THE FIRST AND THE LAST.

The last governor-elect of Oregon stood at the tomb of the first governor of Oregon near this city yesterday, and witnessed the closing scene—the consignment of the body of John Whiteaker to its last resting place.

It was a forcible reminder of the flight of time. When that first governor was inaugurated in 1859 the ox or horse team was the only means of conveyance across the great plains; Oregon was a state with less than seventy thousand inhabitants; no railroad or telegraph line had even yet reached the great Mississippi in their westward march. When Lincoln was assassinated even six years later it took from the 13th of April till the 30th for pony express from the Missouri river to San Francisco, and steamer thence to Portland to carry the news to the Oregon metropolis.

The first governor of Oregon was thirty-seven years of age when inaugurated. The governor-elect will be forty-nine when he takes his seat in the executive office. It is not often such an occurrence happens. The span of nearly half a century between inaugurations is usually too great, fraught with too many of the vicissitudes of life, to permit a meeting even at the grave.

FRIDAY FOR FISH.

The Boston Transcrip has this good story about bland John Chinaman: "A hungry tramp called one Monday afternoon at the kitchen door, and was promptly challenged by John. To John the tramp told his tale of woe, ending with a humble petition for something to eat. "Likee fish?" asked John, in insinuating tones. "Yes, I like fish," the tramp answered. "Call Fliday," said John, as he shut the door, with a smile imperturbable.

Jacksonville Times: Our farmers should pay more attention to raising horses. It is presumed they have noticed the frequency of the visits of horse-buyers in their midst; also the fact that the demand for horses is far in excess of the supply. The fear which prevailed a few years ago that the introduction of electricity, the cheapening of bicycles, and the invention of automobiles would eliminate horses from general use has proven groundless. They are bringing good prices everywhere. The breeding of horses was practically suspended in this county for several years, and their scarcity has been felt. The profits from the sale of one or two good animals each year would appreciably increase the farmer's net income.

Delta, a little town in the Coeur d'Alenes, Idaho, is in hard luck—has no town site. It is built on the bank of a creek, the site being owned by a company that is dredging all the gravel deposits. The owners have been given notice to remove their improvements and are in a quandary where to go as all the narrow bottom lands in the vicinity are being worked as placer mines, while the hills have been located for quartz.

The manager of the Oregon Hop-growers Association says the world's hop crop is short and that late holders stand good chances for 30 or 40 cent prices. He claims that present sales about or a little above the twenty-cent mark have been made under contract or forced through the circumstances of growers.

Germany had her first ice yesterday, with snow in the hills. An early commencement.

"Here," said Mr Snaggs, as he laid a volume on the table, "here is a book that I am very desirous Lucy shall read." "Very well," replied Mrs Snaggs. "I'll forbid her to touch it."—Pittsburg Telegram.

ANOTHER TEST CASE.

Bright's Disease and Diabetes Are Positively Curable.

While the Fulton Compounds were under examination, one of the investigators went to one of the best known physicians in San Francisco and asked him to name a certain case of Bright's disease for a test. He named C. H. Allen of El Paso, a former conductor of the S. P. Co., as beyond human aid. Eight physicians had declared the case chronic Bright's disease. It was typical—albumen, casts, dropsy, sleeplessness, night sweats and usual weakness, pains and distresses. Patient went on the Compound June 8, 1901. We now copy from the written reports.

June 15.—Improvement. Skin clearer. Color better. Albumen decreasing. Patient much encouraged.

June 25.—Continued improvement. More ambitious. Albumen diminishing. Night sweats beginning to yield.

July 13.—Not so favorable. Went to the country and began to bloat. Returned and feeling better, though not probably quite so well as last report. A favorable indication is the disappearance of the night sweats.

July 15.—Dropsy again disappearing. Albumen getting less and less.

Aug. 1.—Improvement continues.

Aug. 13.—Patient claims he is nearly well. Continued improvement, and patient recommended for light employment. Double analyses by railroad surgeons in El Paso show as follows:

Spec. Grav.	1028
Reaction	Acid
Sugar	None
Albumen	Trace
Exam. for Casts	None

At this writing, January 10, 1902, patient is not yet entirely recovered, but is still on the treatment and getting better continually.

Medical works agree that Bright's Disease and Diabetes are incurable, but 87 per cent. are positively recovering under the Fulton Compounds. Common forms of kidney complaint and rheumatism offer but short resistance. Price, $1 for the Bright's Disease and $1.50 for the Diabetic Compound. John J.
