Famine Made Use of to Convert the Revolutionary Populace of the Empire.

EXCITING SCENE FOLLOWS

Minister Stolypin Is Greeted With Hisses and Calls to Resign, While His Fellowes Are Hooded as They Leave House.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 25.—The second appearance of Interior Minister Stolypin in the lower House of Parliament today, was marked by an interesting scene about the governmental measures for famine relief, especially the alleged orders that relief be given in the districts where agrarians have secured or to the wives of families of peasants imprisoned as revolutionists, was the occasion for another exciting scene, but the demonstration was again suppressed by the radical group, and the majority generally did not participate in it.

The storm broke when M. Stolypin, after giving a serious reply to the criticism of his response by Prince Lvoff and other Moderates, turned to M. Aladin, who made one of his virulent speeches, and declared that, as an executive officer of the government, he would not notice the calumnies or fables of the left.

The radicals thereupon manifested their disapproval, hissing and shouting "assassin," "liar," "coward" and "resign!" The demonstrations for some time continued, in spite of the efforts of President Mouroumstef to restore order.

Crowd Comes to Hear Explanation.

The announcement that M. Stolypin would take the rostrum today and the expectation that the report of M. St. Chappin, chairman of the parliamentary commission sent to Bialystok to investigate the massacre of Jews, would be presented, drew a large audience to the Tauride Palace, but the presentation of the Bialystok report was postponed until Thursday, on account of the delay in printing it.

M. Stolypin arrived at the House only five minutes before the opening of the morning session. After giving figures showing that the expenditures for famine relief in 1906 amounted to $7,000,000, M. Stolypin said the Ministry would soon come before the House with a budget for a sum almost as large, required for this year, though the famine conditions were exaggerated. He then took up the subject of withholding relief as a punitive measure in disorderly districts, which was the keynote of the interpellation, and entered a general denial.

Peasants Destroyed Granaries.

The Minister explained that such action had been taken where the peasantry, in their unreasoning wrath, had destroyed the magazines of grain accumulated for their benefit. This, however, was only temporary, and in thousands of instances had been given to families of participants in disorders.

The statement that the government was refusing to permit the relief of the suffering populace by private means, continued the Minister, was based on a misunderstanding. Free dining-rooms which had been opened in several districts had, indeed, been closed, because the Minister alleged that this was done only where the revolutionists were using them to spread their propaganda, and in the future, where private assistance was given, the Ministry would welcome it with the greatest favor.

There were no audible expressions of disapproval when M. Stolypin finished his explanation. The first four speakers who followed greeted him with the greatest courtesy, though criticizing the accuracy of his information and the wisdom of the governmental measures.

Aladdin's Bold Challenge.

M. Aladin then mounted the rostrum and boldly challenged the truth of M. Stolypin's explanation. He stated that he had documentary evidence that the policy of converting the revolutionary populace, by allowing them to starve, was devised by the late minister of the Interior, Gurko, who, after standing sponsor to the idea several times when on the Agrarian Commission and during the Ministry of M. Muraviev, was now placed in charge of the agrarian relief by M. Stolypin.

The speaker declared that the House was ready to appropriate the money asked for by M. Stolypin, but the disengagement must be entrusted to a Parliamentary Commission, where three-fourths of it would not adhere to the fingers of the "bureaucratic thieves," who occupied high as well as low places in the Ministry.

"Not a single kopek to a Ministry in which is such a man as Gurko, who now sits smiling and affects indifference at my right," said M. Aladin in conclusion.

After a more temperate address on the part of M. Rodicheff, a leader of the Constitutional Democrats in the lower House, M. Stolypin again ascended the rostrum. The demonstration occurred at the end of his second explanation.

During the time when the leaders of the Constitutional Democrats and of the Group of Toll got together and agreed on the text of the following resolution, which was almost unanimously adopted: "The lower House of Parliament, finding that relief of the famine-stricken population has been prevented in the past by the intervention by the Ministry on political grounds, and will be so in the future, so long as the present irresponsible Ministry is in power, finds it necessary to organize assistance through public establishments and entrusts the Agrarian Commission with the elaboration of a plan of relief under thorough Parliamentary control."

Ministers Hooded Out of Hall.

The Ministers, after the vote, left the hall amid renewed cries of "resign!" Much indignation is expressed in Parliamentary circles at the publication of the report made by War Minister Rudiger by General Bader, commander of the Bialystok garrison, relating the charges that the Jews were responsible for the massacre by throwing bombs and firing revolvers at Orthodox processions and attacking government buildings after order had been restored. General Bader also characterized the conduct of the troops as splendid and says the newspaper accounts of the excesses are deliberate lies.

The Novoe Vremya is conducting a campaign for the execution of the local authorities of Bialystok, and today printed an enumeration of the revolutionary crimes committed there this year, filling two columns and detailing three separate cases as justification for the racial feeling.

WHOLE TOWN FIGHTS FIRE

Conflagration Threatens Sawmill Village of Milton, Wash.

TACOMA, Wash., June 25.—(Special)—The entire population of Milton, and Edgewood, small towns on the Seattle-Tacoma interurban road, worked all Saturday night until dawn yesterday morning fighting a fire at Milton that threatened for a time to destroy the sawmill and many adjoining houses. The fire started Saturday afternoon in a pile of slabswood near the mill. No particular attention was paid to it during the afternoon or early evening, but at midnight it had gained such proportions that the night watchman could no longer hold it in check with the mill fire apparatus. He gave the alarm and routed out all the men in Milton to work. Bucket brigades were formed and gunnicks were used to fight the fire. The fire was finally checked and burned itself out.

