J. F. Wright with his wife and baby, were down from Willamina over Sunday, visiting with father, Ira Vantress.

Jones & Howard, hot air furnace dealers of Portland, were in town Tuesday and Wednesday in the interest of their business.

Mr. Sorgen has the hot air furnace in the public school building ready to test as soon as the flues are put in by the brick layer.

Cyrus Hoskins, E. C. Armstrong and J. S. Larkin went to Hood River this week to attend the meeting of the state horticultural society.

The W. C. T. U. wish to express their thanks to all who assisted in any way either by donation or work, in their 4th of July entertainment.

An ice cream festival was given at the M. E. church on Tuesday night. Splendid cream and cake was served and the time was spent very pleasantly.

Allen Cook received his prize bicycle from the Pope Manufacturing Co., of Boston, the first of the week. It arrived all O. K. and is apparently a good wheel.

W. P. Heacock has placed an order box at the post office. Orders will be collected each day at 2:30 p. m. and materials ordered will be promptly delivered to any part of the city.

Go to Dr. Clark for the Painless extraction of teeth. This is something new, safe and reliable. I can recommend it from an actual experiment performed on my own self.

Since the actual sale of the P. & W. V. railroad to the Southern Pacific, a special train has been put on this end of the line, and new ties are being laid and other improvements made.

The sixty-five thousand dollars spent last year in buildings in Newberg will be put in the shade by this year's expenditures; at least that is the present outlook. Pretty good for a dead town.

A letter from N. C. Maris to J. C. Colcord says he is feeding and rubbing Short Horn calves for a sale and will not return before September. The prospect for a good paw paw crop is probably fine.

The person who found a hammer in the street between Allen's livery barn and my place, will confer a favor by leaving the same at my place or at Allen's barn.
WM. MORRIS.

We notice in the Ledger that M. O. Lownsdale, of LaFayette, who has taken great pains in setting one of the largest orchards in the county, has lost about fifteen hundred trees by a band of sheep getting into the orchard. The trees were probably worth as much as the whole band of sheep.

Mrs. Ada Unruh, of McMinnville, will lecture at the Baptist church on Tuesday evening, July 19th. Mrs. Unruh is state superintendent of the Juvenile work for the W. C. T. U. She is a speaker of marked ability, and we bespeak for her a good audience. There will also be a few recitations by the children, and music by the glee club and the Christenson brothers.

The report was circulated on the streets last Tuesday that the Manzanillo struck a rock at Rock Island, while on the down trip that morning, and sunk in sixty feet of water. Captain Waud, however, arrived on time with the Manzanillo that evening, and she still plows the tranquil waters of the beautiful Wil-la-met-te. In whose fertile brain the idea of the report first originated, will probably never be known.

DORRANCE BROS.

Two young men from Spiceland, Ind., named Newby and Hodson, respectively, arrived here last Friday and are stopping at the Newberg house.

Mrs. L. A. Clark came up from Portland and spent Sunday with her husband, the house mover. Mr. Clark's niece also came with her.

President Newlin preached at Sherwood and J. H. Douglas at Dayton last Sunday, while Dr. Jessup occupied the pulpit at Friends church in Newberg.

It would seem that at five or even three cents per pound, cherries in this country are a very profitable fruit to raise, and the demand seems to be continually increasing.

J. M. Tice is ready for all kinds of work in his line, including painting, staining, graining, paper hanging, etc. All work guaranteed first class or no pay. Prices reasonable.

There were only two bids made for building the bridge west of town, which were as follows: Parrott Bros., of Dundee, $294, and Frank Wood, $283. The lowest bidder was awarded the contract.

Brother Phelps of the North Yamhill Leader, who came over last Thursday to attend the installation of officers in the Odd Fellows lodge at this place on that evening, made a pleasant call at this office.

Miss Daisy Trueblood who has been visiting here for several weeks left for her home at Milwaukie Tuesday morning. Miss Trueblood was intimately acquainted with Mamie Walsh, the girl who was so foully murdered.

Rev. Little, who lives over on Chehalem mountain was in town Wednesday with the last picking of his large crop of strawberries. He remembered this office with a very liberal amount of very fine flavored berries for which he will be kindly remembered.

George and Charley Mitchell's mother from Terre Haute, Indiana, and their sister, Mrs. Kelley with her son and daughter from Greencastle, Indiana, arrived here last Saturday and will remain probably a month.

