Opinions Aired at Meeting On Proposed Coast Park

Reedsport—Arguments for and against the proposed establishment of a 35,000-acre national seashore recreation area between the mouths of the Siuslaw and Umpqua rivers were aired at a meeting here last week.

An estimated 150 persons heard an explanation of the plan by officials of the national park service. Dan H. Thompson, chief of recreation resource planning, Washington, D.C., was in charge of the delegation.

Support from persons attending was given both to spokesmen for leaving development of the area to local and state governments and to those supporting federal development.

Tree Farm

George Harrington, resident forester at the Crown Zellerbach Tahkenitch tree farm, said that several Oregon payrolls depended on lumber produced on the tree farms' 10,000 acres, 3,000 of which are included in the proposed federal development.

Harrington stated that recreation should be developed by state and local governments while Martha Ann Platt, Portland, supported the recreation proposal incorporated in Sen. Richard L. Neuberger's Senate bill 1526. She spoke for the Oregon Audobon society and as conservation chairman of the Mazamas.

Information Session

William E. Walsh, Coos Bay, ex-president of the state senate, who presided at the hearing, said the meeting was an information session, not a "debate."

NPS officials said the "study area," which may or may not coincide with the boundaries drawn for the national seashore recreation area, contains 13,115 acres of federal land including national forest, 522 acres of state-owned Jesse M. Honeymoon state park, 320 acres of county-owned land, 14,963 acres of privately owned land and 4,250 acres of Cleawox, Siltcoos and Woahink freshwater lakes.

It was explained that although there is no provision for direct reimbursement of taxing units for revenue loss by conversion of private property for public use, the recreation area should produce far more revenue than ever received from taxes.

Property Cost

Cost of property acquisition in the "study area" was estimated at $3 million.

Opposition to the plan was voiced by A. J. Meyer, general manager of the Gardiner branch of International Paper company, because of a lack of information on its possible effect.

The area has 24 miles of coastline and varies in depth from the beach from about one to six miles.

A similar meeting was also held in Florence.

Portland Hospital Given Cash Grant

Portland—(UPI)—St. Vincent hospital here Thursday received a cash grant of $3578 from the Maybelle M. Dant Equipment fund of the Oregon Heart Association.

The money will be applied toward purchase of equipment for the establishment of a cardio-respiratory laboratory for open-heart surgery. There are no private hospitals in Oregon presently equipped to perform this type of operation.

Officials at the hospital said two surgical teams are training for open-heart surgery.
