Took Advantage of His Youth

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kip Rhinelander

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Aug. 15.—(AP)—Claiming that her youth and inexperience had been "taken advantage of" by her wife who induced him to forsake family and friends to marry her, Leonard Kip Rhinelander, scion of a wealthy prominent New York family, today had filed a suit for divorce against Alice Jones Rhinelander, daughter of a New Rochelle, N. Y., society merchant.

In his complaint, Rhinelander further charged that the defendant, by her artifices and wiles, dominated him. That he was led into the marriage ceremony, he claimed that she caused him to be separated from his family and friends, causing him "great humiliation."

SEND ARNSPIGER TO SEEK PATROL AT ROGUE MOUTH

The president of the Jackson County Game Protective association, O. O. Arbaugh, was instructed by the association at their meeting last night, to go to Portland and take up the matter of lack of efficient patrolling and game law enforcement at the mouth of the Rogue, with both the state game and fish commission. It is reported that some of the protective game laws have been observed at the mouth of the Rogue for one and one-half years. Report fishermen who have worked below on the Rogue report that practically no steelhead have come up the Rogue for the past six weeks.

The directors of the association agreed to call the Medford Chamber of Commerce to appoint a standing committee on fish and game protection. The fact that practically no salmon have reached the racks at the Hatchery at Elk creek this year was also discussed at the meeting, which was attended by interested Jackson county sportsmen.

TRAFFIC ASSN. TO BEAR SHARE IN RATE PROBE

Rogue River Body Votes Expense For Refrigerator and Icing Charge Hearings—Prof. F. C. Reimer Answers Questions.

The Rogue River Traffic association, at its regular meeting this noon, voted to bear its share of the district's number in connection with the Portland-Rogue River and the chamber of commerce of the city for the pending hearings concerning complaints against the refrigerator car freight rates and icing charges. The Portland and Talent delegations of Wednesday and the Grant Pass delegation of August included the subject.

The association also supported the Southern Pacific railroad's plan of J. M. Kershaw, traffic manager, to make an inspection of the fruit and vegetable crop in Rogue River valley, starting with Talent tomorrow morning.

Prof. F. C. Reimer of the Experiment Station Horticultural station at Talent was present at the meeting and was subjected to a barrage of questions from other present on fruit and frost picking.

Prof. Reimer said that some of the many growers here using the California growers test smudgers and stated that growers contribute the use of the Oregon pipes. He said the storage of orchards in the middle of the pear district was confusing, resulted in errors, and he did not think the regulated frost was as reliable as it should be.

Prof. Reimer answered a varied assortment of questions. He said that the D'Anjous and Bosc should be better value and now that most of the pears had been picked under the prevailing weather delay. He said that Bartlett would be ready to pick next week, and that while some were ready to pick now it was not the rule. He declared that each orchard was a separate problem, and there was no fixed rule for picking. He said that Bartlett should not be irrigated immediately before picking, saying that the light dropping of pears was due to the ground being too wet from irrigation or irrigation ditch seepage.

The meeting discussed the high cost of refrigerator car icing charges, and the chairman of the association was instructed to appoint a committee to confer with the Medford Chamber of Commerce.

EARHART TRACT WORTH $1,500 THINKS BOARD

The board of appraisers appointed by Mayor A. W. Pipes to appraise the property belonging to Miss Jane Harhart that which the proposed southern extension of Central avenue would pass, made their report to the mayor this morning. They appraised the property at $1,500. Miss Earhart set the value of the property at $1,500.

Advised after the telephone this afternoon of the appraisal, Miss Earhart said:

"I have nothing to say, and don't care what the appraisers say."

The appraisal committee is composed of Joe Brown, R. H. Harder, and W. H. Grove and their report is as follows:

"We your committee appointed to inspect the property, consider the conditions and report to you as follows: Property refuses to opening south Central avenue through the Earhart property, report and recommend as follows:

"Without entering into detail, it is our conclusion that the interests of the city as well as all individuals concerned will be protected and conserved through acceptance by the city of the proposition of Miss Jane Earhart with the understanding that the claim by Miss Earhart be reduced from $2000 to $1500."

The next step if the issue is not compromised, would be the condemnation proceedings, which would necessitate a jury trial and a court hearing.

The road more ends with the Central avenue extension.

BANKING RESOURCES SHOW BIG RECESSION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—(AP)—A material drop in the national banking resources of the country between the spring and midsummer calls for classifications reports was announced today by the comptroller of the currency.