Samuel Hobson sent a limb of Royal Ann cherries to E. W. Allen last Tuesday to be put in a jar for the World's Fair exhibit. It was a fine collection of cherries and will be a credit to Newberg and Oregon as well.

Will Bales and wife are rejoicing over the advent of a bran new baby in their family. Joseph Everest and wife are also rejoicing after the same fashion. Babies seem to be all the rage this season and are not likely to go out of fashion before the fair anyway.

A public installation of officers followed by an excellent supper of ice cream and other dainties, was given by the Odd Fellows lodge at their rooms last Thursday evening, the 7th. Several visitors from neighboring lodges were present.

The first ground was broken for the foundation for Friends church last Wednesday· T. B. Cummings who is foreman of the carpenter work, has the bill in at Mitchell & Clark's mill for the lumber and the work will be pushed as fast as possible.

Rees & Heater have the work on the public school building about completed. They have been given the contract for the work on the college buildings, including the addition to be built and the work on the new boarding hall, and will begin work in a few days.

The committee having charge of the gravel hauling has engaged Mr. Clark's scow and the first load was brought down yesterday morning, a force of hands having loaded it during the night. The hauling began yesterday. when Ed. Blum brought up the first load. The gravel is first class, being of the right size and properly mixed with sand to make an excellent road.

B. C. Miles and lady drove up to Salem last Sunday and returned on Monday. They crossed the river on Maris' new ferry and went up on the south side. Returning by the same route they were just three and a half hours in reaching the river, whereas they have formerly been five and a half hours coming down on the west side the best they could do. A saving of two hours time in that distance is a factor in favor of the new route which the traveling public will soon learn and appreciate. Every dollar Maris put in the ferry will prove a big investment.

C. F. Jewett, secretary of the Pacific Real Estate and Investment Co., of Portland, in a letter to a party here, says that Newberg is not friendly to their fruit enterprise at Dundee. Mr. Jewett is certainly wide of the mark in this particular for while we have heard many expressions of gratification at what their company is doing in the way of improving the country so near our borders, we have never heard a word spoken that would warrant Mr. Jewett in such a statement. He has certainly been misinformed by some irresponsible person.

Do you know where I can get some first class furniture? Yes; you will always find it at W. T. Macy's.

Lamb & Baldwin having dissolved partnership, Mrs. Lamb and Miss Woodward will continue the Millinery and Dressmaking as heretofore. A large and complete stock of Millinery goods will be on hand early in the fall.

John Maris is very much gratified at the patronage his ferry is already receiving from the traveling public. He crossed the river and back again in five minutes on a trial trip the other day which is making good time for a ferry, considering the width of the river.

Mr. Cooper is getting the fair grounds in fine shape. The ball grounds is cleaned up and nicely leveled, and the track for showing driving horses will, with a good shower of rain to settle it be in fine condition. Just as well prepare yourself for a good time at the fair for we are going to have it this fall.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy can always be depended upon, it is pleasant to take and will cure cramp, cholera morbus, dysentery and diarrhœa in their worst forms. Every family should be provided with it. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by C. F. Moore & Co., druggists.

John Holley, spoken of last week as being sick on the mountain, took a relapse and died last Friday. The funeral took place on Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Holley came here last fall from Nebraska, they having been married only about a year. Mrs. Holley has the sympathy of the community in here sore trial.

For twenty-five cents you can insure yourself and family against any bad results from attack of bowel complaint during the summer. One or two doses of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails and is pleasant and safe to take. No family can afford to be without it. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by C. F. Moore & Co.

Dr. Jessup started Tuesday morning on a trip to eastern Oregon and Washington in the interest of the college. He will first go to Union and Willowa counties in the northeastern part of this state, after which he will go to the Palouse and Pataha regions in Washington, where a number of people live who he formerly knew in Iowa.

Samuel Davis, of Dundee Orchard Home is highly elated over the arrival of a fine boy on last Sunday night. He would have preferred a girl, but says he can make good use of the boy in keeping his forty acre prune orchard in trim. Dr. McConnell, the attending physician, has already engaged the little cherub for exhibition in his collection at the fair.

The annual meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society will be held at the residence of Mrs. Jane Blair on next Saturday at 2:30 p. m. We hope the attendance may be full as this is an important meeting. Being the time for election of officers, annual reports by secretary and superintendents of departments and other important business.
MARY E. K. EDWARDS, Pres.

Prof. Hodson arrived home from a trip down the Columbia last Wednesday. He whipped the waters of the Scappoose, angling for speckled trout for a day or two, but "luck" being against him there, he visited the cat fish grounds along the sloughs of the Columbia, hoping to be more successful with a fish of more deliberate movements. The waters were too high there however so he came home and will return to tough beef again for a season.

