Nothing on the Market Equal to Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and And Diarrhoea Remedy.

This fact is well known to druggists everywhere, and nine out of ten will give their customers this preparation when the best is asked for. Mr. Obe Witmer, a prominent druggist of Joplin, Mo., in a circular to his customerr, says: "There is nothing on the market in the way of patent medicine which equals Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy for bowel complaints. We sell and recommend this preparation." For sale by R. S Knowlton.

Mrs. Erla Carlock of the San Jose conservatory wishes to announce that she is permanently located in this valley, and will receive pupils in Piano and Organ at regular rates. Mrs. Carlock is an experienced teacher and uses the most modern methods of instruction; that her ability is being recognized is evidenced by her large and growing class. For particulars call at the Tuttle Hotel, Coquille; Myrtle Point Hotel, Myrtle Point, or address at Coquille, Oregon.

Does Capital Punishment Diminish Capital Crime?

(Harper's Weekly.)

The death penalty, as a feature of the penal code, is undergoing a process of evolution which, judging from the world's jurisprudence during the past 50 years, must result in its complete extinction. It now exists in 40 states of the American Union.

In the investigation of this subject, the writer caused inquries to be addressed to the Attorney-Generals of these 40 states, asking their opinion as to whether capital punishment tended to diminish capital crime.

Eighteen of the 40 declined to express an opinion. Only 16 of the Attorney-Generals of states which inflict the death penalty declared themselves as clearly of the opinion that capital punishment does tend to diminish capital crime. Two of the 40 were positive in their conviction that the death penalty does not tend to diminish capital crimes, and stated their opinion that the death penalty should be abolished, while four of the 40 gave qualified answers.

In the five states of Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Rhode Island and Wisconsin, where capital punishment does not exist, the Attorney-Generals have noted no increase in capital crime since the abolition of the death penalty, and generally express themselves as satisfied with the conditions existing in their respective states. In Michigan, Wisconsin and Rhode Island capital punishment was abolished over 50 years ago, and has not since been re-enacted. Though nominally prescribed by law in Kansas, the death penalty can be executed in that state only upon the Governor's warrant, and the Kansas Governors have persistently declined to issue a death warrant, the condemned persons, meanwhile, remaining in prison. In five other states where the death penalty exists the trial juries have power to commute it to life imprisonment.

The right of the state to take the life of a citizen has always been, and doubtless must remain, an academic question, although, conceding the soundness of the doctrine of "consent of the governed" as ultimate basis of governmental authority, it must be admitted that one cannot be morally held to a contract whereby he consents that another may take his life. In our civil jurisprudence no man can give another the right to do him bodily injury. Such contracts are always void as against public policy. But the case against capital punishment is made when it is shown simply that it is unnecessary. It is coming to be understood that the majority of human beings do not refrain from the commission of capital crimes merely through fear of being hanged.

Every person who commits a capital crime knows that, in states maintaining capital punishment, the death penalty is affixed to that crime. From a personal study of more than 2000 cases, I am convinced that most crimes are committed by persons who either (1) expect to escape all punishment, or (2) who, upon the spur of the moment, are regardless of all punishment, or (3) who are governed by cosmic, social or individual factors which render the prospect of punishment inoperative as a deterrent agency at the time of the commission of the crime.

For shoes that have some snap and style to them, call at Robinson's.

If you want a good comb, hair brush, tooth brush, nail brush or bath brush go to Knowlton's drug store.

Mohair, Gladsea Silks, Gray Suitings, White and Silk Shirt Waists, Laces, Embroideries, Muslins, India Linen, White Dress Goods, etc., just arrived at J. W. Leneve's store.

In case you are thinking of buying a piano, you should see Haines, the Marshfield dealer. He keeps on hand a stock of standard makes, and lives here in the county where he can be seen at any time in regard to contracts, etc. And, it should be remembered that his profits go to build up and support the county and its institutions, and not those of some other state.

Willamette University.

The institution of learning was founded in 1844, and is still educating young people, and this year is making greater progress than ever before. The big brick for the College of Medicine, finished last January, the fine frame building eighty seven feet long for the College of Theology, are visible marks of advancement, plain to every passerby.

