Cub Scouts

Pack 4

Cub Pack 4, Oak Grove and West Side schools, held their first fall meeting last Thursday at the Oak Grove cafeteria with approximately 75 attending.

The flag ceremony was conducted by Boy Scouts of Troop 4, including Steve Eichelberger, Rick Schmidt, Barry Goodroad, Dick Hover, and Larry Tuttle.

Committee Chairman Gerald Keesee introduced the committee and den mothers including George Bryant, C. F. Shinn, W. H. Howell, Robert Phillips, Dean Eppinger, Donald Collins, Mrs. W. H. Howell, Mrs. S. B. Sandberg, Mrs. Douglas Lamb and Mrs. Martin Herrin. It was announced that Mrs. William Salade and Mrs. Knox will be new den mothers for the West Side group.

Awards were presented including three-year pins to Douglas Rowden, Kraig Parsons and Steve Sandberg, and a silver arrow to Steve Sandberg.

Cubmaster George Bryant welcomed the group, especially several new boys and their parents. An appeal was made for new den mothers and also a leader for the Weblo Den.

Songs were sung by the group followed by showing of several cartoons. Refreshments were served followed by a social time. Cakes were won by Mrs. Shinn and Barry Goodroad.

Donald Nelson, Wartime Head of Production, Dies

Los Angeles –(UPI)– Donald M. Nelson, 70, former war production board chief and head of a motion picture producer's association, died today.

Nelson, who rose from a newsboy in Hannibal, Mo., to a top executive of Sears, Roebuck and Co., suffered a stroke Aug. 23 at a party honoring him and his wife, Lena. They were marred last Feb. 12.

Apponted by FDR

The late President Franklin D. Roosevelt appointed Nelson as head of the War Production Board during World War II, a post he held for three years. When he resigned in 1944, Nelson was appointed as personal presidential representative to foreign governments.

After the war, he became president of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers and later was chairman of the board of the Electro-Chemical Research Co. of New York.

Began With Sears

Born in Hannibal Nov. 17, 1888, Nelson began his business career with a modest job in the clothing department of Sears, Roebuck and Co.

He climbed quickly to the general merchandise office as assistant manager and then general merchandise manager from 1930 to 1939 when he was named executive vice president of the company's Executive Committee. He retained that position and that as vice president of Mission Pak Co. until his appointment to the wartime post.

Special Train for Dedication of Dam

Portland–(UPI)–Pacific Northwest Electric Railway Association said today it would run a special train from here to The Dalles Oct. 10 for dedication of The Dalles Dam by Vice President Richard Nixon.

Leo H. Stodieck, association secretary, said the train will be limited to the first 600 persons who buy tickets for the trip. It is scheduled to leave Union station here at 7:30 a.m. and will travel Union Pacific tracks to the dam on the Oregon side where buses will take customers to the Washington side.

Dedication of the $250 million Columbia river project is scheduled to begin on the Washington side at 10:30 a.m.

Florence To Favor Access Road Buying

Florence –(UPI)– Mayor E. A. Davidson said today that in his opinion most local citizens would not object to the National Park Sedvice buying public land west of Higrway 101 and some land tracts east of the highway to give more access to Siltcoos and Woahink lakes.

Davidson also said that he was "misunderstood" in news reports to the effect that most people in the Florence area favor the proposed Oregon Dune National Seashore plan of Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.).

City Councilman Dr. Thomas M. Hunt said that his own survey indicated "about 95 per cent of the people in this area are opposed to the Neuberger bill."

The Florence city council early this year passed a resolution against the National Park plan.

Epidemic of Sleeping Sickness Said Subsiding in New Jersey

Trenton, N.J. –(UPI)– The death toll in an epidemic of deadly encephalitis that has stricken southern and central New Jersey rose to 13 today but a state health official said the incidence of the disease, commonly known as sleeping sickness, is declining.

The latest victim was identified as a 10-year-old boy in Monmouth county, one of six counties hit by the outbreak.

