JULIAN BYRD — — — — Manager

The Oregonian Washington coraespondent has sent that paper extracts from the report of Engineer Whistler with comments on the subject of irrigation. He says of the Harney project:

The Harney project contemplates the irrigation of land in Harney county, near Burns, by means of water stored on Silvies river, or its tributaries. It is proposed to hold some of the flood waters in the upper valleys along this stream so the arid land surrounding the marshes may be reclaimed and utilized for the production of alfalfa and various other forage crops. The locality is remote from railroads and the principal industry is stock grazing. At present there is little demand for products other than those which can be used for stock feeding.

Whether our isolated condition is urged as a drawback toward the government taking up the work of reclamation or not, is not stated. However, we admit our remoteness from railroad and also the little demand for products at this time. This can not be considered a drawback as it is certain that should the government begin the construction of a reservoir right now, we would have a railroad before it could possibly be finished. It is known that the Sumpter Valley will push on to Burns at the earliest possible date and should the Silvies site be selected, it would certainly be built immediately The object of the government is to reclaim the arid land and develop the west. Such being the case Harney county is certainly the first place to begin. We have the land, productive, and the largest area under one reservoir site at the least cost.

RESERVOIR SITES SOON SETTLED

Such is The Statement Made by Chief Hydrographer Newell

Dr. Marsden has returned from Portland very enthusiastic and greatly encouraged in regard to government aid for irrigation in this valley. He and others of the Burns delegation had a personal interview with Chief Newell, and although that gentleman did not commit himself in any way, talked very favorably, of our scheme. He also stated that Mr. Whistler's report would be ready for consideration upon his return to Washington, and that it would contain sufficient data to arrive at the feasibility of the various projects and the matter of increasing the engineering corps to make estimates, etc, would depend on the report. Our readers already know the report was favorable to our project.

Dr. Marsden had a long interview with Mr. Savage, chief consulting engineer, who was particularly interested in the Silvies project He will be here early in the spring to look over the ground personally and confer with the people here in regard to local organization, to outline the policy of the government and to point out the ways in which those interested can co-operate and assist the government.

The doctor found all of the prominent men more or less acquainted with our project and admitted its magnitude and feasibility. The only drawback being our isolated condition. Had we such facilities there is no doubt but Harney valley would receive the first aid from the government. The adequacy of the water supply, the natural advantages and immense body of vacant land was not questioned.

Dr. Marsden was fortunate to find men who are interested in railroad lines that are looking toward this section and who desire its early development. They at once recognized the importance of the scheme. These men are now our friends and are doing all possible to assist in immediate action.

Mr. Whistler reported on three proposed reservoir sites in Oregon, all of which he considers feasible. The fact that the government has done a vast amount of detailed work here certainly indicates that it means to take up the matter further. This would not be done if the project was looked on unfavorably. Oregon has now something like $3,000,000 to her credit in the reclamation fund. This could not possibly be put into one project, because there is not sufficient government land under any one to justify such an outlay. It is therefore reasonable to consider that perhaps more than one will be selected immediately.

Our prospects for a railroad be found encouraging. There is now talk of a local road from Nampa, Idaho into this section, while the Sumpter Valley is working on plans to build in as soon as possible The latter road is practically an assured fact, but it may be three years getting here.

The meeting of the cattle and sheep men with Chief Forester Pinchot was of material benefit to the stock interests, according to the doctor, and he feels that the forest reserve policy as outlined by Mr. Pinchot will in no wise interfere with grazing. The first consideration would be in the interest of home building and the range equitably apportioned. Mr Pinchot also assured the stockmen that all agricultural land would be thrown out and the lines drawn to conform with the forest lines.

The suggestion of Mr Hanley of this place, that the matter of grazing on the forest reserves be left to local county boards for adjustment was very favorably entertained by Mr. Pinchot and it is possible something of the kind will be done.

The doctor states that the formation of the State Catttlegrowers' Association was urged by Secretary Martin of the National Livestock Association, and is for the purpose of protecting the interests of the cattlemen in the matter of breeding a better class of stock, transportation, adjustment of range, etc He thinks it will be of great benefit to the cattlemen of this state.

The Harney county delegation were busy all the time while in the metropolis, doing missionery work and helping to boom Harney county. The whole delegation feel that they have accomplished a considerable for this section in various ways and are satisfied with the results of their meeting with the National Livestock Association.
