Killed by Dynamite

Orenco, Ore. — Another dynamite explosion and another man killed is the pathetic story recorded on a farm near Orenco, Friday last, Charles P. Marquis, aged 57, met instant death.

He was a dynamite expert and had been engaged to clear stumps and had placed fifteen sticks under one stump. Fourteen sticks exploded, and the last stick did not go off until Marquis came within range. He was blown high into the air, and his arm and head were blown off.

He leaves a son 11 years old, and a married daughter, Mrs. Fred Humbert. He was divorced from his wife.

A Bad Dodge

Forest Grove, Ore.—An employe of the Jones Monumental Works, by name of A. A. Dotterer, last Monday, was using a hose in cleaning up the backyard and threw the same down without shutting off the water. The nozzle flew up, and to keep from getting wet he dodged backward, dislocating his neck which caused paralysis. He was taken to the doctor, who replaced the vertabra, and he is O. K. again.

High School Girls Win

And say, did you see the girls' game? It was between the Dutch and Irish, and "by the Irish won, but next time there will be a scattering of potatoes. This was all "all-star game." With Vallie Stitt the great light, Edna Pappel and Maude Reed played like a dream. John Muessig and Carl Hughson were chaperons and Beaverton won. "Oh you, High School!"