Cases Dropping Weekly

Dr. Roscoe P. Kandle, state health commissioner, said that what he described as a "moderate epidemic' 'is declining. He said the number of reported cases has been dropping weekly since Sept. 7.

Latest figures from the state health department showed 23 suspected cases of eastern equine encephalitis, of whom 13 have died. The department said five were definitely confirmed as encephalitis victims. Of these, four died.

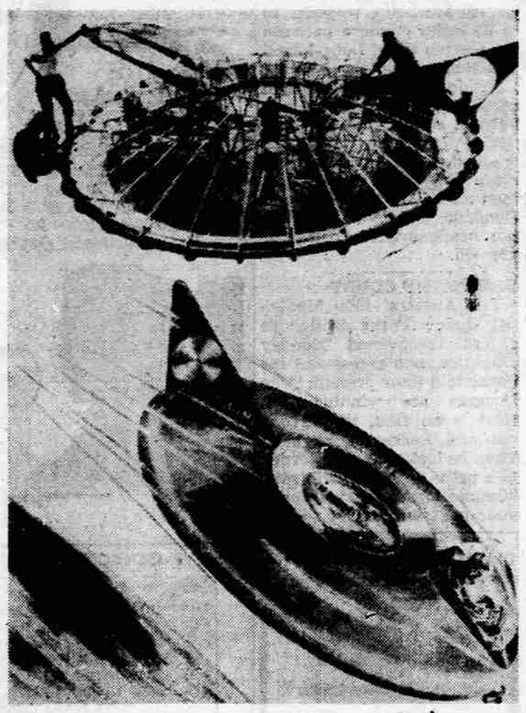
Gov. Robert B. Meyner said today the epidemic was serious but the situation should not cause "undue alarm."

Meyner said he has "been in touch" with health authorities from the onset. He expressed a "great deal of confidence" in Dr. Roscoe P. Kandle, state health commissioner, who is directing the drive against the dread disease.

Other Departments Aiding

He noted that in addition to the health department, the Agriculture and Conservation departments and state Fish and Game Division also were fighting the outbreak.

Kandle said through a spokesman Monday that the spread of the disease could now be considered an "epidemic of moderate proportions."



FLYING SAUCER–A U.S. flying saucer, as shown in Newsweek Magazine, goes into final production stage (top photo). at Princeton university flight research laboratory. A canvas skin will be stretched over the steel and aluminum craft, which is scheduled to be launched over New Jersey within a month. The saucer's 45-horsepower engine will provide lift and 25 m.p.h. forward speed by driving air through vents around the saucer's edge. A tail engine will give right-left control. Bottom photo is sketch of what the completed craft will look like in flight. –(UPI Telephoto)

'Body and Soul,' DuPont TV Show, Declared Excuse To Recreate Fight Scene

By FRED DANZIG
UPI Correspondent

New Work–(UPI)–Anyone for prize fighters today?

The DuPont show of the month returned to CBS-TV Monday night with a "modern" version of "Body and Soul" and showed us that boxing still is a rotten sport. If you recall, in 1957 John Garfield played in this movie which used Fight Game Plot 1-A to demonstrate: the fight game may be corrupt, but man's dignity is not a punching bag. In the movie, Garfield played a Jewish boy from the New York slums. In the TV version, Ben Gazzara played a Puerto Rican boy from the New York slums. He turned to prize fighting because it was the most logical path for him, became a champ, mingled with human garbage promoters, gamblers, etc. and gave his mother, his girl and his best friend the old heave-ho before agreeing to throw the Big Fight. The human garbage, of course, overplayed its hand and Gazzara came to his senses in time to win that B.F. in a rousing finish.

The Only Reason

This is the old chestnut, or punching bag, and I think the only reason for putting it on is to give a director the pleasure of attempting to recreate a fight scene. In this case, director Dan Petrie–assisted by a former fighter and a good makeup man–staged that big fight beautifully. Gazzara was drooling, glassy-eyed, putty kneed, puffy-eyed and a mess at the finish. But a victorious mess. And proud and happy, too. The gamblers are crestfallen, of course.