Jesse Edwards went to Portland Wednesday to look after getting a barge for transporting their brick to the city by way of the Willamette. We understand the railroad company has made some concessions in regard to the switch, but it is doubtful about satisfactory terms being made with the company. They find that a barge can be had at a reasonable figure and special rates have been made on lockage at Oregon City, so that it is quite likely that this route for shipping will be adopted.

Mr. C. H. Shawen, Wellsville, Kan., says: "It is with pleasure that I speak of the good Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy has done my family during the last fourteen years. In the most obstinate cases of summer complaint and diarrhœa among my children, it acted as a charm, making it never necessary to call in a physician. I can truthfully say that in my judgment, based on years of experience, there is not a medicine in the market that is its equal. For sale by C. F. Moore & Co., druggists.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to the A. O. U. W., D. of H. and the many friends who so kindly assisted through the late illness and death of our loved wife and daughter, Mrs. Eudora Lent, and to assure them that their kindness will ever be cherished as a sacred remembrance. S. E. LENT,
MRS. LEAVITT.

Was it Wilson?

Last Friday afternoon G. J. Saunders rode hurriedly into town thinking he had located Wilson, the murderer, and intending to telegraph sheriff Kelley to that effect. He said that while his little girl of ten or twelve years was only a short distance from the house picking berries a man rushed down the hill and ran after her. She screamed at the top of her voice which her mother and the hired girl heard and they rushed out to the rescue, when the brute disappeared in the brush near by. Some one had been in Mr. Saunders kitchen the night previous after something to eat and taking all the circumstances together he concluded that it must be Wilson. A measurement of the tracks corresponded with the size of Wilson's shoes. When Mr. Saunders arrived in town and found Wilson had been captured that day he very naturally concluded that the brute who chased his little girl was caught, but if there is to be any confidence placed in Wilson's statement of where he was while at large he was not the man, and we are forced to believe that there is yet another beast in human form running loose. Shameful as it may be to be forced to the conclusion, it will be wise at all times for parents to avoid letting their girls go from home unprotected. There is little danger from wild animals but from depraved humanity there appears to be great danger.

Saturday's Horticultural Meeting.

A very fair sized crowd gathered at the fair grounds last Saturday afternoon to hear the address of A. H. Carson of Grants Pass, on the subject of "Fruit Growing." Some very fine samples of fruit were shown, among which were a can of gooseberries of the Industry variety, very large and fine, by J. S. Larkin. E. S. Craven and Cyrus Hoskins made a good showing of cherries. Mr. Hoskins has two varieties that are seedlings from the Royal Ann that bid fair to become noted cherries. They are as large as the Royal Ann, about as firm which will make them good shippers, but in color they are a very dark red.

Mr. Williamson of the Rural Northwest, published at Portland, was present and took several subscriptions for his excellent paper.

Mr. Carson by way of introduction said he felt flattered at coming into so fruitful a locality as this to exchange ideas with fellow fruit growers. Complemented Cyrus Hoskins on the cherries he had originated. Continuing he said: I have been in the fruit raising business twelve to fifteen years but I learn something new about the business every day. Anyone who supposes he knows it all in fruit raising is an egotist. We have met to exchange ideas and I will speak from personal experience. Providence has made all the conditions favorable for fruit growing in Oregon and we are now finding this out and turning our attention from grain raising to this a more profitable industry. We are however in the experimental stage and have a great deal to learn yet. Thorough knowledge in relation to soil is a necessity. What kinds to plant, thorough preparation of the soil and thorough drainage must be considered. If the land is not well drained naturally it should be tile drained, as the soil must be dry and warm to produce satisfactory results. Tile should be lain not less than two feet in depth and three feet is much better.