A civil engineering course, an electrical engineering course, and a short course in business have been added to meet popular demands.

Tuition is low, board is reasonable, and no aristocracy exists save what is based on hard study and good behavior.

There are excellent laboratories for chemistry and physics. At Willamette you can study Law, Music, Medicine, Theology, Pharmacy, Oratory, Pedagogy, Art, or the ordinary Academic and Collegiate branches.

Salem is peculiarly a home town and an educational center. Next winter the biennial Legislature meets there. That should prove a great attraction to persons selecting a school.

Health conditions have been such that in four years there has been little sickness and no death among students and faculty. The aim at Willamette is to make scholars and Christians, and no one will be embarrassed on account of his church preference or religious belief.

The prospects for a large attendance next year are bright. More letters have been received this summer than ever before, asking for information about the school, expressing interests and intention of attending. If you think of going to college next year send to the president for a catalogue.

The Poultry Doctor.

If you are interested in poultry, by all means send 25 cents in postage stamps to the Associated Fanciers, 400 N. 3rd St., Philadelphia, Penn., for their new book on the diseases of poultry. Although comparatively small ii is so concise, terse and lucid as to be of great value to the fancier and the breeder of poultry. It shows how to manage and rear fowls, how to detect their different ailments, and how to treat them by either allopathic or homeopathic remedies. It is from the pen of the late John E. Diehl, the well known American Poultry Association Judge, one of the highest authorities on poultry.

Chances for Westerners.

Washington, Aug. 11:—An opportunity is afforded western people to enter the reclamation service. The civil service commission announces examinations September 19 and 20, at Portland, Astoria, Baker and Eugene, Oregon, to make up a certified list of eligibles for reclamation work, at $1,800 salary, and assistant examiners at from $1,200 to $1,600. Irrigation law and practical irrigation count 50 points, the public land law 20, and the other 30 points are divided equally between contracts, real property and abstracting.

Public is Aroused

The public is aroused to knowledge of the curative merits of that great medicinal tonic. Bitters, for sick stomach. liver and kidneys. Mary H Walters, of 546 St. Ave., Columbus, O., writes: "For several months, I was given up to die. I had fever and ague, my nerves were were wrecked; I could not sleep, and my stomach was so weak, from useless doctors' drugs, that I could not sleep, and my stomach was so weak, from useless doctors' druge, that I could not eat. Soon after beginning to take Electric Bitters, I obtained relief, and in a short time I was entirly cured." Guaranteed at Knowlton's drug store; price 50c.

Shutter Held to Circuit Court.

The preliminary trial of August Schutter' charged with rape, was held yesterday afternoon in the City Recorder's office before Justice of the Peace C. L. Pennock, J. M. Upton appearing for the defense and Deputy Attorney E. L. C. Farrin representing the prosecution. Helma Pilkala, the alleged victim, her step sister Miss Selma, John Shutter, and her mother, Mrs. Shutter constituted the list of witnessess, all for the prosecution. Mrs. Shutter, though she has lived in the United States for a number of years, required an interpreter to translate both questions and answers. Some peculiar matters were brought out in the evidence which would surprise an enlightened public of this day, and these conditions are not found outside of the remote districts among foreigners.

Justice Pennock, arter hearing the evidence and eloquent pleas of the attorneys, bound the prisoner over to the circuit court grand jury, setting his bond at one thousand dollars. At last accounts the bond had not been obtained.

"The law passed by the recent Legislature requiring all persons engaged in the fitting of eyeglasses to pass an examination before the State Board of Examiners of Optometry is being rigidly enforced," declares E. O. Mattern, president of the board. "Whenever we find where a man fitting glasses who has not complied with the law, measures are taken to compel him to do so or shut up shop."—Ex.

A Warning to Mothers

Too much care cannot be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessry to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the oldfashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rencid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels give Chamerlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipiency and all danger avoid bed. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indication of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in cases of cholera infantum. For sale by R. S Knowlton.