As a TV play, the stage for the final fight was set rather quickly and it was a long wait until he decided to cross up the move. I thought Gazzara's performance was convincing. He knew what he was supposed to do and did it well, except for his tendency to lapse into radio announced-resonance in some intimate scenes.

Ellen Madison played his girl. This was her first big TV role and she did herself proud. Franchot Tone came on too strong as a sinister promoter. Bernie Hamilton as a punch fighter gets a big vote from this referee. Florence Stanley was fine as Ben's momma. As usual Neville Brand and Martin Balsam performed well. But perhaps the best job in this show was done by the makeup man. His name is Dick Smith.

Hennesey, which premiered on CBS-TV Monday night, was really two shows in one. Jackie Cooper portrays a Navy doctor who is a bit of a dolt for the first half of the show and then rallies to demonstrate his professional competence in the last half. Cooper was tight-lipped and grim when he had to be, wide-eyed and good-natured when required. Anyhow, this one isn't a Western or a private eye show. There is no jazz theme. Hennesey's intention are to patch up the afflicted, not to demolish them. This is honorable even though the execution is labored and swathed in cliches.

NARCOTICS USER—Barbara Burns, 21, daughter of late comedian Bob Burns, leaves the county jail for the D. A.'s office after her arrest in Merced, Calif., for smoking marijuana in a local drive-in. "It's two to twenty (years) for me now," she said as her bail was set at $10,000. Police officer Richard Twitty (rear) accompanies her.

Bend Moulding Plant To Be Moved

Prineville — (UPI) — Consolidated Pine, Inc., Monday announced plans to move a moulding plant at Bend to Prineville, adjacent to its present mill here.

Jim Garrett, general manager of the Prineville plant, said construction would start this week on a 35,000 square-foot structure to house the moulding operation in its new location.

The plant employs 25 persons. It is expected to begin production here by the first of the year.

Garrett said reason for relocating the plant was economy of operation. Present employees of the plant in Bend will be kept on the payroll, he said.

Farm Program Gets Rap by Neuberger

Prineville – (UPI) – Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D.-Ore.) told the combined service clubs of Prineville at a noon meeting today that a U.S. farm problem solution will not be achieved by continued reliance on a plan which supports production of six "basic" crops but insists on the rigors of a "free market" for other farmers.

H esaid cotton raisers received more than $1 billion in price support payments in 1958.

"But who helps those who raise poultry, berries or cattle?" he asked.

He said reclamation projects such as Crooked River were an investment in the future despite criticism from cornbelt states for advocating new projects.

Trial Ordered in False Bomb Report

Portland–(UPI)–Federal Judge Gus J. Solomon Monday ordered Oct. 27 as trial date for Norman Lewis White, 36, accused of reporting falsely April 27 that a bomb was aboard an airliner that left here for San Francisco.

The plane, carrying 68 persons, returned here but a police search turned up no explosives.

At his arraignment Monday, White entered a plea of guilty to the charge but Judge Solomn set it aside and ordered the case tried.

He said he was taking the action because White told him he didn't "remember a thing" on the night of the bomb threat and "either he's not guilty or he has lied to the court."

Neuberger Lauds Conduct by Ike

Portland – (UPI) – Sen. Richard L. Neuberger (D-Ore.) said today that President Eisenhower conducted himself during the recent visit of Russian Premier Khrushchev "with wisdom and statesmanship."

"This was Mr. Eisenhower at his best," the Oregon Democrat said. Neuberger said he thought the exchange of visits between the two chiefs of state would "rank in history as major turning points, for better or worse, in the cold war."

Mortgage debt on U.S. urban homes has increased by four and one-half times since 1945. At the same time the mortgage debt on U. S. farms has approximately doubled in value.
