Oregon Receives First Grant For Research Project

Oregon's first research project to be financed by a grant from the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis will get underway Saturday.

The grant, amounting to $5,275.00, was part of $1,441,721.00 in awards which National Foundation President Basil O'Connor designated last week for scientific research and professional education in the unceasing battle against polio.

Officials of the University of Oregon medical school where Oregon's grant will be used were enthusiastic over O'Connor's announcement. They pointed out that it represented national recognition of the school's virus research project and that continued progress would entitle the school to be a renewal of the grant each year.

Research made possible by the Oregon grant will be under the direction of Dr. Arthur W. Frisch, associate professor of bacteriology who has been engaged in virus research at Portland for three years. Dr. Frisch and his immediate superior, Dr. H. J. Sears, said that $3200 of the sum would be expended for the salary of a technician and the balance for equipment, white mice and monkeys.

They explained that the award would be used to study the growth of polio virus in tissue cultures in an attempt to adapt certain strains of human virus to mice. Because mice are plentiful and relatively inexpensive, they said, this would permit expansion and intensification of their studies. They also plan to increase the concentration of virus in tissues to allow for performance of seriological tests to determine past infections.

O'Connor said in New York, that the $1,441,721 in March of Dimes contributions would go to 19 universities, institutions and professional organizations. The new awards, effective July 1, will support 34 individual projects for research aimed at preventing the disease and improving treatment methods, as well as for training essential professional persons. In the 12 years of its existence, the National Foundation has spent more than $26,000,000 in this manner.

O'Connor, emphasizing the urgency of scientific efforts to curb polio, said that this year's incidence of the disease is almost keeping pace with 1949's record-breaking epidemic.

The American Way

CHRISTIANITY AND CAPITALISM

By Dr. Alfred P. Haake

Editor's Note: Alfred P. Haake, Ph.D., Mayor of Park Ridge, Illinois, is a noted Economist, Business Consultant, Lecturer and Author.

Many times I have been asked if I believe that private, competitive enterprise is compatible with Christianity. My answer has always been, "Yes." How did I arrive at this conclusion? Many things convince me that Christianity is compatible with capitalism.

To begin with, man is placed here on earth with a somewhat higher status than that of a mere animal; he is given freedom of choice. God never forced man to accept God. The thing distinguishing him from the animal, that makes him a little bit lower than angels, and qualifies him to become the Son of God, is the fact that he is given freedom to choose for himself. He may choose to worship. He may choose not to worship. And whichever he does, he accepts the consequences of the choice that he makes. The same thing applies to his life under capitalism.

Again, under both Christianity and capitalism, we find man is entitled to enjoy the fruits of his labor. This is emphasized in the Master's teaching. The 25th Chapter of Matthew and other passages of the Bible make this perfectly clear. The laborer is worthy of his hire and he is entitled to enjoy the fruits of that work. So private property is endorsed under both systems; under both a man may actually own things.

Along with that ownership goes a responsibility, stewardship. A man can use his freedom and property rightly or wrongly, and take the consequences. Under Christianity it is made perfectly clear that he is given a stewardship. He is accountable to someone for the way in which he uses the gifts he was given—his abilities, and powers and the materials that we call natural resources.

Under the capitalistic system, the individual is likewise responsible for the way in which he uses that which is his. If he uses it rightly he is let alone, but if he uses it wrongly he is subject to punishment.

In the case of Christianity, we have a God whose laws are immutable, unchanging. We may have different notions as to these laws, because God has not completely revealed Himself for human understanding. But it is God who metes out justice and who later metes out mercy and understanding. He does not, however, do away with justice completely, even in the interests of mercy. A God who denied justice would be unmerciful to those to whom justice was denied, even though it might look like mercy to the offenders. The Christian recognizes both justice and mercy, and the justice is acquired or provided for through the power of a Supreme Being.

On the other hand, under our economic system we secure that justice or order from government, under which we establish the kind of conditions which make it safe for people to exercise their freedom without destroying that of other people. But behind that there must be a sanction that is recognized behind the capitalistic system itself is God.

Perhaps you may raise your eyebrows at an economist recognizing God as the final sanction behind the laws governing economics. I do know that the process of economics is governed by competition, by operation of natural laws, and that somewhere there is a Power who sees that right is finally done. One has only to read enough history to know that invariably our sins catch up with us.

On the common basis of freedom of choice, the recognition of private property and contract, the recognition of an ultimate Power or sanction to enforce justice and maintain order, Christianity and capitalism are thoroughly compatible. Both recognize the same fundamental principles.

THE MIRAGE OF PENSIONS

By Morton Clausen

Editor's Note: Morton Clausen was for many years publisher and editor of a weekly-newspaper.

It has been reliably estimated that the total wealth of the United States is approximately 620 billion dollars. Beyond a doubt, this places our nation as the wealthiest on earth.

What comprises this wealth? Everything—all of the land and the water, all oil and mineral rights, all railroads and other transportation facilities, all communication facilities, all machinery industries and commercial establishments, all electric power plants, all homes, furniture, livestock and inventory of goods.

Supposing that all this wealth were placed in one huge pension fund for the benefit of the people of this country, and supposing that fund were administered with the same care and excellence as would be the case of our larger and more successful insurance companies, the annual returns from those 620 billion dollars would be approximately 16 billion dollars.

Were we to divide the 16 billion dollars among the approximately 12 million people in this country over 65 years of age, we arrive at the astonishing fact that the monthly income of the individual from this source would be a mere $111.

But that is not all. Into this gigantic pension fund has gone EVERYTHING. There is nothing left for private investment, and no opportunity for the individual to save anything for himself. All wealth in the form of savings, natural resources and productive opportunity have been used up.

