Let the Street Cars Come

The franchise ordinance before the city council seems a very fair one. The company asking for it gives assurance that a street car system will be built through the streets and to Springfield within a year. It is also agreed not to use Willamette and Eleventh streets during the day time for freight business. When the city reaches a size where a street car system might naturally be supposed to pay dividends, 15,000 population being named, the company is to pay a tax into the city upon its gross income. These provisions tend to safeguard the interests of the municipality and the proposition seems to us a very fair one.

It is said there is opposition in the council because freight cars are to be run over the tracks at all. Such prohibition would merely make it impossible for an electric company to ever build the road, since it is unreasonable to suppose that there will be a paying passenger business here for years to come. In fact, it is to build up trade and increase the volume of business centering here that is the chief object for desiring an electric road at all, and the more freight trains that are run over the road the greater will be the benefits derived from its construction.

Taking everything into consideration we fail to see why any capitalists who are willing to invest in just the enterprise we need to develop the country and build up the city should be discouraged—in fact prohibited, from acquiring the necessary rights. Other towns much larger than Eugene are offering all kinds of inducements to secure what we are refusing to accept almost on our own terms. Walla Walla, Wash., a city of over 15,000 people, with paved streets and fine public improvements, is unable to secure a street railway—and many other similar instances might be cited. It should be considered that if the present opportunity is not improved we may wait many years before as favorable a proposition is submitted again from any source.

We are all united, or should be, for the building up of a city—a greater and a more beautiful Eugene. Let the street cars come as the first big step in that direction.

Hear Governor Tonight

Governor Chamberlain will address the people of Eugene tonight on the issues of the present political campaign. He deserves a good audience, not alone because he is the chief executive of the state and a pleasing speaker, but more to pay deserved respect to a faithful public servant. In the arguments printed and spoken against the re-election of the governor there is not one criticism of administration that assails his honesty or impugns the integrity of the motives that have prompted his official acts during the past four years. Admittedly Oregon has enjoyed four years of clean government, marked by signal executive [illegible] adherence to public interests, but Governor Chamberlain, a Democrat, should not [illegible] a Republican state, say his political opponents.

Such a man and such a record deserve a hearing at [illegible] of all parties, and [illegible] may present for seeking re-election should be heard and carefully weighed before the ballots are [illegible] Monday. Governor Chamberlain will render to his constituents of Lane county the account of his stewardship and submit his case to them for decision as to his fitness and his qualifications for the high and honorable position which he fills and to which he seeks re-election.

The principal reasons the people of Oregon have for believing Jonathan Bourne, Jr., a political fakir and a moral degenerate are the reports that have been printed in the Oregonian covering a period of some ten years past. That paper has no right, therefore, to call men liars for repeating the stories that appeared in its own columns, but that is just what it is now doing and most vociferously, too.

Memorial Day tomorrow, and Eugene will pay the usual fitting tribute to the old boys who wore the blue and carried knapsack and musket behind the old flag over forty years ago. Not to the dead alone whose resting places are strewn with flowers is honor due, but to those as well who yet survive the assaults of time.

An open road to the Blue River mines—that's the slogan for Eugene.
