M. Lang found his property satisfactorily cared for, disposed of his beef and arranged with his foreman for changes, improvements and general winter work. He visited the county fair and like all other strangers, found evidence of the wonderful fertility of Harney county soil. In fact he was so favorably impressed with the agricultural possibilities of the section that he may send Mr. Vose and bride out to make their home on the ranch and transform him into a farmer. At any rate Mr. Lang is proud of the showing made along the line of farming and has raised the price of his land—not to sell, understand, but he considers he and Mr. Vose are much richer than when he bought the ranch.
