The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Hodgkins' Disease

Several times a year I have to write about Hodgkins' disease because so many people ask about it. A young man will get the disease and then his unhappy parents will will suffer an agony of worry as to what it is and what chance the boy has of recovering. Actually, Hodgkins' disease is something like a cancer. The difference is that usually the nodules appear all over the body about the same time. They may show up first in the sides of the neck, and then an x-ray film may show that there is plenty of the material in the chest cavity. There may be some in the arm-pits, in the groin, and there may be some in the abdomen.

Dr Alvarez

The cause appears to be a virus, for which there is no specific drug treatment. The nodules melt away like magic under x-ray treatment, and I have seen the patient then stay well for as long as eight years before he started to get trouble again. Then he came back with daily fever and much itching of his skin.

There are some drugs like ThioTEPA which helps, and I hope that before long we will have a drug that will really cure these people.

A Sore 'Tail Bone'

Dozens of people ask what to do for a sore tail bone, and one answer is, don't have it operated on. Years ago, surgeons used to takes these little bones out, but the results must have been about 100 per cent poor because today the operation is no longer done. In many cases the pain around the little tail bone is nervous in origin; there then is no sign of arthritis or other disease in the region. In some cases there may be a little fibrositis, perhaps stirred up by a fall in which the patient sat down hard. Usually the best thing to do is to wait until the pain goes away. Hot baths and aspirin may help.

Achondroplasic Dwarfs

Many unhappy mothers ask me what can be done for an achondroplasic dwarf and I have to say, I don't know, and I rather doubt if any treatment will ever be found because, by the time the child is born, the harm is done. Something has gone wrong in the development of the long bones in the arms and the legs. The body is well formed, but the head is usually a bit too large. These children are often bright; they can earn their living in a number of occupations, and some of them marry.

I was just reading an article on the inheritance of this trouble in Northern Ireland, written by Dr. A. C. Stevenson. He say that in most cases the trouble is thought to be a "mutation." This means that one of the genes, which has to do with the growth of the ends of the long bones, mutates or changes. There is another type of achondroplasia which can run through several generations of a family. In this type, several brothers and sisters will have the defect. The disease appears in many animals such as dachshunds.

If an achondroplasic child gets past infancy, he (she) is likely to be strong all his days. There seems to be nothing wrong with him except for his bones.

Dr Alvarez hopes his readers will understand that it would be impossible for him to answer requests for information or to attempt to diagnose by mail.

Portland Food Prices Continue To Increase

San Francisco — (UP) — Retail food price levels in Seattle and Portland continued to climb during May reaching an all-time high for the period in Seattle and jumping a sharp 0.09 per cent in Portland, the regional Bureau of Labor Statistics announced here today.

In Portland, higher prices for fruits, vegetables and meats were the principal factors behind the increase in retail food price levels.

COMEBACK—Frances Farmer sits in lobby of the Sheraton-Palace Hotel in San Francisco awaiting the transportation that will take her to New York on her comeback trail as an actress after 14 years away from the stage and screen. Once one of Hollywood's top young stars, Miss Farmer quit after a series of stormy court appearances.
