Radio Dial Lights

By Johnny Ah n

Adventure note: Murder is carried out deep within the walls of a penitentiary to conceal a counterfeit operation. Faced with the problem of solving the riddle, David Harding runs the risk of another murder and jailbreak on tonight's Counterspy Story . . . at 7 o'clock.

From the Squared Circle: It's a ten round bout between Kid Gavilan and Georgie Small tomorrow at 7 p. m. The clever Cuban welterweight will meet the Brooklyn middleweight in Madison Square Garden. . . with Don Dunphy and Bill Corum standing by for the blow by blow details.

If you're having trouble working your garden and your children into the same day, take a listen to Ozzie and Harriet Nelson tomorrow night. You'll find your own problems are as nothing by comparison.

Before you make any plans for Saturday night . . . June 3 . . . better see what's in store in the senior high auditorium. That eighth of a ton of fat and fun may be rolling your way.

Who were the two sleepy fellows in the Rogue River area this morning . . . with mike cords and antennas dragging?

Conservationists to Meet With Foresters

The monthly meeting of the Southern Oregon Conservation and Tree Farm association will be held jointly with the state forest patrol Friday. It will be a dinner meeting at the Jackson hotel at 8 p.m., preceded by a social hour at 7:30 p.m.

The meeting will take the place of the usual series of meetings between forest patrolment and operators regarding fire control during summer months. Speakers will include Dwight Phipps, Salem, deputy state forester, and Frank Hamilton, district warden.

Sams Valley School Students Visit City

Thirty-one sixth and seventh grade students of the Sams Valley school visited various establishments in Medford yesterday, accompanied by their teacher, Miss Leila Van Amburgh.

They toured the Medford airport, the library, one of the city's two banks and the newsroom and production plant of The Mail Tribune.

Making the tour were Floyd Sherman, Beverly Sanderson, Jerry Sanderson, Clifford Hariston, Allen Gosnell, Stephen Schmauss, Truman Price, Lucile Abbott, Ruth Vincent, Roberta Perry, Patty Peffley, Nancy McDonough, Claude Talley, Verity Day, Jon Frederick, Max Frederick, Shirley Swindler, James Stegall, Robert Gamsby, Susan Day, Marlene Whittemore, LaRene Couts, Lee Sanderson, Jimmie Biles, Sharon Day, Katherine Wright, Melvin Smith, Henry Walter, Linda Nease, Vernola Hutchison and Roy Vincent.

Three class members, Christina Pollock, John Stovall and Deanna Doland, were kept home by chicken pox.

House Passes Bill for Alaska Homesteads

Washington, May 25—(U.P.)—The house yesterday for the second time passed a bill to encourage the settlement of Alaska by granting special inducements to veterans applying for homesteads in the territory.

A similar bil lpassed the house in the 80th congress but died in the senate.

The measure would permit veterans to obtain homesteads of from 320 to 2,560 acres instead of the standard 160 acres. Only 160 acres of any Alaskan veteran homestead, however, could be composed of arable land. The remainder of the additional acreage would be available for specific use, such as grazing. The extra acreages could be obtained only with approval of the interior department.

Your Health and Its Care

By DR. WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

Readers should address inquiries to: Dr. William Brady, 265 El Camino, Beverly Hills, Calif.

HEART DISEASE IN PREGNANCY

The victims of heart disease fall into four different classes. First is the class in which although heart disease is present, no limitation of activity is imposed upon the patient because of it. The second class involves those who suffer slight limitation of activity because of heart disease. The third class suffers moderate limitation of activity and the fourth class suffers marked limitation of activity because of heart disease.

Dr. Brady

Rheumatic fever in childhood is the cause of 90% of heart disease which assumes importance in pregnancy. Perhaps 3% of all pregnancies are complicated by heart disease.

Before the advent of modern obstetrics, infection and hemorrhage were the chief concern of the doctor at childbirth. Control of infection and hemorrhage has been largely mastered in the light of the advance of obstetrical science, leaving heart disease as the chief concern today.

Even in the face of modern knowledge of heart disease, it is perhaps safe to say that about 20% of mothers dying in childbirth or shortly afterward, do so because of heart disease. As a matter of fact, a good share of this 20%—perhaps most of it—covers those who die in the sixth and seventh month of pregnancy.

I am frequently asked about the prospects of pregnancy and childbirth, by young women with heart disease who are contemplating marriage. It is very difficult to offer advice in specific cases, but in general I am inclined to the view that persons in class 3 and 4, previously mentioned, should be very carefully examined by a physician before marriage—and should not marry, if so advised.

There are doubtless many persons who enter into marriage with the thought that contraceptive measures will control the matter of pregnancy. To these people I would say that I do not share their confidence in the matter. More than one person has found out that there is often a difference between what should happen and what does happen.

Over-all statistics in the matter are not available, but in one group of over 200 women with rheumatic heart disease, 17% failed to survive two years after childbirth.

Expert care and management throughout pregnancy will often carry a mother through, where disaster might otherwise be expected. On the other hand, indifferent care might result in disaster, in a case thought originally to be within safe limits. Again, I stress the importance of capable medical supervision of the entire subject—by the physician on the scene.

Many states now require an examination for venereal disease before a marriage license is issued. Ideally, this examination should be complete—in order to ascertain the possibility of other conditions—heart disease among them — which would interfere with pregnancy and childbirth.

The responsibility of denying the possibility of motherhood to a young woman is certainly outside the province of the conductor of this column. A good plan to follow is to be sure your ticker is in shape for any eventuality—before the fair-haired boy comes along. Once he is on the scene, you may be strongly inclined to gamble on the future. You know how these fair-haired boys are.

Vibrator

In the beauty salon where I work I have to handle a vibrator giving reducing treatments several hours a day. Will this injure my health? (Mrs. T. A.)

Answer—No. It is a silly indulgence for the fathead customers.

Embalmed

You said "any food fit for canning or preservation in the first place, does not need embalming with sodium benzoate" etc. Yet I notice on the carton of oleo sold in local market that the oleo contains sodium benzoate. (C. C. W.)

Answer—You quote me correctly.

Shower or Soak

Literature on why you oppose baths and favor showers. (Mrs. A. P.)

Answer—I don't mind a Saturday night bath, and I prefer shower bath to tub bath because the shower is cleaner, in my opinion.
