Growth Study Is Subject of Show

Testing elementary school boys for such things as vital lung capacity, grip strength and leg strength will be demonstrated on "Adventures in Medicine" at 1 o'clock this afternoon when the topic of discussion will be "The Medford Boys' Growth Study."

Dr. William J. Miller, pediatrician, will join Dr. Theodore Schopf, athletic director of Southern Oregon college, and Lee Ragsdale, supervisor of health and physical education in the Medford schools, in reviewing the purposes of the growth study, and results thus far noted in the 12-year project.

It has been pointed out by school officials that one of the most controversial problems confronting physical educators today is the wide utilization of organized competitive athletic programs for children from 9 through 13 years old.

The question of whether current practices in elementary school athletics are harmful or beneficial to the physical and emotional welfare of the boys participating was partially what prompted the Medford Boys' Growth Study, now in its seventh year.
