The Medical Roundup

by Walter Alvarez

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine Mayo Clinic
Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Clinic
(Register and Tribune Syndicate, 1961)

Birth of a Mongoloid Child

Many causes have now been found for the birth of a "mongoloid" (a peculiar-looking mentally retarded child), but now come some new causes. This whole subject is so interesting that for years I have read most of what has been written about it. A woman past the age of 40 is more likely to have a mongoloid baby than is a young mother, but this age factor often is absent, as when the mother is in her early twenties.

Alvarez

In all but a few of my cases I have found defects, usually in the working of the nervous system, of one or more members of the family. Some parents of mongoloids attack me violently for saying this, but actually I am only recording a fact of observation. I have no desire to hurt anyone. Only rarely is there another mongoloid in the family, but I have seen families with a mongoloid plus an ordinary type of mentally retarded child; and I have corresponded with two mothers, in each of whose families there were three definite mongoloids, plus another infant who was probably mongoloid.

These families, and others like them described in the literature, show that there must be a hereditary factor. This factor is shown strongly, also, by the fact that whenever one of two alike twins is mongoloid, the other (probably) always is either mongoloid or a suspected mongoloid. When one of two unalike twins is mongoloid, the other rarely is, which shows how unimportant is the factor of an old or wornout or diseased womb.

When, rarely, a mongoloid girl grows to womanhood, and has a child, it is usually mongoloid. I know of one recorded exception to this rule. The parents of a mongoloid child often have abnormal creases in their palms, and occasionally they have leukemia or leukemia-like changes in their blood. Last year a remarkable discovery was made. Mongoloids usually have 47 instead of the normal 46 chromosomes (the heredity-carrying material in their cells). Recently, in England, a mongoloid child was found with 46 chromosomes, and it was the father who had the 47.

Convention Plans To Be Discussed

The Oregon division of the American Legion will hold its annual convention in Medford on June 22, 23 and 24. The dates were announced this week by the American Legion's department of Oregon executive committee.

The convention will be one of the largest in Oregon's history, and is expected to attract more than 6,000 representatives of the Legion and affiliated organizations, according to the committee.

A meeting between Legion officials and the Medford Convention Commission corporation is planned for tomorrow to make arrangements for the convention. Jennings Pierce of Medford is chairman of the convention commission.

Forty persons are expected to participate in tomorrow's meeting. Vice chairman of the convention commission is Eugene Orr; the board of directors includes Pat Kilby, Bob Dames, Les Wilson and Granville Brittsan.

Wall Street Chatter

New York —UPI— Alfred L. Vanden Broeck & Co. says the Kennedy administration's emphasis on federal support to depressed areas should produce good market possibilities for a number of utilities now considered undynamic for growth and selling at lower values than typical for the industry.

The firm feels the Kennedy forces are deeply committed to the program and it notes that congressional leaders have declared it will be given number one priority in new legislation.

If the Kennedy program can be implemented in terms of the Douglas report, the brokerage house thinks investment emphasis ought to be given to those areas most seriously depressed.

It listed Eastern Utilities Associates, Pennsylvania Power & Light and Southern Indiana Electric in this connection as issues selling at depressed levels and showing highly defensive qualities relatively high yields and limited risk.

Bascoe & Co. and Gersen of Wall St. are both recommending American Metal Climax as a good possibility for 1961. Noting that earnings are believed to have risen to $2.70 from $2.15 in 1960, Gersen says with molybdenum demand trending upward in Europe and Japan, the company should show even better earnings in 1961.

W. E. Hutton & Co. confides that its specialist in aircraft shares feels the only two really worthwhile stocks in the group are Boeing and Grumman. He is not enthusiastic about Douglas, although he thinks it might have a further rally from tax selling.

QUAKE ORIGIN

San Francisco—Most earthquakes are caused by slippage of the earth's crust although some are of volcanic origin.
