nebras ks, said the report was circulated to rend the association assunder. He asked that the report be read. There was opposition to the motion, and considerable confusion ensued. The convention, however, agreed to bear the report at once.

The report says the question is the important one now before the American bar. It says combinations are rapidly driving out of business the small dealers and the small producers. These two classes heretofore have furnished the largest number of petitioners in bank-ruptcy courts. But now, industrial combinations of gigantic magnitude, too large for a bankruptcy court to manage, and to rich to need ever be called before it, have been substituted. The report adds:

Commercial Relations Changed.

"The modern combination's primary obtect is to control trade and commerce in piain articles of production, and substi-tute a more or less perfect monopoly in place of a more or less free competition. It changes entirely the basic principle of changes in the principles of our commer-

"Combination as an economic force is fast coming to take the place of competition. The producers are combining; transportation companies are combining; transportation companies are combining; tradesmen are combining; workmen as well as employes are combining; everything seems to be coming into some form of combination, and everybody seems to of combination, and everyoody seems to be a combiner. The competition that still remains is fast disappearing. Workmen are refusing to compete for jobs. Labor unions are enlarging the spheres of their prominent in Jay Gould's Marriage, activity and extending their operations e union of the employers is still onger and more far-reaching than the ion of the workmen. We are now having combinations of combinations.

The Steel Trust.

"The United States Steel Corporation is a combination of a dozen heretofore speting producers who themselves were combinations of still other producers, and these in turn often combinations of still others. To trace them back to their beginning is like discovering all the multitude of sources that go to make up the volume of the swollen Mississippi. The property which the Amaigamated Copper upany now controls was once perhaps 1986 mining claims, each one very likely owned in common by a half-dozen miner The department store trust has combined the business of hundreds of merchants, some portions of which they acquired by urchase and others in some other way.

It is estimated that the Standard Oil company has taken, by contract or by core, the business of 18,690 corporations business of 10,600 corporations hants in all parts of the Union. The few present great railroad lines of the country have been made up by the combination of hundreds of smaller lines.

The Shipping Combine

"The ambition or the shipping trust, perhaps the pet project of the great American combines, has been to control all the ships that sail the ocean. A hundred years ago there were hardly two ships owned by the same individual or corporation, and even 50 years ago there was scarcely a shipowaer, individual or corporation that owned a half-dozen ships. No one knows but that within the ext ten years a greater financier than J. P. Morgan will arise who will combine into one organization all the industries of the land so that the workman who works for wages can find but one possi-ble employer, and purchaser of wares can find but one possible seller. The steps toward the formation of one universal industrial corporation which shall crowd out all other corporations and as-sume to itself all the industries of the land have already been more than half taken. It is not so far to go from now to that end as we had reach the present industrial that is for the monopolist. The United States Steel Corporation can produce, no matter what it sells them for, its goods cheaper than the elements out of which mination is compased ever pro ures, they are exceptions to the rule. We cannot, therefore, rely on natural forces, on the laws of supply and demand or on economic considerations to limit the growth of modern combinations. If they are undesirable, if the people of the American Nation would be better off without them, or with limitations put on them, they must put these limitations on by the action of their legislatures, their Congress and their courts.

The American bar must act, and the American Bar Association must take the lead. If the Northern Securities Corporation had been allowed to go on, the next thing to follow it would naturally have been a United States Securities Company, which would hold the majority of the stock of every railroad where the American flag files."

The report proposed the following rem-Pirst-We can tax them to death; or, if that is too radical, we can tax them until their growth and enlargement is impeded. There are Constitutional provisions re-quiring direct taxations to be uniform, and dring direct axations to be uniform, and view of these provisions it is probably spossible to discriminate in the matter impossible to discriminate in the matter of direct taxation against corporations holding large amounts of taxable property. There is, however, a franchise tax imposed by most of the states upon corporations at the time of their incorporation, and annually thereafter. This franchise tax is, in almost all states, in some way graded so as to tax the small corporation at a higher rate than the larger one. The first million dollars nave as

e. The first million dollars pays a higher rate than subsequent millions. our judgment, the graduation should be continued, but it should be a grading up instead of down. We would leave, per-haps, the first hundred thousand free, and the first million cheap, and raise the rate with each succeeding million.

The United States Steel Corporation has a capitalization of over $1,000,000,000. The graduation stages might be slow and easy lough to please the most conservative and yet result in a taxation of 10 per cent upon the last $190,000,000. How long would the United States Steel Corporation con-tinue under that system of taxation?

Require Cutting of Rates,

Second—We can compel them to render etter and cheaper service. If the com-ination of the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern Railways is a great enough public disaster to have the attention which it has attracted, it could be prevented much easier than by a hundred Sherman anti-trust laws, by a single inited States statute that required any corporation engaged in interstate com-merce to reduce its rates 50 per cent to and from every point where competition has been prevented by combination, merg-er, common control or agreement. Congress can enact that any corporation or individual who engages in interstate com-merce must furnish its services or supply its goods at lower rates wherever by any embination competition is prevented than where competition is left free,

Third—If necessary, the state itself can enter the industrial field as a producer and restore the force of competition to its former supremacy by becoming itself a competitor of the great trusts.

Great applianse followed the reading of the report. The report is signed by all the members of the committee, consisting of Walter S. Logan, Henry Budd, Gardiner Lathron, George Whitlock and John Mortathron, George Whitlock and John Mortathron, George Whitlock and John Mortathron, George Whitlock and John Mortathron.
