DISEASE KILLS BERRIES

MOSAIC ATTACKS VINES AND ROOTS OF PLANTS

Pathologist of O. A. C. and County Fruit Inspector Make Trip Over County

A mosaic disease is killing the loganberry and raspberry vines in the valley, according to C. E. Stewart, county fruit inspector, who yesterday gathered a number of specimens of the diseased berry vines as well as other plants that have been attacked.

The disease is found on the evergreen blackberry vines this year for the first time, said the inspector, and is found on the wild cucumber vines, the wild thimbleberry bushes, wild western sage and other plants.

Dr. S. M. Zeller, plant pathologist at the O. A. C., accompanied Mr. Stewart on a trip to various parts of the county yesterday to inspect berry patches and to gather samples of the diseased vines. He said that the cause of the mosaic disease is unknown but investigations are being made and it is hoped to find the source and the remedy. He is leaving in a few days for a conference of pathologists in New York state where the disease is prevalent. The conference will be attended by representatives of all the larger berry growing sections of that part of the United States and means of combatting the disease will be discussed.

This disease is carried by aphis and certain other insects. It seems to affect the whole vine and the root. If no remedy is found the fruit men will endeavor to locate new stocks that are not infested and replant their berry tracts where the disease has obtained a good foothold. Mr. Stewart and Dr. Zeller yesterday found one patch where only two vines had been attacked. The disease is not yet serious enough to cause general alarm in Lane county but it is growing worse in the lower end of the valley, said the inspector.

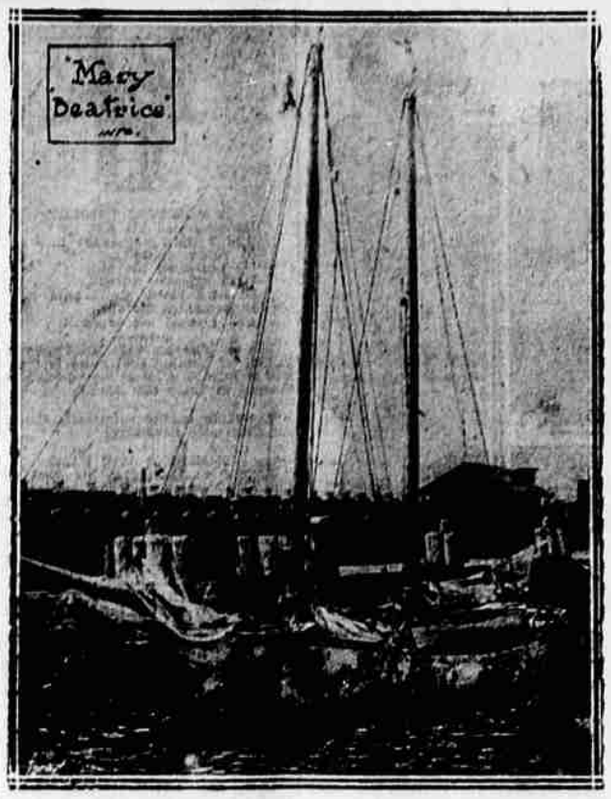
Where Nine Men Died in Sea Battle



When the tiny 50-foot schooner Mary Beatrice entered New York harbor there was unfolded one of the most dramatic stories the sea has ever known. Twenty Chinese offered the captain of the vessel $500 apiece to smuggle them into the United States from Cuba. They paid $250 each and were to pay the balance when landed. The captain deserted the ship off Rum Runners' Row, Sandy Hook. Then the crew tried to rob the Chinese, and a battle followed. Five Chinese, two white members of the crew and two negroes were slain. When the crew was wiped out the remaining Chinese managed to get the vessel into port.

MID-WEST CONTINUES TO MOP HEATED BROW

SOME DROP IN TEMPERATURE AFFORDS RESPITE

In West Where Frosts Prevailed, Forecasts Indicate Slight Rise in Unseasonable Temperature

CHICAGO, June 22.—Central United States continued to mop its brow today as abnormally high temperatures prevailed, although reports showed a drop in high temperatures in the east and Arizona from low temperatures in the west.

In the Great Lakes district and most of the upper plain states, which have been suffering under the blaze of heat wave since Monday, were given no cheering news from weather observers for tomorrow, forecasts in the main indicating continued fair and warm.

The Atlantic coast, Washington, Philadelphia and other eastern cities which felt the effects of some of the highest temperatures of the year, today found relief in a moderation of several degrees.

From the west, where heavy frosts and unseasonably cool weather has been reported, forecasts indicated a slight rise in temperature, southern states are promised a continuation of present weather which has not been abnormally high.

Alaska today had an "uneskimo" heat wave with temperature reaching as high as 84 at Eagle. Honolulu's beaches reported 80 degrees with plenty of cooling breezes.

CONFESSES ARSON PLOT

ASCHENBRENNER AND MRS. LAROY CONSPIRATORS

PORTLAND, Ore., June 21.—While more than a score of lodgers in the Bozanta apartments slept in ignorance of their threatened fate, Pete Aschenbrenner and Mrs. Margaret LaRoy planned to burn the apartments as they ate a midnight meal and lingered over their glasses of moonshine whisky. Aschenbrenner told Multnomah county officers today.

The plans were made in Mrs. LaRoy's apartment in the Bozanta late Sunday night, he said.

About 3:30 o'clock Monday morning Aschenbrenner admits that he touched a match to gasoline under the building, which started the fire.

The penalty for conviction is from three to seven years in the state penitentiary.
