THE OFFICIAL PAPER OF GILLIAM COUNTY, OREGON.

The financial statement of Wheeler county as published in the latest issue of the Fossil Journal shows the total liabilities of the new county to be $37134 38 with total resources only $16392.25. Liabilities exceeding resources $20742.13. The Gilliam county statement, in this impression, shows our liabilities to be $28095.53, with total resources of $22930.17. Liabilities exceeding resources, $5765 36. Parties living near the border of Wheeler, on this side of the line, who have been "worked on" with cock and bull stories of Wheeler's superior financial condition, will draw their own conclusions. These statements deal in facts.

The Russian Thistle Again.

BLALOCK, Or., Oct. 29.—(To the Editor)—The matter of securing the destruction of the "Russian thistle" is one of more importance than some people seem to comprehend. The county court took this matter up at its last term and concluded that it was too late to arrange and secure effective work this season.

From best information obtainable it seems that a good many farmers living along the eastern side of the county have destroyed what grew on their places while neighbors do nothing in that line. Without concerted action but little can be accomplished in the way of stamping out this threatened pest. People know so little about the Russian thistle that it is going to be necessary to have samples of the weed in such public places as will give those interested an opportunity of seeing them so they will know the weed when found growing. It would help if persons who are conversant with its growth would write their local papers and give information as to when it starts to grow, when the seed forms, the general appearance of the plant, and the best time to commence destroying them. By stirring the matter up it is likely that an interest would be developed that would result in securing the co-operation of all land owners. The county court stands ready to actively assist not only in way of destroying on the public roads and on public lands but to see that private owners destroy them on their own places. The road supervisor's attention was not called to the matter of destroying thistles until harvest was well under way and at a time when help even for harvest work was hard to get. Some asked, that even at that late date, the county court take measures to compel private owners to clear their land of thistles. This was hardly a reasonable proposition with the crops on hand to be saved, especially in view of the fact that the work of destroying the thistles should have been commenced long before harvest. Those who are the most active in bringing this matter to the front now are deserving of commendation. They would, however have more reason to complain that nothing is being done this season in way of compelling all to destroy the thistles if they had brought the matter up before harvest. I hardly feel competent to write on this subject. It has been less than two months since I knew what a growing "Russian thistle" looked like. They look more like "tumble weeds" than like thistles.

Trusting that we will see more in print concerning this matter I will close.

LONE ROCK.

P. L. Ham was over in the Hay Stack country buying cattle this week.

John M. Brown and Geo. Perry were over in the Wagner country buying cattle last week.

Rev. Brown has returned from a three week's trip to Portland and has commenced a revival meeting. Rev. Bailey is expected to assist him.

We are informed that Geo. Wick and his wife will start for Sumpter this week and intend to make the trip on horse back which is quite an undertaking at this season of the year.

A remonstrance against the petition of Warren Roberts for a retail whiskey license in this town has been circulated among the legal voters and as it has secured a handsome majority the saloon must stay out.
