No More O. R. & N.

Because of the fact that Robert S. Lovett is president of all the Harriman railroads, it naturally follows that he will occupy the same position with the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation company, which has been merged with the Harriman system.

As a result of the merging of the North Coast with the O. R. & N. into the company mentioned above, both the O. R. & N. and the North Coast will to a great extent lose their individual distinction, either of them being only a part of the Oregon-Washington Railroad and Navigation company.

Incidentally it is learned from various reliable sources that gradually the name of Lovett is replacing that of Harriman and that before long the big trunk and its myriad of subsidiaries will be identified as the Lovett system.

The Harriman estate still holds large interests in the system, but the fact that Judge Lovett is the controlling spirit has started the movement to gradually work in the name of Lovett in place of that of Harriman. The Lovett idea has spread to Portland and other places on the coast, so that when employes have occasion to, they invariably speak of the Lovett system instead of the Harriman system.

"We do this to show our respect for our chief," said one of the men connected with the railroad, "and it is but right, for while the Harriman estate is still heavily interested, Judge Lovett is at the head. It is he who steers the course of the ship and guides its destinies." Of course Judge Lovett is not as heavily interested financially as was Mr. Harriman, and perhaps he never will be, but nevertheless we recognize that he is the big chief, and that it is but right for us to call them the Lovett lines when the matter comes up in an official way. And gradually the general public will fall in line."

J. P. O'Brien, vice-president of the Oregon-Washington R. & N. company and general manager of the Harriman lines in this state left last night on a tour of inspection of the Washington division of the O. R. & N. He is expected back tomorrow.—Oregon Journal.

Get-Rich-Quick Men to Be Arrested.

New York, Nov. 23.—Crusade of Postmaster General Hitchcock against "Get-rich-quick" concerns is expected to cause a general exodus of fake promoters from this city. The postmaster general is determined to send to prison this class of promoters who, he says, sold the unsuspecting $100,000,000 of worthless securities in the last five years. Hitchcock declared the government will drive from the country every "wildcat" scheme who separate the gullible investors from their money. Many arrests are expected throughout the country during the next few days. Members of Burr Bros. are to have cleared more than fifteen million dollars from their stock and operations.

Many Die in Flood.

Cordova, Alaska, Nov. 25.—The number of settlers and miners drowned yesterday in sections of the Bering Valley by the flood is is still unascertained today. It is believed that many perished as many houses were swept away. The disaster was caused by the escape of vast volume of water from Glacial lake in the Bering mountains. Great icebergs crashed from the slopes into the Bering river which has risen many feet, and is steadily rising.

Winsted, Conn., Nov. 25.—A fracture of the skull. received during the Thanksgiving football game between the Tierney Cadets and the Gilbert Preparatory school resulted today in the death of Harry Lee, 17 years of age, a member of the cadet team. Lee did not regain consciousness after being struck. His death is the twenty-fourth from football this year.

A Cruel Assault

Great excitment prevailed on the street near the Postoffice in Coquille on Monday afternoon when a row between Fred Elliott and two sons, Clyde and Claud, of South Slough, and Charles Bausch, temporarily residing in Coquille at this time, culminated in a mix-up and Bausch was completely knocked ont. The trouble arose over money matters, and it seemed that there was something back of that which implicated a daughter of the elder Elliott. to whom Mr. Baush had been paying considerable attention. The fuss atarted near Lyons & Jones' store, and as Bausch tried to get away from his assailants, it was about the middle of the street in front of the postoffice that he was felled. During the mixup Bausch was struck several ttmes over the head with a pistol, and it was first thought seriously hurt, however he seems to be coming out all right at present.

A preliminary hearing was given the aggressors in the case yesterday afternoon, and the father was bound over to appear before the grand jury for carrying a concealed weapon, and the two boys were put under bonds to appear as witnesses. Bail had not been secured as we go to press.

Bad Slide at Sugarloaf.

There was rather a serious slide on Sugarfoaf mountain above the school house on Monday night, tons of rock and earth coming down into the roadway from the steep mountainside, blocking all traffic. The mail going out that night left here at 8 in the evening did not reach Bridge until 6 o'clock Tuesday morning. The new grade that was put in during the past summer cannot be used, and it is probable that it will not be used this winter because the slides keep coming in about as fast as they are cleared away. A trail was made around the big slide during Tuesday so that single horses could get around and the mails have had to be transferred there.—Myrtle Point Enterprise.

Oregon Midget Dead.

From Myrtle Point Enterprise.

W. W. Endicott has received news of the marriage of his daughter, Pearl, to Mr. John Pressler, which took place at Oakland, Calif., last Friday, 18th. Mr. and Mrs. Pressler will make their home at Oakland, where the groom is engaged in business.

L. W. Deyoe writes the Enterprise that they are as comfortably situated in their home at Orange, Calif., as bugs in a rug. Orange is a beautiful little city of 3,500 and growing fast. It is 12 miles from the ocean, to which electric cars run, and fine fishing is afforded, which, his friends know, is essential to Mr. Deyoe's very existence. The weather, he says, is like summer, with geeen peas, string beans, cucumbers and strawberries on the market.

W. W. Williams, proprietor of the Rock Creek stage station, was down last Saturday. He says that they are completing a new 12-room house which is to be built on similar lines as the Presbyterian manse here and hope to have it finished up within a few weeks. The new station will afford ample accommodations to travelers between here and Roseburg.

Ed Rackleff came up from Langlois Saturday to visit with his family a few days, returning the first of the week. Langlois is gradually rebuilding. The Woodman are completing a fine building, the upper floor of which will be used for lodge purposes and the lower floor for business rooms. A new and comfortable hotel is also being built by a company of citizens.

Thanksgiving Football.

The Coquille admirers of this game had the opportunity to witness a lively contest on Thanksgiving Day between Myrtle Point's high school team and Coquille's Independents. The steamer Dora made an excursion, bringing down a goodly number of rooters with lusty voices who did all their throats would stand for to encourage their team on, but the Coquille bunch was a little too many for them, the score standing 10 to 0 in favor of the local team.
