CHURCHES

Estacada Methodist

If there is one lesson taught in the marching order of our Lord and King with unmistakable clearness, it is that we are not to make our own ability the limit or measure of the duties which we should undertake and perform. The one question which we are to consider is, "What are my orders?" That being settled, but one thing remains—to go forward toward their fulfillment.

Our Lord said to the diciples in the face of the multitudes, "Give ye them to eat." That called for something which they were utterly unable to perform. Phillip's estimate was not overdone—that it would take two hundred pennyworth of bread to give each of this crowd a little. But where were the two hundred denarii? And where was the bakeshop where such a supply of bread could be had? The only resulting solution was, Send the multitude away. Yet Jesus says in the face of these conditions, "Give ye them to eat." And this He is continuously saying to those who have the bread of life concerning the perishing multitudes.

Of course the Lord meant to add His omnipotent creating energy to the efforts of His disciples to feed the multitude. But there were two conditions, without which that power would not be granted.

First, they must bring their entire store of provisions and place them in His hands. Whether we have much or little, He gives His unqualified command, Bring them to Me.

Second, we must lay our service unreservedly at His feet. The disciples must be willing to receive and distribute the provisions which He would furnish. We must bring ourselves, our substance and our service and lay them at His feet. Then He will multiply the power and effect of all, and marvels of grace will surely follow.

The subjects to be used next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and at 7:30 in the evening, "The Gift and the Goal," and the "The Church in the Home." This evening talk is an appeal to parents and children. Be sure to hear it. Sunday school at 10 a. m., Epworth League at 6:30 p. m.—C. T. Cook, pastor.

Estacada Christian

The Bible school lesson for Sunday, March 17, is "The Christian Day of Worship." Which is it, the Sabbath or the Lord's day? What is it a holiday or a holy day? This lesson is bound to be interesting, and helpful.

The morning sermon theme is taken from the full page religious advertisement appearing in the Portland Telegram of March 9. The Power House of Civilization. May God richly bless this group of men who are spending their money to advertise their Savior in this conspicuous way!

The gospel is the power of God, and the power house is the little white church in the vale.

The Christian Endeavors will discuss this same topic at 6:30 p. m., as the young people see it. The topic is, "How the Church Helps Us to Live the Christian Life." The C. E. is a fine group of enthusiastic young people with whom it is a delight to spend an hour Sunday evening. You will miss a treat if you fail to spend this hour with the young people.—Hugh Foster, pastor.

A sermon which is not prepared near the cross is not worth hearing. We may not be great preachers or pulpit orators but we must teach and preach a great gospel. The gospel of God's love for the sinner manifested in Jesus' sacrifice on the cross. Just think a moment of what God has done for us, and then think of the great need of the world today and the short time we have to serve Christ here. The world has tried everything but the gospel and has failed and is suffering and perishing.

There never was a time in history when the need of gospel preaching was more urgent and necessary than today. The gospel of Jesus Christ is the greatest need of the hour. This old gospel, though not most popular, nevertheless is always new and up-to-date and never will become antiquated. It is and always will remain the "power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth." Every believer in Christ owes it to his neighbor, who does not yet know his Savior to lead him to that knowledge. His eternal welfare may depend on your help or neglect. Lent is a time to lead him to Christ. By this work of love you may be God's instrument in saving a soul from death. Therefore attend the church service and bring others with you.

Next Sunday English services at 10:30 a. m. We invite you to hear another gospel sermon, the second of a series having as a central thought the Cross of Christ. The subject of the sermon will be "The Comfort of the Cross." We hope you will hear this message and take home with you this comfort.—F. T. Schoen, pastor.
