PORTLAND DAIRY MARKETS EASIER

Butter is Especially Weak And Reduction in Print Price May Result

PORTLAND, Ore., April 2.—Local dairy markets are easier due to increased production as the spring season opened. Butter is especially weak and if there continues to be an accumulation of stock here print prices will necessarily be reduced.

Cube butter is plentiful and lower on the exchange. Extras are marked down 1½c to the 45c level with all other grades off a cent. The market has picked up considerably and there is plenty of cube stock now, more than enough for actual requirements.

Egg values are lower throughout the entire list. On the exchange extras, firsts and pullets declined one cent while current receipts remained steady at the 26c level. Extras are now posted at 30c; firhts at 29c and pullets at 27c. Egg receipts are increasing and the demand is less keen. Storage activities continue but most of the operators have put away their requirements for the time being.
