CONSUL, JR., COMING TO BELL THEATRE

Most Wonderful Educated Simian Billed for Four Nights During This Week

Consul, Jr., the educated and civilized chimpanzee, whose intelligence has excited wonder wherever he has appeared, is billed to hold the boards at the Bell theatre for four nights, beginning Tuesday.

The Seattle Daily Star has the following to say of this great attraction:

"Attired in faultless evening dress and looking so human that many thought it was a deformed child instead of an educated chimpanzee, "Consul Jr." made his debut at the Pantages yesterday. "Consul" is a $10,000 Simian, and also has the distinction of being the highest priced animal act that has ever appeared on a Western vaudeville circuit. As an attraction or an entertainment feature "Consul" is worth every cent of the $1,200 a week that is paid to his managers—and that is saying a lot. "Darwin was right," was the remark of at least a score of prominent citizens, who witnessed "Consul's" remarkable act. Even if Darwin was wrong, "Consul" gives his theory of the descent of man the greatest boost that has ever happened in the West. The program states that "Consul" does everything but talk. He makes good on the statement in his act. He wears his evening clothes with as much grace as some men, and behaves very well at the table, where he partaks of a meal, handles knife and fork, drinks wine and smokes an after-dinner cigarette with all the sangfroid of a confirmed clubman. But it is "Consul's" stunt on roller skates and finally his actions in retiring for the night, that made the biggest hit with the audience. Off the stage "Consul" is just like a healthy, affectionate child, albeit he is as full of animal vigor and a Simian's typical mischievousness. He is such a remarkable chimpanzee that medical men all over the continent have been much interestd in him, and any local practising physicians who wish to examine this unusual specimen will be given a chance to do so Wednesday afternoon any time between 12 and 2 p. m. Of the rest of the bill this week it can easily be said that it is one of the best that Manager Calvert has yet offered his patrons.

Talley and Mrs. Ed Cluer, in Eugene, and one son Bert Cox, of Wendling. The funeral will be held Wednesday at 10 o'clock with interment in the Masonic cemetery.
