MERCHANTS MAKE READY TO ENTERTAIN THRONGS

Large Gathering Expected at Picnic Tomorrow

MANY PRIZES PROMISED

Cottage Grove Will Be Mecca for Lane County Residents at Annual Outdoor Event

Everything is in readiness for the anticipated greeting to an estimated gathering of 3000 guests that are expected to attend the annual Lane county merchants' picnic to be held tomorrow at Cottage Grove. With music, sports, entertainment, and barbecue, members of the various committees who have been hard at work on the details of the event for the past several weeks have what they declare is one of the most lavish picnic programs ever presented here. A sweeping invitation has been sent to all Lane county to enjoy the day as the guests of the merchants and a record crowd is expected to attend the all-day affair.

Grounds in Readiness

The grounds at Cottage Grove are in the best of condition. Water mains have been installed, electric lights strung over the field and the new dancing platform especially erected for the occasion. A clean program is also promised by the committee heads who report that no concessions have been authorized and that the affair will be absolutely in the nature of a big community gathering. Free transportation will be provided for those who desire it and cars will leave in the forenoon from the city park.

A band of sixteen pieces and an orchestra of seven will provide music all day and during the evening, and it is expected that the evening crowd will be considerably increased by the many who are planning to leave for Cottage Grove late in the afternoon. A complete race program has been scheduled with opportunity for the participants to carry away a lengthy list of prizes that have been donated for the affair by the Lane county merchants.

WATER DEMAND IS HEAVY

DRY SPELL INCREASES USE, REPORT INDICATES

Marked Difference in Monthly Total For City Shown by Books of Officials of Department

That the long, continued dry spell is having an effect on the amount of water used in Eugene is indicated by the reports of C. A. McClain, superintendent of public utilities. Eugenians in their desire to preserve their lawns will have the opportunity to see some figures concerning their own use of the water when they receive their monthly July bills which were sent out yesterday. Although exact figures are not yet available as to the total that has been piped through the mains to the lawn sprinklers, Mr. McClain states that there has been a marked increase over previous monthly reports.

That the city lawn is not the only ground that requires water is also indicated by the reports that many Lane county farmers have started to irrigate their lands by the use of the gas engine pump. The rivers, sloughs, and wells are all contributing their quota to the fields and offsetting the result of the failure of the rain to co-operate with the farmers in keeping their land watered.

Although irrigation has been practiced by many farmers in the past for the purpose of adding to the efficiency of their land the present summer has seen more of the pumps in action then ever before, according to farmers in this vicinity.

FOREST OFFICIALS COMING

WILL CONFER WITH LOCAL SUPERVISORS HERE

William T. Barnes, assistant in charge of the grazing permits in the national timber districts, will be in Eugene today from Washington, D. C., to confer with local forest officials, according to N. F. Macduff, supervisor of the Cascade forest. F. H. Brundage, assistant from the district office at Portland, will also be here, to meet with the other officials.

Whether the visiting officials will make an inspection trip over the national forest territory from here has not yet been announced. The grazing permits granted by the government is the object of the visit of the official from Washington. Mr. Macduff states that there are at present 15,000 head of sheep and 1100 cattle in the Cascade district.

SEVERAL FIRES SPOTTED

BURNT OVER AREA AGAIN BEING SWEPT BY FLAMES

Blaze Near Scott Mountain Raging in District Where Sheep Are Now Summering

The fire situation in the Northwest is growing more dangerous each day, report local men who are in touch with the conditions in the timbered districts where even the moss is being shriveled by the prolonged dry spell and the intense heat. The forests of the state are now great areas of inflammable material and unless relief soon comes in the form of rain the destruction by fires this year will be unequalled in the history of man in the west, believe local timber men.

Several new fires were reported yesterday by lookouts and the aerial patrol. E. G. Muir, president of the Western Lane Fire Patrol association, has been notified that the old burn of 1910 on the north side of Nelson mountain is again being swept by flames. Three patrol trucks have been dispatched to that vicinity and a crew of men is now fighting the fire. A few small fires have been reported on the upper Siuslaw, according to Mr. Muir.

In western Lane another fire is sweeping through green timber about four miles west of Triangle lake. The Siuslaw forest office has sent 25 men out to check this conflagration, which has been fanned into active life by the prevailing winds.

Several fires were located over the northern part of the state by the 91st Aero patrols yesterday morning. M. V. Fuller, deputy forest supervisor, accompanied Lieutenant Morgan on a flight over the forests from Salem.

Yesterday the Cascade national forest office reported that a fire had been reported north of Scott mountain near the lava fields of the summit of the Cascades. If the winds continue from the west these fires will run out against the barren lava beds, but a northwest wind would carry the flames toward the Deer butte country. Several bands of sheep are summering in the Black crater country. Smith Taylor is in charge of the crew fighting this fire.

Appreciation of the assistance rendered the fire fighters by farmers and telephone operators has been expressed by E. G. Muir. He said that the people living in the area near which he has jurisdiction have been very co-operative.

HEALTH WORK IS PLANNED

LANE COUNTY ASSOCIATION TO EXTEND ACTIVITY

Pre-Natal Cases Will Be Included In Program of Organization In Addition to Clinics

Plans for the extension of the work of the Lane County Health association in its efforts to provide for the medical needs of children in the rural districts are being made by members of the organization in co-operation with Sally M. Craighill, county health nurse. It is planned to make special arrangements for the care and instruction of pre-natal cases in addition to the children's clinics that have been established at many of the Lane county cities.

In the children's clinics provision is made for the examination of infants and all children of the preschool age who are not included in the regular medical supervision of the schools. The next clinic will be held Friday at 9 o'clock at Creswell, in charge of Dr. Bertha Stuart Dyment, of this city and Dr. Forbes of Creswell, assisted by the county health nurse. The clinics are held at Eugene the second Saturday of each month and at Cottage Grove, Creswell, Springfield, Junction City and Florence once every two months. A local committee of five members in each of these cities has charge of the arrangements for the coming of the county health visitors.

Inspection of health conditions of rural schools and making reports to the superintendent of the county schools is also included in the work of the county health association.

Oil Leakage from the Crankcase

A good way to prevent oil leaking out of the crankcase through the bolt holes, is to back the studs a quarter of an inch or so and then wind several turns of cotton twine around the bolts. When you again draw the studs down onto their seats the leakage will be overcome. The string acts as a packing material and is very effective.
