Flooded Factories To get Federal Loans

Denver—(U.P.)—President Eisenhower has issued an executive order authorizing federal loans to replace damaged defense plants in the flood disaster area of the East.

He also approved of a plan to speed-up tax writeoffs to aid the plants.

The aid program would cover only plants in areas designated by the President as major disaster areas.

The factories would have to be manufacturing defense or defense supporting items to be eligible. The President issued an executive order authorizing the loans under terms of the defense production act.

He also approved an amendment to the Office of Defense Mobilization tax regulations which permit speeded-up amortization of plants built or expanded for defense purposes.

Dead line for Sunday Classified is at noon Saturday.

SUGAR AND THE TEETH

Ever since the inspired huckster invented the slogan "A Clean Tooth Never Decays"—a fiction which sold a lot of brushes and glorified soap—the dentists have bene advising people to brush their teeth morning and night, after each meal or at least every day. They imply that this silly rite will prevent decay of the teeth, although the most zealous toothbrushers in the world have the greatest amount of tooth decay—the American and English peoples. The people who h-a-v-e the least tooth decay never brush their teeth at all—the people of Tristan da Cunha.

The dentists cooperated with the commercial interests by developing and promoting the idea that particles of sugar clinging to the surfaces of the teeth, particularly in crevices between the teeth and at junction of gum and tooth, undergo fermentation by lactic bacilli, which are naturally present in milk and other foods, generating lactic acid, and the acid eats or dissolves the enamel, the beginning of a cavity.

Upon this premise the dentists base their prohibition or restriction of sugar and sweets in the diet, particularly the diet of the growing child.

Again everybody's out of step but Brady. Some narrow gage dentists dispose of me and my teachings by asking what I know about dentistry. I have to admit it, except that I know and appreciate good dentistry when I see it or get it. So I try to change the subject by asking what the average dentist knows about nutrition.

Mind you, I believe excessive consumption of sugar, sweetened beverages, candy, ice cream, sweetened cookies, cakes, puddings, pastries and sugared or syruped breakfast food is an important factor of dental decay, but not because sugar favors lactic acid fermentation. It unquestionably does, but I say it is absurd to think the lactic acid so produced in the mouth can dissolve enamel from the teeth. I contend sugar does no direct harm, but the individual who consumes too much sugar just doesn't have normal appetite or normal hunger for more essential food, particularly vegetables, fruits, salad greens, which are essential for good nutrition.

If production of lactic acid from sugar were the objectionable feature of excessive consumption of sugar, the regular use of an alkaline solution to rinse the mouth after eating would prevent dental decay.

It is all right to wash the mouth with plain water, water containing a pinch of soda, or (as I prefer) soapy water, whenever you wish. But be adult about it—don't kid yourself that a "powerful" germicide or antiseptic can do anything that one of these simple washes will not do.

Perhaps the best prevention of tooth decay is (1) Consume not less than 1½ pints of milk daily and (2) Eat some unsugared fruit last thing every night.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

X-ray Evidence

Have Ben Told the only way to test a person for tuberculosis is by X-ray. Is this correct? (E. A.)

Answer—Only by study of the patient and physical examination or repeated examinations can the physician determine whether the patient has tuberculosis. X-ray evidence confirms the physician's opinion, but is not by itself conclusive.

Skimmed Milk

Niece thinks her children get the necessary benefit from skimmed milk, and I think they need whole milk, on account of the butter fat and vitamin A. Would appreciate your advice. (J. J. K.)

Answer—The children derive considerable benefit from skim milk (milk from which cream has been removed), but you are right, the cream (butter fat) contains most of the vitamin A, all of the D in milk.

Obsolete Pile Operation

After one doctor had fooled around for two years without giving me any relief I wrote you, and you recommended Dr. ——, who has cured me of piles by the comparatively painless injection treatment. A neighbor of ours has undergone two operations, attended with plenty of pain and disability, and still suffers the same as before . . . (A. F.)

Answer—The old guard hates to give up the crude. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for pamphlet on PILES.

NO WEDDING NOISE

Winsted, Conn.— (U.P.)—City officials asked clergymen to urge that wedding parties omit traditional horn-blowing, which they consider not only a nuisance but a menace to startled motorists.

CANINE CELLAR

Searcy, Ark. — (U.P.) —Two storm cellars are in the backyard of one home in this "Tornado Alley" town. E. E. Blackburn's cousin built one storm cellar for himself, the other for his dog.
