ORR SENT TO COLLEGE

BAPTISTS PAY FOR MINISTER'S EDUCATION

Cottage Grove Pastor Is Held by Congregation and Entire Denomination

(Register Lane County Special)
COTTAGE GROVE, Ore., Jan. 27.—The Baptist denomination and the Baptist church at Cottage Grove are aiding Pastor J. C. Orr in completing his education. Mr. Orr, who for nine months has been the pastor of the Cottage Grove church moved last Wednesday to McMinnville, where he will enter Linfield college next Monday.

Mr. Orr will return to his church occasionally for the Sunday morning services, until student work can be found for him near the college. The Baptists of the denomination will pay his tuition and the local church will pay his salary while he pursues his studies.

He will take the regular four-year course leading to the B. A. degree. After that is completed he will be sent to an eastern seminary for the regular theological course of three years, leading to the seminary degree.

J. D. Chappelle, chapel car missionary, under appointment of the national boards of the Baptist denomination, who is in Cottage Grove to lead the church in the erection of a church edifice, has agreed to take care of Mr. Orr's mid-week services and preach for him the Sundays he is away.

Linfield is a college of fine arts owned and controlled by the Baptists of the Northwest. It has a strong faculty with Dr. Leonard W. Riley as president. The school is now in a country-wide campaign among Baptists for $500,000 for buildings and endowment.

This incident confirms a position which for ages has characterized this denomination. While Baptists have never felt that it was wise to set up an educational standard and refuse a place in their ministry to all who come short of it, they have given worthy young men for the ministry great encouragement and provided ample opportunity for them to receive an education. As a result of this position the Baptists number in their ministry many men who are foremost among the scholars and leaders of the Christian ministry.

Apple Sauce Cake

A well-known cookery expert gives below a recipe for an unusual cake:

½ cup Crisco
1 egg, beaten
3½ cups pastry flour
1½ cups thick cold apple sauce
1 teaspoon soda
½ cup nuts
1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon each of cloves and nutmeg
1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons hot water
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup raisins (or dates)

Cream the sugar and Crisco, add egg, beat well. Mix in apple sauce and hot water. Add raisins and nuts, then dry ingredients sifted together twice. Bake in a moderate oven (300 degrees F.) forty-five minutes to an hour. Makes two small loaves.

This Expert says:

"This is a very good cake which keeps well. Crisco makes a light delicious cake. It is more economical, finer, and easier to cream with the sugar. Grease your pans with Crisco and see your cake slip out easily and whole. Not a break in it.
