ENLISTED MEN TO GET PILOT CHANCE IS NEW ARMY RULE

Recruiting Stations Now Accepting Applications — Must Be Hi School Grads

Army recruiting stations are now accepting applications of qualified youths for enlistment in the regular army air corps under the "enlisted pilots training" law recently signed by President Roosevelt, it was stated in a press release received today from Lieut.-Col. B. H. Hensley of Portland, Oregon district recruiting officer. Applications may be filed here with Sgt. Joseph W. Cushman, commander of the recruiting station in the Federal building.

Under the new law high school graduates now in the regular army or those enlisting in the regular army air corps now will be eligible for training and instruction as aviation students, with pay allowances of their respective grades while learning, Col. Hensley said. Details of the program are now being worked out and it is expected that the "go" signal will be issued about July 10, he explained. Eligible men already in the army will be given preference in selection, he added.

Same as Cadet Course

Men formerly ineligible for pilot training in the air corps because they lacked the two years of college or its equivalent required of flying cadets are now offered an opportunity to win "wings" under the same general system of training now in effect for the cadets, the colonel said.

When they have won their "wings" the enlisted men will fly as non-commissioned officers. A plan is now being worked out for the promotion of the non-commissioned officers as their experience increases, the pay rising in accordance with the rating, Col. Hensley stated. The aviation students will be issued $10,000 in government life insurance, the premium to be paid by the government while they are learning and by the men themselves after the training period.

MUST REGISTER ON MOUNTAIN CLIMB

Before attempting to scale Mount Thielsen in the Umpqua National forest or Mount McLoughlin in the Rogue River National forest, mountain climbers must register, forest headquarters here announced today. The regulation regarding McLoughlin was put into effect for the first time last year and Thielsen has just been added to the Oregon peaks for the climbing of which registration is required.

Climbers may register for climbing Thielsen at the Diamond lake guard station, and for McLoughlin at the Lake o' Woods ranger station.

The registration is intended as a safety measure to prevent accidents and protect the lives of mountain climbers, headquarters explained in soliciting cooperative compliance with the regulation.

DRAPER CLEANER FOR BEET SEEDS ADDED BY SAMSON

A new type Draper machine for cleaning sugar beet seed and separating vetch from other grains has just been installed at the warehouse of the F. E. Samson company at the corner of Fourth and Front streets in this city. This fine equipment augments the already comprehensive facilities of this concern for cleaning and separating other seed and grain, bringing the local firm in a position to handle practically all types of seed and grain cleaning.

Installation of a new machine for handling finer seed such as Ladino clover will be made at once, according to F. E. Samson. The new Draper cleaner and separator was fortunately secured before national defense demands called for diversion of machine tools and labor to other channels. The steadily growing industry of sugar beet seed raising in southern Oregon will come to its peak at harvest time here during July.

The Draper equipment, operated by experienced members of the F. E. Samson staff, does a thorough job of cleaning beet seed and effectively separates vetch from other companion grains, it is claimed. Facilities for grinding grain and mixed feeds to exacting requirements are already established at the headquarters of F. E. Samson company.

An invitation to farmers of the Rogue River valley to inspect this new and unique Draper equipment has been extended by Mr. Samson.

FIRESTONE TIRES ON RACE WINNERS

Driving his teammate's car from 15th place to a spectacular victory in one of the most dramatic races ever held at the historic Indianapolis speedway, Mauri Rose won his first 500-mile race on May 30th.

Starting the race in the coveted pole position by reason of his highest qualifying speed of 128.691, Rose was well up with the leaders when his car developed engine trouble after 155 miles and was forced out of the race. Lou Moore, owner of the car which Rose had been driving, asked Rose to relieve Floyd Davis, who was driving another one of Moore's cars and Rose drove to victory at an average speed of 115.117 miles per hour without a tire change or tire trouble of any kind. This was the 22nd consecutive year that Firestone tires have been on the winning cars in this great race.

One by one, Rose passed the other cars in the race until he had his car in 4th position. At the 380 mile mark a broken wheel eliminated Wilbur Shaw, defending champion and three-time winner, who was leading the race at that point. Driving spectacularly around the turns and brilliantly on the straightaways, Mauri Rose soon overtook the other leading cars and swept across the finish line in a final burst of speed. After completing an extra lap around the 2½-mile track, Rose pulled into the pits to let Floyd Davis drive the winning car into victory lane. Davis, however, already was waiting in the winner's pen to congratulate Rose on his remarkable exhibition of driving.

This is only the second time in the history of the Indianapolis sweepstakes that two drivers have shared the championship as co-winners.

Rex Mays, popular California driver, won second place money for the second consecutive year. He was followed across the finish line by Ted Horn, Ralph Hepburn and Cliff Bergere, in that order, all of them riding on Firestone tires.
