CRESWELL TO HAVE ANOTHER DRYER

Dr. Scarbroough Will Erect Third Building to Care For Crop

With phesent prospects for the largest crop of prunes since he has been in the fruit growing business, which has been several years, Dr. L. D. Scarbrough is forced to erect another dryer to handle his crop. This will make three of these buildings owned by Mr. Scarbrough.

The new dryer will be 80x90 feet, with a capacity for 72000 pounds of green fruit every 24 hours. It will be built on the same principle as his large dryer south of town but the tunnels will be larger. It will have a concrete foundation and brick furnaces to operate it. With the three dryers Mr. Scarbrough hopes to be able to hondle his entire crop in 20 days. Fifteen tons will be handled per day in the three buildings.

Mr. Scarbrough states that from the present outlook this year's crop will be the best he has ever handled. He estimaes a yield of 570,000 pounds from his 150 acres. Besides this he will handle perhaps 50,000 pounds which he has purchased from other growers. It will require from 150 to 200 people to handle the fruit and eight teams will be used to haul from the orchard to the dryers. The entire crop has been sold.

This is the orchard which Dr. Scarbrough set out a few years ago in the face of ridicule from nearly everyone. By constant and competent care he has developed it into one of the best prune orchards in the state. Last year's yield from his 150 acres promises to exceed any previous year.—Chronicle.

CARE OF MILK AND FIRES MAY BE IN NEW SCHOOL WORK

Supt. Alderman, However, Will not Let the Three R's Be Crowded.

Salem, Or. July 27.—The three R's famed for their place in pioneer public schools, will not be lost sight of in making out the new course of study, according to L. R. Alderman, superintendent of public instruction of Oregon.

The state food and dairy commission wants the care of milk after it reaches the consumer taught in the public schools.

The state forester wants a place given to forest fire prevention in the course of study.

Insurance companies are requesting that pupils be taught prevention of fires about buildings.

A multitude of other good and practical courses are being urged.

Superintendent Alderman takes the stand that the children must know how to read broadly, to write a good business letter and the essentials of arithmetic. These three things must be taught thoroughly and all extra time will be devoted to other practical subjects. He is weeding out every non-essential and trying to put the course on a solid foundation. Much industrial work is being included.

The course will be out next month and will be in closer harmony with the current needs of the state than any heretofore.