I see many orchards in Yamhill county that are stocked too high. Stock low and let the limbs shade the body and thus prevent sun scalding and bark bursting. In southern Oregon we set yearling trees and French prunes we cut to 15 inches and Silver prunes not over 2 feet for length of body below the limbs. Don't strip off any of the buds or limbs that may start the first season until after growth is over. They add to the growth of the roots and make the tree more stocky and hardy. As a remedy for gum on bark cut out clean to inner bark, then seal up with grafting wax and bind over with muslin. Have found this a very excellent remedy after years of trial. The first year after setting the tree is simply introducing it to its new home. Don't take off any limbs during the growing season but pinch back if they grow to much. Commence after first year to shape the tree, taking off such as you don't desire. Leave three or four limbs to form head of tree. A man should know why he prunes or he should not follow the profession. Men have come into our section of the country from south of us, posing as pruners and judging from the work they have done they must have learned the business pruning osage orange hedges in Illinois. A short time ago I visited the noted Wallace orchard in Polk county opposite Salem and was astonished to see how it had been sheared It is beautiful to look at and that is all that can be said for it. Bartlett pear trees have been stocked four to five feet high and the limbs have grown so thickly that neither sunlight nor air can penetrate the tree to mature the fruit. The limbs are so thick it will be impossible to gather the fruit. If they ever bear any, about the only way to get at the fruit will be to erect a derrick over the tree and climb down into the top from above.

Space with reference to proper portions, sunlight and air, should be carefully considered. Prune trees should be pruned every year. Cut limbs back one-third to one-half for four or five years. The stronger and heavier the limbs the better if we are careful to preserve the fruit spurs.

In peach trees the growth of this year bears the fruit of next year, consequently prune for wood growth and fruit buds. Never prune except when buds are dormant, unless you are pruning for fruit especially, and in this country where our trees set more bloom than they should anyway it is better to prune for a renewal of wood growth.

Mr. Prentiss: If the top of a tree has been started too high when would you cut back for a lower top?

Mr. Carson: Just as soon as the buds are dormant.

Before planting an orchard the ground should be plowed as deep as possible with a subsoil plow with the furrows running in the direction the water flows. This loosens the soil and gives good drainage. I took a piece of thin land on my farm and plowed it twenty-two inches deep with a subsoil plow, and although it was a high dry piece of land I raised watermelons on it, without irrigation, that weighed thirty-five pounds. The land was moist all summer without rain. A man near Ashland owned a farm on which he had not been able to make a respectable living. He sold it a few years ago to an Illinois man at a low price and went around among the neighbors boasting how he had caught a sucker. The Illinois man went to work and warmed up the land by subsoiling, and was soon selling fine sweet potatoes and other vegetables to his neighbors, and he now has a fine orchard on the land and is one of our most prosperous farmers and fruit growers. The greatest fertilizer and about the only one we need in this country is the subsoil plow. We subsoil to make land dry and also to make it wet. That is, first to assist in draining the land from below and then to assist it to retain moisture in dry weather.

Mr. Burrows: Could you subsoil where trees were set last winter?

Mr. Carson: Yes, but not nearer than within four feet of the trees.

Mr. Craven: Is it a detriment to cultivate a crop in an orchard?

Mr. Carson: You may raise a crop within limits. I don't plant anything. Think it is not good business as it is the orchard I am after. Where the owner really needs the land for vegetables or small crops it may be all right but simply as an investment it is poor policy.

Mr. Craven: Is a disk harrow sufficient for cultivating an orchard of four to five years old?

Mr. Carson: Yes, if you get at it early enough to kill the weeds. It is a mistaken idea some have that the ground should be plowed deep in an orchard of this age. A depth of four inches is all sufficient. Deeper plowing cuts the roots and injures the trees

Mr. Robinson: How far apart would you set prunes trees?

Mr. Carson: Twenty feet. In my first setting several years ago I planted a rod apart but I find the limbs overlaping, so I have concluded that 20 feet is near enough. From what I see here I think you can grow peaches profitably if you plant the hardier varieties such as the Early Crawford. The cultivation should be carried on thoroughly, constantly and carefully. You want large fruit to bring the best prices, and the size is really a matter with the grower for his care in cultivation will largely gauge the size of the fruit. Two men may take herds of Short Horn cattle, each of the same strain and with equal merits to begin with. One man turns his out to browse as best they can, while the other gives his the best of care and attention. The difference in results in two years may easily be imagined. The same will hold good in the fruit business. With proper care and attention to details in cultivation and preparing for market the fruit business may be made a success, but with the lack of these failure will be the result.

A man named P. Nice, living with a boy on a farm between LaFayette and Dayton, received a wound in the head Saturday night, the result of practical joking, which fortunately did not prove serious. Nice went to town to get some sugar, and returning with it in a pan, thought he would have some fun with the boy by scaring him. He threw a stick against the house, but instead of frightening the boy it placed him on his nerve, and as the man ran around the house the boy fired at him, the ball striking above and behind the ear, and producing only a scalp wound, which Dr. Littlefield was called upon to dress. The man says he fell to the ground unconscious, but he never spilled a bit of the sugar.—Reporter.
