FIRST WORK DONE TOWARD OPENING RIVER

According to the Guard's special correspondence from Junction City government engineers are now at that place, engaged in making a survey for the purpose of mapping the upper Willamette river from Salem to Eugene. This is the first step in the campaign for an open river to this city, and we believe that it will show the Washington authorities that the plan of running boats all the year around is perfectly feasible, providing a reasonable appropriation is made for the removal of obstructions.

Senator Fulton has declared that he will do all in his power to secure an appropriation from congress for opening the river to navigation, and he can, beyond a doubt, count on the co-operation of Senator Bourne and Congressman Hawley. It would not be surprising, therefore, if this matter is taken up and put through at the coming session; the prospects are certainly bright if the commercial bodies of Eugene will put their shoulders to the wheel and do some hard pushing.

An open Willamette river to this city would be another long step toward the realization of our hopes for a greater Eugene, and it would emancipate the business men as, agriculturists of Lane county from transportation monopoly for all time to come.

MRS. EDDY COMPLETELY VINDICATED BY ACTION

The dismissal of the suit against Mrs. Eddy, the Christian Science leader, was certainly a splendid victory for that venerable woman. Notwithstanding her great age, the legal examination of Mrs. Eddy showed her to be in the full possession of her mental faculties and perfectly capable of taking care of her own affairs, and convinced even the attorneys for the plaintiffs that they had undertaken a hopeless case. There was no alternative but to dismiss the action and admit defeat, which was done as gracefully as possible in the circumstances. These facts lead to the following pertinent observations by an exchange:

"It is not clear why Mrs. Eddy should have been made the victim of a journalistic attack and court prosecution. She is very old; there is nothing in her writings that has smarted a blow; she has not assailed any one; the disagreement that one might have had with her doctrine was a matter of calm discussion; it did not call for writs and summonses and court appearances. If those opposed to the beliefs of the 87-year-old woman thought they were injuring her or her cause, it is likely that they have discovered their error. Out of the persecution of the last nine months the Christian Science church has reaped a harvest of converts."

OFFICIAL AUTHORITY ON COST OF LIVING

Secretary Strauss, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, has stamped with the seal of his official approval the fact that the cost of living has materially increased. He selected twenty-five articles which form one-half of the total import trade of this country, and compared the value of each during the ten months ending with April, 1907. He found that the average advance of these twenty-five commodities has been 55.21 per cent. Of the twenty-five articles some showed a large increase and some showed a decrease. The increase was largely in manufactured articles, and in manufactured materials. Foodstuffs showed either a decline or a slight increase. Coffee showed a decline of more than 29 per cent. Sugar shows neither an advance nor a decline.

In the same way twenty-five articles of export were chosen, and these showed an average increase in price of 38.06 per cent. This advance, while not averaging so large as in the case of imports, was more uniform, and it affects the American resident right in the pocketbook in a most material manner. For instance, apples have gone up 91 per cent. Meat, butter and other dairy products, which are now necessities with all classes of Americans, have gone up 38 per cent. Wheat and corn, two grains upon which American families place great reliance, cost 28 per cent and 27 per cent, respectively, more than they did ten years ago. Boots and shoes cost 31 per cent more.

We are pretty well aware of these facts, but it is interesting to have official confirmation of our common knowledge.

According to American businessmen who have been through the mill, the motto of the president of Nicaragua and Honduras is "If you want to do business pay me." Even at that, his policy is more liberal than that of our trusts, which will not let you do business in their line at all, at a profit.

Don't make the mistake of going away from home to invest in real estate. Eugene and Lane county realty is at bottom rock prices now, and the tendency will be steadily upward for many years to come. Five years from now present prices for Eugene property will in the retrospect look ridiculously low.

Joe Cannon is posting up on the island question by a visit to the Thousand Islands. He must also be in need of information on other subjects, as he told a reporter the other day that he didn't know who would be the speaker of the next house.

The slickest nature fakers would find it hard, if not impossible, to beat the men who composed the convention of horse "swappers" lately pulled off near Delaware, Ohio, when it comes to spinning wonderful yarns.

With all the trustworthy distributors of business news declaring the trade and industries of the country to be at high tide, Wall street's panics naturally receive little serious attention. Everybody is too busy.

Wilhelm, crown prince of Sweden, started the regular American royal dyspepsia course in Norfolk, and before he reaches the wind-up he will be will be hankering for just a little plain "Bill" grub.

Yellow Jack's visit to Cuba has caused Uncle Sam to resume control of the sanitation of the island, which probably means a further postponement of the restoration of the Cuban republic.

Governor Hoke Smith also has strong views on the railroad question, which he has emphasized by suspending a state railroad commissioner whose official acts did not square with them.

"There's no easy money in the financial world today," says a financial article. What's the matter with that raked in by fake investment promoters?

The children will all want to go to the circus tomorrow. If you haven't any of your own you might borrow a kid or two, just to explain why you had to attend.

J. Pierpont Morgan, who is back from Europe, doubtless sympathized with the trusts—he has money in most of them—but is too foxy to do any talking for publication just now.

The be-whiskered adage about a rolling stone gathering no moss has not deterred traveling statesmen from having a try at the presidency.

BALL-TOSSER MURPHY HAD NOSE BITTEN

O. L. Murphy, who did the twirling for the Cottage Grove baseball team in this city last Sunday, is in Roseburg to lay before the district attorney a charge of mayhem against an Italian section foreman, with whom he had an altercation at Drain last Monday. If appearances count for anything, Murphy certainly has a good case. His face is lacerated with scratches, the end of his nose is discolored from the effects of a bite and the marks of the Italian's teeth encircle an ugly looking spot on his breast. After the fight, each man paid a fine of $7.50 in the justice court at Drain. Assistant Attorney E. B. Hermann has the case under advisement.—Roseburg Review.

OBITUARY

John A. Isham was born in Illinois, May 15, 1845; died in Eugene August 28, 1907, at 7:30 a. m., aged 62 years, 3 months and 13 days.

Mr. Isham crossed the plains to Oregon in 1852, driving an ox-team most of the way, although only a lad of seven years. He resided in Marion county until he was 23 years old, when he was married to Cynthia J. York, who died in this city six years ago. After his marriage Mr. Isham lived in Lane county up to 1888, when he moved to Crook county.

Mr. and Mrs. Isham had eleven children born to them, nine of whom are living, two having died in infancy. Those who are living are: Mary C. Thomson, of Vida; Viola M. Gray, of Madras, Crook county; Ira C. Isham, of McKenzie Bridge; Rena S. Cyrus, of Clive Falls, Crook county; Stella M. Wilson, Laura J. Waymire, Jessie Isham, all of Madras, Crook county; Dosie Claypool, of Prineville, and Archie J. Isham, of Madras, Crook county. The funeral was held from W. T. Gordon's undertaking parlors on Thursday, August 29, 1907, to the I. O. O. F. cemetery, at 2 p. m., conducted by Rev. D. C. Kellems.
