MEMBERS OF HOUSE TIRE OF LONG GRIND

although general enough to be constitutional. The presidents of the two higher institutions are members of the board that is administering the estate. Representative Keeney took the floor against the bill on the ground that it was equivalent to making an appropriation from the general fund and McMahan, of Marion, spoke along the same lines.

Carkin Decries Economy Stuff

Representative Carkin said that it was not well to carry this economy stuff to extremes that the educational institutions of the state would have to provide endowments similar to that of the Daly estate, or greatly curtail their activities. Wheeler voted with Keeney and Bailey for the bill.

The house received the gubernatorial veto upon three to its bills today, and upon the emergency clause in another. In the latter case the veto was sustained. In no cases was there an attempt to override the veto.

The bills vetoed were Bennett's bill, requiring the listing of agricultural and horticultural lands; number 353, relating to removal of buildings near electric wires, and number 144, by committee upon assessment and taxation, to provide for the assessment, and taxation of deforested lands. The veto message upon the latter, on the grounds that it would take valuable land from the tax roll and would permit the owner to escape just taxation while his land became highly valuable, was ordered printed, upon motion of McMahan, of Linn, floor representative of the governor's office.

House Activities of Wednesday

Other activities of the house today were as follows:

Reconsidered the vote and indefinitely postponed, house bill 376, one of the appropriation bills which passed both houses yesterday in the jam. It was found that sections repealed by this bill took away relief from discharged soldiers which it was necessary to retain for the present.

Passed senate bill 122, appropriating $15,000 annually for two years for maintenance of battleship Oregon, to be placed in Portland harbor. It was stated that the Spanish War veterans had a plan that would make it unnecessary to expend any of the money.

Took from the table and passed senate bill 216 to give title to riparian owners along the shore line of Malheur lake and to give them preference rights to purchase adjourning land.

Took from the table and passed senate bill 6, which would permit the use of market road funds upon post roads and state roads of Eastern Oregon. It was stated that such roads are the market roads and the only roads in that section of the state. The bill as it came on for final passage contained a provision that county courts could designate the roads upon which market road money could be expended. Representative Graham led the fight against this provision, stating that in many counties this right in the hands of the county court has resulted in patches of roads being built here and there with consequent wastage of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Bill 35, which passed the house in early part of the session and killed in the senate, gave absolute control of the expenditure of market road money to the state highway commission. Senate bill 6 was laid on the table because its provisions contradictory to those of the Graham bill. Graham was unable to get the senate bill amended to meet his ideas but did succeed in getting it amended so as to retain for the highway commission all the powers it now has in the supervision of the expenditure of market road funds.

Additional Judge Is Denied

Killed senate bill 81, which would have provided for an additional circuit judge in Multnomah county and then took from the table and passed a house bill that provided that judges from other district could be called into Multnomah county and serve on the bench there at additional compensation.

Killed the Dennis senate resolution for a flat reduction of 10 per cent in the expenses of every state office and of every political subdivision of the state. The house assessment and taxation committee found the resolution to be unconstitutional despite the fact that it had gotten by the constitutional lawyers of the senate.

Acted favorably upon house joint resolution No. 7, which would submit to the people an amendment to the bonus law extending its benefits to a number who were excluded from its benefits because of having enlisted in the regular army or navy previous to the entry of the United States into the war.

Received a new substitute bill imposing a tax upon motion picture films.
