RANKIN ASSAULTED BY RIVAL

N. A. Fisher Takes This Means to Settle Difficulties

The Trouble Between Two Piano Houses Brought to Climax Last Evening Fisher Arrested

Something has been feared for the last week as the result of the wordy war carried on by the F. A. Rankin and H. E. Morris music houses two rival concerns which seem to be a note when it comes to dealing with the public over pianos and organs, and last night the trouble came to a climax when Mr. Rankin was set upon by N. A. Fisher, the traveling salesman for the Morris house, and beat in a frightful manner. The deplorable affair occurred about 10:30 o'clock, on East Seventh street, along side of Otto's confectionery, and owing to the lateness of the hour not many townspeople witnessed the assault.

Mr. Rankin, according to his story, was waylaid by Fisher upon his return from a visit paid J. C. Gallagher at 32 East Seventh street. Fisher kept in the shadow of the tree near the alley and when Rankin passed he was confronted with the question: "Are you Mr Rankin?" to which a response in the affirmative was rendered. "Well, I'm Fisher," said the assailant, and with a few more words Fisher jumped nearer Rankin, wielded a club and a resounding whack on Rankin's head was the result. A running fight then followed, in which Fisher dealt blows freely on his victim's body and head, knocking him down twice. Near the corner of Willamette street the club broke and then Rankin grappled with his assailant, throwing him to the walk. All this time a crowd was collecting around the combatants, but it was a few minutes before the two were separated. After Rankin had thrown Fisher a good imitation of a cat fight followed in which Fisher had the best of it, due to his victim's helplessness, the fourth blow on the side of Rankin's head having made him groggy. Blood flowed freely from the first blow, and at the place of the scuffle a large pool was formed.

Patrolman Croner, upon arriving at the scene of action, took Fisher into custody, while Rankin made his way to Dr. Selover's office, where his wounds were dressed. The first blow over the left eye necessitated the doctor taking seven stitches in the scalp.

Fisher was arraigned before Justice Wintermeier this morning on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. His bonds were placed at $100, which were furnished by H. E. Morris and W. O. Zeigler, and the preliminary trial was set for two o'clock this afternoon.

Deputy District Attorney J. M. Williams represented the state and Lark Bilyeu the defense.

FISHER BOUND OVER.

To show how much attention has been paid by the public at large to the trouble between the two music houses it is worthy of note that at the time of the examination this afternoon the county court room was crowded to the doors, and a few women were present.

After a review of both sides Judge Wintermeier bound Fisher over in the sum of $200 to await the action of the circuit court. The required amount was furnished by his bondsmen.
