WAR IS BUSINESS BARTLAM TELLS G. PASS VETERANS

GRANTS PASS, June 13.—(Spl.)—Speaking before an audience composed of representatives of practically all ex-service organizations of Grants Pass at the Legion hall Monday evening, Rev. E. S. Bartlam, rector of the Medford Episcopal church, laid bare what he said were the causes of war.

Making direct statements, reciting undisputed instances, Reverend Bartlam stated that "war is a business."

"The last war, the world conflict, could and would have ended two years sooner had it not been for the agreement of the makers of munitions and their allied interlocking interests," charged the speaker. Continuing, he gave the real reason for the present year-old conflict in the Gran Chaco region of South America what he said was a business conflict over the world's greatest unexplored oil fields.

He told in forceful terms of many additional instances of prolongation or actual instigation of wars by large corporations, naming the executives of many organizations known worldwide.

"On the other hand, he said, "there are times when a man feels as if he must fight: Take kidnaping and other of the rackets. Any man would gladly make war if it would do any good.

"Or, he continued, "if one leaves out the question of humanity, were even private individuals the gainer, then war might be more excusable, but the fact remains that war is a business, a mighty big business, and even governments are swayed for the money that results."

The answer is apparent, continued the speaker, that the making of munitions must be removed from the control of big business and vested in the various national governments and these in turn restricted to production for their own uses only.

ASHLAND UNDERPASS TROUBLE IRONED OUT TO PERMIT BUILDING

ASHLAND, June 13.—(Spl.)—An agreement has been reached between Sam Pollard, owner of three and one-half acres of right-of-way land in the path of the proposed under-crossing road north of Ashland, and the state highway commission, and construction will start as soon as the contract is definitely awarded to one of the two bidders who presented estimates to the commission in Portland, according to information received here from state highway officials.

Just when the construction will start depends entirely upon the speed with which R. H. Baldock, state engineer, acts in awarding the contract. He has the final decision in the matter of the deferred contracts, and when this decision is made, machinery and men will be moved into the breach to continue and complete the construction of the under-crossing.

Two bids had been submitted to the commission, and one was tentatively agreed upon by the commission, but since that time, it has become probable that a change in the award may be made.

Steel is being fabricated for the framework of the undercrossing, and the project will be rushed to completion as soon as contract award is cleared.

It was not learned what the terms of settlement were between Pollard and the state highway commission.

ASHLAND, June 13.—(Special) Five thousand feet of lumber were stolen Monday night from Vernon Hooper of the Dead Indian district according to report made by Hooper to local police officers.

The lumber, two by fours, 16 feet in length, had been piled across the road from the Hooper house which is 14 miles from Ashland on the Dead Indian road. The lumber although slightly weathered, was in good condition, having been used for stickers to separate piles of lumber. It had evidently been removed while Hooper was absent from home.
