ATTRACTIVE EXHIBIT

Homesteader Shows Much Skill as a Taxidermist.

Some fine specimens of the taxidermist's art are on exhibition in the window at Lara's, the work of a homesteader, and have attracted much attention.

In order to pass the time away while not engaged in improving his homestead northeast of town, on the Prineville road, Adolph Fischer devoted his attention to stuffing and mounting birds and animals, with marked success as the exhibit shows. His finest piece of work is a large white swan, said to be the biggest bird of the kind ever killed hereabouts. It was shot up the Deschutes. A big owl holding a mouse in its beak, a blue heron, a black barnyard hen and a dog's head are other good specimens.

Mr. Fischer is also skilled in polishing the horns of common cattle. Two footstools having "hookers" as legs and the hides of coyotes as the cushion were made by him.
