Wall Street

New York, June 2 — (U.P.) — Steel shares strengthened with U. S. Steel rising to a new high for the year in a late firming movement on the stock market today.

That upturn, restrained though it was, reflected action of the senate in passing a compromise basing point plan which steel companies hold would be beneficial. The buying restraint, it was said, reflected uncertainty over whether or not President Truman will sign the bill now before him.

Mrs. Neuberger Chides Nominee Who Seeks Office

Portland, Ore., June 2—(U.P.)—Maurine Neuberger, who topped the list of democratic nominees to the state house of representatives, announced today that she had written a letter to G. D. Gleason, another nominee, chiding him on his efforts to get pledges of support for speaker of the 1951 session.

Gleason, brother of Mike Gleason, Multnomah county commissioner, was nominated in his first try at the legislature. Mrs. Neuberger, wife of State Senator Richard Neuberger, also won nomination in her first attempt.

Discredit To Democrats

"It seems to me it can only discredit the democrats for a person who has never served before to attempt to become speaker of the house of representatives," Mrs. Neuberger wrote.

"If the democrats fortunately secure a majority of the 1951 house, I shall cast my vote for Mrs. Grace O. Peck for speaker. Mrs. Peck made an outstanding record during the 1949 session.

"It is my hope you will concure in this support."

Juvenile Office Has 33 New Cases in May

With the 33 new cases assigned during the month, on top of 68 cases carried forward from April, the county juvenile department handled a total of 101 cases during May, it was reported today by Juvenile Officer John Richard.

Richard, and his deputy, Miss Helen Busenbark, handled the cases with 43 visits, 315 office interviews and five court hearings. Richard said 10 juveniles were detained in special quarters in the county jail and 20 were detained in their own homes. Six youths were placed in foster homes and one was sent to the Fairview home.

Spruce Budworm Extinction Battle Starts This Month

Portland, Ore., June 2—(U.P.)—A million dollar war against the spruce budworm in Oregon and Washington forests will get underway this month, George Spaur, Oregon state forester, reported today.

More than 75 planes will operate from 25 airports on the mammoth cooperative spraying project, Spaur said. Officials of state, federal and private agencies have joined in the fight to rid northwest forests of the pests.

Must Hasten Spraying

Entomologists said the budworm needed only three years of infestation to kill the biggest trees. For this reason, Spaur said, it was necessary to hasten spraying this year of those areas in which the worm has fed for the last two years.

Because of the growing habit of the budworm, all spraying must be done in June, Spaur said.

Greatest damage by the insect has been in the Blue mountains of northeastern Oregon, south and east of Pendleton. Lesser areas of infestation were found in the Cascade mountain range at Mt. Hood, east of Eugene and near Roseburg, Ore. An area of infestation also has been found east of Walla Walla, Wash.

Washington Bakery Strike Seen Likely

Seattle, June 2—(U.P.)—A strike of 1,200 bakers in Seattle and Spokane appears likely unless an agreement with employers is reached by tomorrow.

William T. McGuern, vice-president of the International Bakery and Confectionery Workers (AFL) said 800 bakers in Seattle and 400 in Spokane would go out.

McGuern said strike action would be taken at a special meeting of local 114 in Portland Saturday.

McGuern said a total of 3,000 workers in the area would be affected.

The union is demanding a five-consecutive day week, seven-hour day and time and a half for holidays and Sunday work.
