WORLD PEACE URGED

all concerned, federal and legislative bodies should adhere strictly to the authority with which they have been clothed.

"The chief temptation to go beyond the bounds within the certain have not arisen in legislatures" he declared. "In their desire to take some action which they conceive to be in the public interest, they sometimes manifest a disposition to exceed their constitutional authority. Such action is usurpation of power. Responsibility for it cannot be avoided by the weak plea to let the law be passed and the courts can decide its constitutionality."

The same necessity for being law-abiding developed upon Americans even when they lived abroad, Mr. Coolidge continued.

"When once they have set foot in foreign land, it is their duty to render obedience to the domestic and international law which is applicable to their duty to render obedience to the domestic and international law which is applicable to their proper actions," he said. "Our government never-earth, has rights over its citizens and their property in whatever country they may be.

"While we do not and cannot undertake to interfere in the application of domestic law to our nationals, unless it contravenes the rights of our government and people under international law, nevertheless the carelessness of some of our citizens abroad in violating domestic law and in assuming an arrogant attitude towards the local inhabitants tends to bring our country into disrepute and endangers the continuance of friendly relations."

President Coolidge reviewed in his speech the enormous sums in pensions and gratuities which the American government has paid to its war veterans. Civil war pensions alone, he said, had mounted to over $6,000,000,000, while the world war compensations have totalled already almost $3,000,000,000, thus showing that the United States indulges its respect for its service men "by something more substantial than lip service."

President Coolidge declared that although greater sums are being spent now than ever before upon the maintenance of an adequate American military establishment, this is "exceedingly moderate" and purely defensive in character.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., May 30.—(AP) President Coolidge arrived by special train at the Western Maryland station at 1:47 this afternoon to pay the tribute of the nation to the memory of the men who gave their lives to their country during the Civil war.

The chief executive was greeted by Governor Fisher and local and state dignitaries and was then driven to the national cemetery south of town.

GLEASON LEADS RACE

the arrival of the crowd, but there was a steady stream of racing cars pouring through the 28 odd gates even after the start of the grand.

Duray set the pace at the start, clipping off the first lap at the rate of 113 miles an hour. His time for the first two and a half miles was 2:12:41.

Leon Duray of Los Angeles, a veteran of the racing world, remained a favorite with the crowd, with Cliff Woodbury of Chicago, Cliff Bergere of Los Angeles and Anthony Gulotta sharing the spotlight. Peter DePaolo, nephew of the famous Ralph DePalma, watched the race from a grandstand in the judges stand. DePaolo, always a contender in recent races, was conspicuous by his work while trying to qualify his car.

INDIANAPOLIS, May 30.—(AP)—After two showers early this morning the skies cleared at 9 a. m. today, assuring ideal road weather for the 500-mile automobile race at the Indianapolis speedway.

An hour before the start of the grand the 2½-mile brick track was drying rapidly.

L. L. Corum and Durck Sarman, both of Indianapolis, smashed their cars while taking a practice spin and were forced to withdraw. Their cars were wrecked but neither driver was seriously injured.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 30.—(AP)—Thirty-one tiny racing creations, all tuned up and ready to go were lined up today awaiting the starting bomb to send them away on the punishing race in the 500-mile classic over the Indianapolis motor speedway. The drivers will share in prizes totalling $100,000 with the winner drawing about $25,000.

All save with one exception are straight eights and capable of burning up the brick oval at better than 115 miles an hour. There was every indication that the race would be the fastest on record and that the attendance would exceed 125,000, the record at a year ago.

The race defied prognostications as there was little tangible in the way of past performances but Leon Duray of Los Angeles stood out as a favorite with the crowd. Duray in his qualification trials won his car dashing over the two and one-half mile brick course at a rate of 124.018 miles an hour, destroying the previous records of 120.218 miles an hour, hung up by the late Frank Lockhart. Lockhart met a tragic death trying to break all speed records in Florida a few weeks ago.

Included among the favorites were Cliff Woodbury of Chicago and Cliff Bergere of Los Angeles, whose performance were almost as brilliant as that of Duray. The sentimental favorite was Ray Keech of Philadelphia, who has the mount Lockhart built for today's race. Tony Gulotta, Italian-American youngster who finished third in last year's race, was not overlooked. Another favorite with the crowd was George Souders, the former Purdue university student, winner of the 1927 race.
