GET ALASKA TRADE

L. C. Dillman's Advice to the Portland Business Men.

DEVELOPMENT ONLY BEGUN

Owner of Rich Mining Properties Declares There Is Enough Business in Alaska to Keep All the Coast Cities Alive.

L. C. Dillman, who is known among mining men as having sold several of the largest Alaskan properties to Eastern capitalists, is a guest at the Hotel Portland for a few days. For many years Mr. Dillman resided in Spokane where he was probably the largest real estate operator in the State of Washington. He now has his office in Seattle, where it is more convenient for him to look after his mining interests.

Mr. Dillman has very pronounced views on the subject of Portland making an effort to secure a part of the Alaskan trade, which he says can be had by the business men of this city if they will only reach out and take it. Being heavily interested in Alaska and having a large acquaintance among the prominent mining men who operate in that section, Mr. Dillman is thoroughly conversant with the situation.

Development Only Begun.

"The development of Alaska might be compared to only a scratch on the surface to that which will follow in a few years," said Mr. Dillman at the Hotel Portland last night. "The men who are interested there look with favor upon Portland, and it only remains for the business men of this city to make an effort to secure that which they are entitled to. Every city on the coast should get up enough energy to help develop the country, to which Nature has been so kind, and business will surely follow. Seattle, San Francisco, Tacoma and Victoria all get Alaskan trade and there is no reason why Portland should not get her share. If a line of steamers should be started between Portland and Alaska it would be a paying business within a year, in my opinion. Now is the time to get in on the ground floor. There will be enough business for all the cities. The longer the delay the more difficult it will be to get in."

Great Copper Properties.

"There is as much copper in Alaska that more millions will be made out of it than in all the copper mining that has preceded it," said Mr. Dillman when asked about the Copper River district. "There will be enough business developed within the next few years to support all the cities on the coast even if they are ten times as large as they are now. Two railroads are building into the Copper River district now, but there is more copper in sight than they can haul out for several years after they are completed. It will not be long before Alaska will regulate the copper market. The copper output will also outrank that of the gold. Copper is so plentiful that thousands of tons are to be found along the coast in nuggets, having rolled down from the hills. Some of the nuggets weigh from ten to 12 tons. The Bonanza property, which is owned by New York, sunk a shaft 50 feet with a ten-foot cut, encountering a 100-foot ledge of copper ore. It is 60 per cent copper and gives about $20 to the ton in gold. The mineral richness of the copper region is almost marvelous, and when I tell persons about the extent of the deposits it is hard for them to believe."