MITCHELL TRIAL BEGINS

The girl came to Seattle shortly after Creffled was killed. She had been under the man's power for two years, and was one of those who believed he was innocent. The girl says she refused to see Mrs. Starr today because the latter came here to assist her brother in his fight for life. Word was taken to her at the city jail, where she is in charge of the police matron, that the sister was anxious to have a talk with her.

"My sister was despatched God by command here to testify in this trial," said the girl. "I do not care to have anything to do with her."

Claims to Have Revelation.

It developed that Esther recently wrote to Mrs. Starr at Portland advising her to remain away from the trial. In this letter she claimed to have had a revelation from God through Creffled saying that Mrs. Starr was not to come here or take any part in the trial—especially by testifying in her brother's behalf.

TROOPERS CLEAR STREETS

Pennsylvania Constabulary Called Out by Street-Car Strike.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., June 25.—The mob spirit that was rampant in the streets of Allentown last night following the strike of Lehigh Valley Railway Company conductors and motormen, was under control this evening by reason of the presence of Troop C, State Constabulary.

The constabulary controlled the city's main thoroughfares, keeping everybody moving. When they rode up the street from the railroad station to the fair grounds this afternoon the crowd gathered at the camp point numbering 4000 persons, hooted and jeered them.

After a brief halt on the fair grounds, Lieutenant Smith brought his men down the street as though on parade. When they reached the transit company's transfer point, where many people were congregated, the men charged the crowd of the street. Within a few minutes five men were placed in jail by the troopers.

Mrs. Longworth Visits the Yacht She Christened.

COURT MARSHAL PUZZLED

Unable to Arrange Order of Precedence at Sunday's Dinner Given by Kaiser, Women Proceed to Table Unescorted.

KIEL, June 25.—On invitation of Emperor William, Congressman and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth took with them his American-built yacht Meteor, this afternoon. The Emperor, attended by Admiral Bismarck, and General Bock, of Kiel, in 1902 as a member of the suite of Prince Henry, received Mr. and Mrs. Longworth as they came alongside and showed them over the yacht. Mrs. Longworth having said one of the objects of her husband and herself coming to Kiel was to see the yacht she had christened February 22, 1902, at Shooter's Island, New York harbor.

At the dinner last evening on board the Hamburg, the Emperor took out Princess Estel, and the other ladies followed without escorts, because it was difficult for the court marshal to arrange their order of precedence. The Princess sat opposite the Emperor, on the Emperor's right Augustus of Prussia, fourth son of the Emperor, and on the Emperor's left sat Mrs. Longworth.

On the Emperor's right was the wife of the Grand Admiral Von Koester, and on his left Baroness Von Tschirsky, wife of the Foreign Secretary.

Mr. Longworth was guest at the Kiel Yacht Club dinner tonight, at which there were 300 persons present, including all the high naval officers here. Mr. Longworth had a seat at the Emperor's table and other American guests sat further down. The Emperor, as usual, in his toast, proposed the prosperity of the club, and Mrs. Longworth followed with a toast to the Emperor.

The Emperor has been uncommonly busy with state business and the real reason he withdrew from the race yesterday, as it now appears, was because he was ten minutes late in starting. The judges did not wait for him, but gave the signal precisely at 9 o'clock. The Emperor, who had been on board the Hamburg, had not allowed himself time to reach the Meteor, though he came on a swift torpedo-boat. He went aboard the Meteor followed by his secretary with a large packet of documents, which, however, the Emperor did not touch.

Bad Stomach Makes Bad Blood.

You can not make sweet butter in a foul, unclean churn. The stomach serves as a churn in which all ingesta, work up and disintegrate our food as it is being digested. If it be weak, sluggish and foul the result will be torpid, sluggish blood and impure blood.

The ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery are just such as best serve to correct and cure all such derangements. It is made up without a drop of alcohol in its composition; chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead of the commonly employed alcohol. Now this glycerine is of itself a valuable medicine, instead of a deleterious agent like alcohol, especially in the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia and the various forms of indigestion. Prof. Finley Yellinwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says of it:

"It is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon indigestion, dyspepsia, especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (intestinal inflammation of stomach), as it has a most efficient power. Glycerine will relieve many cases of pyrosis (heartburn) and indigestion, especially if there is chronic intestinal dyspepsia. It is useful in various forms of indigestion, and in certain forms of chronic catarrh of the stomach and its accessory functions of the intestinal tract."

When combined, in just the right proportions, with Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherry bark, Queen's root, Blood-root and Mandrake root, or the extract of these, as in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, there can be no doubt of its great efficiency in the cure of all stomach, liver and intestinal disorders and derangements. These several ingredients have the strongest endorsement in all such cases of such eminent medical leaders as Prof. B. Burdell, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, Chicago; Prof. Robert A. Hare, M. D., of the Department of University of Pa.; Prof. Laurence Johnson, M. D., of the Department of University of New York; Prof. Edwin K. Hale, M. D., of Hahnemann Medical College, Chicago; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., and Prof. John King, M. D., Authors of the American Dispensary, and scores of others among the leading medical men of our land. Who can doubt the curative virtues of a medicine the ingredients of which have such a professional endorsement?
