The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation

Black Moles Are Dangerous

A while ago, at a meeting of a great medical association, Doctors George T. Pack and Jeff Davis, of the Memorial-Center for Cancer, in New York, warned people that they should quickly have removed any black mole or black warty growth or black birthmark, especially when it is on the external genitalia or around the mouth or nose or rectum. Dangerous, also, are those which appear in a nailbed, or on a leg, a palm, or the sole of a foot. The danger is that such black moles can suddenly become inflamed, and then they can turn into black cancer, a highly malignant form of the disease, which is likely to scatter all over the body.

Dr. Alvarez

If I were to find on my body a black mole I would quickly have it removed by a surgeon. I would ask him to cut fairly widely around and below it so as to be sure to get all of it. I would not wait for the thing to start growing. I would be particularly anxious to have the mole or wart removed if it were on the back of my neck or on my waist-line where it would be rubbed and irritated by my collar or my belt.

I would hurry to have the black mole removed 1) if it increased in size, or darkened in color; 2) if inflammatory changes appeared in or around it, or 3) if ulceration, bleeding, crusting, pain, discomfort or itching appeared.

The terrible thing many a person does with a black mole is to let some inexpert person tinker at it with salves or pastes. Such treatment leads almost always to the death of the person.

Germs in Hospitals Resistant to Antibiotics

Largely because most persons nowadays, when they get a little fever or a little cold, insist on having penicillin, and because we doctors have not resisted as well as we should, this desire of people to be given strong drugs when they do not need them, a more and more serious situation has been developing in hospitals where certain very dangerous bacteria have become immune to several of the antibiotics. The situation is similar to that in which many strains of flies and other insects have been bred up—strains which are immune to DDT. Dr. Fekety, who recently reported on some outbreaks of so-called staphylococcal disease in New Jersey, found that in 25 out of 28 cases in which suppuration began in a hospitalized patient, the situation was dangerous because the germ was immune to the usual antibiotics.

Fortunately, as yet, there are a few of the less-commonly used antibiotics which will combat the growth of these immune organisms, but if we go on using antibiotics every day, needlessly, we are likely to get into some very serious difficulties.

Pre-Suez Relations May Be Resumed

Paris — (AP) — United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold reported Saturday the Arab nations were willing to resume pre-Suez economic and cultural relations with Britain and France, informed sources said.

They said Hammarskjold told Foreign Minister Christian Pineau and Prime Minister Felix Gaillard that he found the Arab nations unwilling to cut themselves off from the West.

The UN chief met with the French leaders during a 24-hour stopover here on his flight home to New York from the Middle East. Hammarskjold had spent the Christmas holiday with UN troops in the Gaza Strip and then talked with Arab leaders.

Pineau asked Hammarskjold to stop off in Paris despite a fog and low clouds that closed in the Paris airport Friday night. Hammarskjold's commercial plane already was en route to Shannon, Ireland, when a break in the clouds over the French capital allowed it to change course.

U.S. Can Lead In Satellites

Pasadena — (AP) — American leadership can and will be restored in the field of satellites, Dr. Robert Gordon Sproul, president of the University of California and Grand Marshal of Pasadena's 69th annual Tournament of Roses, said Saturday.

Dr. Sproul further said at a press conference that there is need for greater competition in classrooms in order to prepare future scientists and that a way must be found to give recognition to those who are scholastically inclined.

In returning to the satellite race, he emphasized that "the search for fundamentals is the paramount issue rather than the dramatic and spectacular facet of hurtling an object into space, though the psychological implications of such feats must not be overlooked."