Furthermore, under such an all-embracing pension scheme, providing a mere $111 for each individual over retirement age, this nation would also have to submit to a completely dictatorial government. Such a government naturally would have to be socialistic or communistic.

Under such a pension plan there could be no accumulation of private property. There would be nothing upon the death of the individual to be transferred to one's descendants, no endowment for educational, health, religious and charitable institutions. There could be no private ownership of farms, homes or businesses of any sort. The pension funds would own everything, and everything would be rented from the pension monopoly.

This is not a matter to be taken lightly. Unfortunately there are those well-meaning individuals in private industry as well as in government who are of the opinion that a little government intervention on behalf of the "general welfare" is a good thing. They cannot see that though we might momentarily establish a "middle-of-the-road" policy, to hold such a policy at status quo is impossible, because under such a policy we have to establish a government of bureaucracy and bureaucracy always creates crisis after crisis that call for ever-increasing power.

Nor is the matter of company and industrial pensions to be considered lightly. To be effective, a company pension must be funded. An unfunded pension, based merely on promise to be paid out of market price at some future time, is merely empty promise. Every business and industrial leader and every intelligent labor leader knows this is impossible unless one can have control over market conditions of the future, both as to prices of commodities and wages of labor.

There has been no greater threat to the future of the American economy than the present pension movement, governmental and private. Just how dangerous will be brought into sharp relief and full focus should this nation experience a financial depression comparable to those in the '20's and '30s. We may then find the pension factor the mirage that lured this nation to its doom.

25th Wedding Anniversary Observed By Mr. And Mrs. Allen Case at Daughter's Home

By RUTH F. PAYNE

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Thompson entertained Saturday evening at their home on South Court street with a party complimenting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Case on the occasion of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Present were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Evans, Mr. and Mrs. LaVerne Van Marter, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Robtrt Gammell, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Beckett, George Elder, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Grabill, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph I. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Orwick, Mr. and Mrs. Mervin Wightman, Mrs. Fay Bucknum, Mrs. Ida Grimes, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse C. Payne and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Lovgren. All the members of the original wedding party were present for the silver anniversary observance — Mrs. Harold Becket having attended the bride and George Elder being best man. Mrs. Van Marter assisted the hostess with the refreshments.

Mrs. Wilbur Nichols and two daughters, Phyllis and Kathryn, of Enumclaw, Wash., arrived in Heppner Friday to visit her mother, Mrs. Durward Tash. Other weekend guests at the Tash home were Mr. and Mrs. John Peterson and children, Tim and Pridy, of Aerial Dam, Wash., Mr. and Mrs. Jack McCaleed and three children, Patty, Nancy and Lou and Mrs. Fred Tash and son, Rodney of Hermiston.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ayers made a business trip to Boardman Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin R. Hildebrand and children returned the last of the week from Monroe, Wash., where they spent a fortnight's vacation with her relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville Smith left Wednesday for their summer home on Puget Sound where they will spend the week end holiday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed LeTrace who observed their silver wedding anniversary Sunday, were honor guests at a picnic for which Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Winchester were hosts at their cabin on Willow creek.

Mrs. Bess Huddleston departed Monday for Portland where she expects to remain for a time.

Mrs. Floyd N. Adams left Saturday for Kellogg, Idaho where she will stay for a while with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Roscoe.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Durward Tash were Walter Darren and two sons and Lawrence Nichols of Redmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Evans returned the last of the week from Seaside where they spent several days assisting his mother, Mrs. Emma Evans, to move into the house which she recently purchased. During the past few years, Mrs. Evans has resided in the Hiatt apartments in Heppner.

Mrs. Ida Grimes held "open house" Thursday afternoon at her flower and needle art shop on Main street. Throughout the afternoon, many guests inspected the fine display of needlecraft articles and floral arrangements. A rose was presented to each guest. Mrs. Fay Bucknum, manager of the shop, and Mrs. Ted Pierson served punch and cookies during the opening.

Mrs. Walter Rood of Elgin was a week end visitor in Heppner and was the guest of Mrs. William French during her stay.

Mrs. Kathryn Yarnell and Mrs. Lana Padberg of Ione were shopping in Heppner the last of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil B. Burnstad and two children left Sunday afternoon for Madras where he has accepted a position with the agricultural committee. The house in which they resided on Jones street has been occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Jack Healy.

James Brannon left Saturday for Mt. Vernon where he expects to work.

Mrs. Hazel Brown and two daughters of Portland are spending this week in Heppner visiting relatives. They are guests of her mother, Mrs. Allen Johnston during their stay.

Mrs. Anabel Allison and daughters, Jo and Jan, returned to their home in Portland Saturday after a brief visit here with her father, Frank W. Turner and Mrs. Turner.

Mr. and Mrs. Riley Munkers and children were up from Arlington to spend the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Munkers.

Miss Mary White of Portland was a week end visitor in Heppner.

Gaylord Ingram and Frank Fraters motored to Grant County Tuesday where they will spend several days visiting friends in the Kimeberly section in John Day.

Among those from Heppner shopping in Pendleton Monday were Mr. and Mrs. James Hams, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Furlong and granddaughter, Betty Lou Moyer, Mrs. Hubert Wilson and Mrs. Lucille Ayers.

Rev. Elvon Tull made a business trip to Portland Wednesday. He returned to Heppner Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Bohles moved their trailer house to Condon Tuesday. They were assisted by Marvin R. Wightman.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Parrish who operate a cattle ranch south of Hardman were business visitors in Heppner Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Miller and family have moved to Elgin to make their home. The house in which they lived has been rented to Mr. and Mrs. Ted Hart.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Parrish returned Monday evenng from a 10-day visit to Los Angeles where they were guests of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Parrish.

Mrs. Chris Brown returned Monday evening from Pendleton where she has been a patiet at St. Anthony's hospital for the past several days.
