unseld stocks in this territory show that about 2,000,000 pounds of wool remain in growers' hands in Oregon, Washington and Idaho. In the country around Shantko there are about 250,000 pounds, while stocks in the vicinity of Baker City and the scattered lots elsewhere in the Eastern countles will aggregate another 250,000 pounds. There s a good deal of wool in first hands at Ellensburg and in the Palouse country. The Willamette Valley is practically cleaned up. In the two states close to 1,000,000 pounds is still to be disposed, while an equal quantity is held by farmers in Southern Idaho

All this wool could have been sold early in the season, but the growers considered the prices offered too low and held for a later market. The remnants are now being disposed of slowly at prices from 1 to 2 cents under what was realized at the sealed bid sales. Most of the Eustern buyers have now left the field.

About 90 per cent of the 1906 clip of the Western States has now been cleaned up, either by sale or consignment. The last large purchases reported from Montana were made by Boston firms at advances of about over previous ones, and the markets there closed with greater strength than was recorded at the opening of the season. Two up Wyoming at 23@24c. At different collecting points in the territories clips have been left in warehouse to be sold at certain prices that do not attract buyers.

The Boston Commercial Bulletin says of Oregon wool sales in the Eastern market: "The transactions of staple wood, amounting to around 1,000,000 pounds, reported last week, have left the market rather bare of choice stock, although supplies are coming in quite steadily from Oregon. In the ab sence of any particular activity, Eastern No. I staple is quoted at 72 m74c, or 24c in the grease. No. 1 clothing and valley are quiet and unchanged."

In discussing the improved tone of the market, now that the bulk of the clip is in second hands, the Bulletin says:

In second hands, the Bulletin says:

The statistical position of the wool market holds out great encouragement to dealers, and makes them decidedly optimistic in regard to the value of tack holdings, despite the attitude of ceriath large operators who are remaining comparatively inactive in the expectation of breaking prices. It must be remembered that the 1005 clip is almost wholly gone from dealers' hands, and that, as a consequence, supplies of domestic wool must be obtained from the 1806 clip. With less substitution practiced 1806 clip. With less substitution practiced 1806 clip. With less substitution practiced 2-crown, $1.75. in the manufacture of goods, it would like by be discovered that there would be an in sufficient amount of wool for consumption As it is now, merchants feel that the pros-perity of the country with an increasing demand for clothing will provide a place for every pound of wool grown. Leading merchants say that if the important convalues, or sold to more willing buyers at trade, indeed, holds a firm belief in the intrinsic value of wool, and no lad determination to maintain it is shown. COUNTRY PRODUCE FIRM.

All kinds of country produce were in good demand yesterday and firm prices were quoted on the street. Receipts of eggs were light and a steady outside demand practically cleaned up what was left after city orders were filled. Chickens moved well, both on local and shipping account. Arrivals were only moderate and as buyers would not stand higher prices, quotations were unchanged. The Front street butter market is in better shape, as receipts are decreasing Prices range from 22 % to 25 cents on ourside brands. City creameries report an improved situation. The top quotation is still 26 cents, but a considerable quantity is moving at 25.

FLETCHER HOPS BRING 20 CENTS. Long Dry Spell Is Daily Reducing Estimates of Valley Output.

SALEM, Or., Aug. 22,-(Special.)-Lachmund & Pincus, of this city, bought the J. W. Fletcher hop erop at Dayton today at 20 cents. The crop amounts to about 35,000 This is the only deal in hope reported here today and it is evident that growers who have not already sold are firm hold-

Reports from the yards continue to show bad effects from the long spell of dry weather and estimates of the Oregon crop are being almost daily reduced.

YAKIMA HOPS SOLD.

Big Block Disposed of by the Fox Combination.

The sale of a big block of Yakima hope was the feature of the hop market yes-terday. All the particulars of the transaction were not learned by the Portland trade, but the fact that the deal was consummated was practically confirmed. The sellers were the Hugh F. Fox combination thing over 1000 bales of Yakima hops, The quantity disposed of was about 700 bales, and the purchase was understood to have been made on account of a Salem firm. The price was not known here, but was in the neighborhood of 1746 cents. These hops have been offered on the market for nearly.

No sales of Oregon hops were reported during the day. The market in this state seems to be completely blocked. Buyers are offering 18 and 1814 cents for prime contracts and would probably pay 20 cents the growers at such prices. Plenty of dealers' hops could be bought at this figure. but the firms that have led the advance draw the line between growers and dealers in making purchases or offers. The Yakima transaction and the buying from A. J. Ray

A. J. Patterson, of Olegun, Wash., is in the city looking for pickers. Mr. Patterson says he was offered 22 cents for his crop with $5000 down, but refused the offer. tops have been famous for years for their fine quality. The Cowllis yards, he says, are badly in need of rain. His crop ran 1900 pounds to the acre last year, and this year will not produce over 1100 pounds to the acre.

California Fruit Delayed. No fresh California produce arrived on Front street yesterday, as the express train vas delayed. There was a considerable supply of peaches and grapes on board, which will be on sale this morning. Receipts of peaches from The Dailes and river points was fairly large. Oregon canaloupes are coming in freely from up the Columbia and are selling at 75 cents to $1.25 per crate. Business in the fruit and vegetable line was very brisk,

Wheat Market Easy. The drop in the Eastern wheat markets centerday took away what little strength there was in the local market. Exporters continue to be out of the running, as the prices paid by millers are still above the foreign basis. The volume of business is gradually increasing as the harvest draws to a close, but farmers are by no means free sellers. Bank Clearings.
