BEND PREPARED FOR PERIOD OF WINTER QUIET

INCREASED ACTIVITY IS PREDICTED

THRIFT BIG FACTOR

Plans Made In Advance of Slackening of Mill Operations, And Business Men Are Now Surprised At The Volume of Trade.

While the volume of business handled during December and January may not reach the total for the corresponding months a year ago, as a result of the slackening in mill operations, a survey of local conditions shows that Bend is prepared for just this situation. The closing of the Shevlin-Hixon mill and lessened production of the Brooks-Scanlon Lumber Co., while having an immediate effect, are of such expected short duration that the average merchant is looking ahead to the increased industry and additional activity which will come with the reopening, rather than deploring the temporary slackening of trade.

Information, given out weeks ago, based on lumber market conditions had warned local business men of the probable reduction of production in Bend's basic industry, and plans were made accordingly. Today it became apparent that the lessening of trade resulting from mill inactivity had been estimated at too large a figure, and as an index to the city's prosperity, merchants admitted that they are selling more goods, both for everyday purposes and for the Christmas trade as well, than they had expected.

Greater Prosperity Seen.

Because of the annual mill closing for repairs, the winter season has become a favorite vacation time among those in the lumber producing industry and, as usual, a number are planning to spend from a week to a month in other parts of the country. Few, however, are leaving Bend for good, by far the larger proportion of those leaving intending to return early in the new year. Because of the annual mill overhauling, many will continue to find employment in spite of the closing.

"Business as usual" is the watchword of the downtown district, and it is pointed out that habits of thrift during the period of unparalleled prosperity which Bend has enjoyed will make possible the merging of that era, with scarcely a break, into the period of even greater industrial and business activity which is confidently expected with the resumption of mill operations.

CLAIMS MADE FOR SMOTHERED STOCK

Cattle And Valuable Horses Shipped From Maupin To Terrebonne, Die In Closed Car For Lack of Air.

Claims made by J. Brown of Maupin, following the loss of 25 head of cattle and five head of horses, which smothered to death in a box car billed for Terrebonne, are being investigated by Special Agent D. L. Hynes of the Oregon Trunk. Among the horses was a Percheron stallion, valued at $2000, and a trotting horse which was held at $500. According to railroad officials, the stock was billed by the shipper as range cattle and was loaded by Mr. Brown, who, it is claimed, tightly closed both of the side doors after the stock, which was destined for Mr. Brown's newly purchased ranch near Terrebonne, had been placed on board.

There were no windows in the ends of the car and when the doors were reopened at Terrebonne, one horse out of the entire shipment remained alive.

Mr. Brown was unable to procure a regulation stock car to use in transporting his cattle and horses, it is claimed.

PRINEVILLE POST TO STAGE SMOKER

Under the auspices of Crook County post, American Legion, a boxing smoker will be put on in Prineville on the evening of Friday, December 17. Kid Burns and Carl Martin will appear in the main event, Duffy Knorr of Terrebonne and Joe Hofs of Portland will go on for a six-round battle, and Greek George and Kid Taylor, both of Bend, are listed for half a dozen rounds.

Growth of City Causes Doubling of Ice Output

Improvements now being carried on at the ice factory having as their purpose the doubling of the ice output for Bend during the hot months, are expected to be completed by the end of the week. Compression facilities were already sufficient for the increase, and the chief development being made is in doubling the amount of tankage. This will make possible a daily production of at least 20 tons.

The rapidly growing population of Bend last summer made production at the factory inadequate, and the policy of expansion has been followed up in anticipation of a still greater growth during the coming year.
