Loose Joint May Be Collapse Cause

Hillsboro, Ore. — (UPI) — A loose joint in one of the timbers supporting the scaffolding may have caused a construction tragedy which took five lives here Wednesday.

The men were killed and nine others injured, two seriously, when the freshly-poured concrete dome collapsed on a new city water reservoir under construction.

C. R. Lafferty, district superintendent of the Oregon State Industrial Accident commission, said the loose joint is "the most likely cause." He said the blame has not been fixed, however.

Fourteen men pouring the last of the concrete were plummeted more than 60 feet and buried in debris at the bottom of the reservoir.
