A TEXT FOR TARIFF AMENDMENTS.

When Speaker Henderson declined the nomination to congress tendered him by the republicans of the Third Iowa District, the subject of amending the tariff schedule was positively brought to the attention of the people of the country. For some time public speakers and politicians especially on the democratic side have been urging that the tariff fosters trusts and therefore the schedules should be amended. It was the demand for amendment contained in the Iowa platform that made it bad form for Henderson to remain on the ticket. The demand for tariff schedule amendment has been a question for active debate for the past two weeks. However nothing that has been said this year is more to the point than our Congressman Tongue's letter on the same subject published by the American Economist, more than a year ago. Indeed Mr. Tongue's letter is the text and foundation of all that has been said this fall by Pres. Roosevelt or any of the campaign orators. On August 24, 1901, Mr. Tongue wrote these words to the Economist, New York:

"I certainly do not believe that it would be wise for congress at the coming session to enter upon anything like a tariff revision of the present tariff. As a whole, both in producing needed revenue and in stimulating the industrial interests of the country, the Dingley tariff law has been unusually successful. Our exports surpass all previous records, and are still growing larger. With consumption stimulated to the highest point, we are purchasing from foreign nations less of food products, especially such as our own farmers can successfully raise, than we purchased during those years of terrible depression following the passage of the Wilson-Gorman law. A greatly increased demand for these is supplied wholly from our own farms, ranges, dairies, orchards and gardens.

Our present trade balance is enabling us to cancel our obligations to foreign nations, and its continuance for a few years will make us the creditor nation of the world. Labor is well paid and fully employed. We should not lightly imperil these advantages, or endanger the prosperity we now enjoy. To enter now upon a general revision of the tariff, to attempt to remodel and rebuild our industrial system, would itself create alarm, resulting in a general shortening up of production, lessening the demand for labor and supplies and general unrest and alarm. It would be better to bear with slight inconveniences rather than to rush blindly upon an untold disaster. We must not attribute all higher prices to sinister influences. Six years ago the crying evil was "low prices." When all are eagerly striving to secure higher prices in the presence of a phenomenally increased demand, we must expect that there will be increase in the price of the production of others, as well as our own, of the things we consume as well as those we produce. We must not expect to buy cheap unless we expect to sell cheap and work cheap.

But if a careful examination should prove, what is so often alleged, that there are tariffs on products not needed for either revenue or protection; that the industries producing these goods are capable of withstanding all foreign competition, that they are outstripping all foreign competitors in their own domain, and rapidly capturing the markets of the world, and that these tariffs serve no purpose except to enable the corporations controlling these products to extort unreasonable prices from the home consumer, while selling cheaper abroad, then they should be repealed at once. This should be done, not to destroy, but to preserve protection. They form no part of a protective system. They give plausibility to the argument that a protective tariff fosters trusts. They are the enemies, not the friends of protection. If we do not get rid of such tariffs there is grave danger that the people, unmindful of past experiences, stirred to madness by appeals to prejudice against great wealth, may arise in their might, guided by anger more than wisdom, as in 1892, and destroy the whole protective policy.

But such a step should be taken only after the most careful examination of the probable effect of the action contemplated. We should be certain that the industries affected could successfully withstand foreign competition, that we were not destroying important enterprises while attempting to destroy monopolies, that we were not merely changing masters and enthroning a foreign trust upon the ruins of domestic trusts. We should first be sure of the facts, and the search for these should be thorough and exhaustive. The facts fully known, the action taken should be cautious, temperate, but firm and effective.

President Roosevelt received a bruise on the leg below the knee at the time the trolley car collided with his carriage in Massachusetts, that developed into an ugly swelling. After he started on his eastern tour his leg began to trouble him. A surgeon was consulted who decided on lancing and subsequent rest. The wound was made and cleansed of puss, after which all engagements were cancelled and the party returned to Washington. The President is fast recovering.

THAT ROAD MAP.

Washington county has been in existence over 40 years, has paid probably $30,000 or $40,000 as salary to county surveyors, and yet has no county map showing the location of its roads. Mr. Clement was here this week, and rode over a 20-mile route, which will accommodate over 100 people with a daily mail, and has approved it, but, as stated above, there will be a delay in getting the line established.—Oregonian Correspondent.

Washington county was first organized in July, 1843; a few months more than 59 years ago, but during that time no $40,000 has been paid to the county surveyor, or even $30,000. The county surveyor is not on a salary and does only such work as he is ordered to do. For this special work he is paid. The county court has never authorized a road map, in truth has never felt that it needs one. Some years ago, 1897 it was, when the U. S. war department wanted a road map of the county, army officers came here and made maps. The postoffice department might go to the war office and borrow it. The county surveyor is not responsible for the lack. No doubt he would like to be ordered to make one.

Some democrats practically admit that the trusts cannot be controlled by revising the tariff schedules, and that the republican proposition to amend the constitution would enable congress to control them, but they will oppose the amendment on the ground that it would destroy the last vestage of states rights. A Washington, D. C., democratic politician said a few days ago: "If the amendment were adopted, it would of necessity be general in character. It could not apply alone to the trusts. If the federal government be given police power to regulate the trusts, then it must by the same amendment be given power to regulate other things, and power must be delegated to punish violations of law." Hence the orator prefers to retain the trusts than that congress shall have power to preserve order and punish crime.

BRIGHT'S DISEASE.

The largest sum ever paid for a prescription, changed hands in San Francisco, Aug. 30, 1901. The transfer involved in coin and stock $11,500.00 and was paid by a party of business men for a specific for Bright's Disease and Diabetes, hitherto incurable diseases.

They commenced the serious investigation of the specific, Nov. 15, 1900. They interviewed scores of the cured and tried it out on its merits by putting over three dozen cases on the treatment and watching them. They also got physicians to name chronic, incurable cases, and administered it with the physicians for judges. Up to Aug. 5, eighty-seven per cent of the test cases were either well or progressing favorably.

There being but thirteen per cent of failures, the parties were satisfied and closed the transaction. The proceedings of the investigating committee and the clinical reports of the test cases were published and will be mailed free on application. Address JOHN J. by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
