County Agent Howell this morning reported that the presence of root hematode, or eil-worm had been discovered in parsnips from the New Hope district. This is a serious pest and lives on a wide variety of foods. It causes galls on root crops, but also attacks other plans. Mr. Howell was forced to condemn several sacks of the parsnips and also the patch where they originated. There is no known method of control and no idea is entertained as the way they came here. The pest makes a growth like a wart on root crops. The only way to destroy the pest is by burning. It can be easily carried from place to place on the feet.—Grants Pass Courier.
