Ashland Man Gets Award Nomination

Ashland – Dr. E. C. McGill, assistant to the president at Southern Oregon college and member of the National Council for Small Business Management Development, has nominated Bert Wright, Ashland, secretary-treasurer of the M. C. Lininger and Sons, Inc., a contracting firm, for the NCSBMD national award for the most outstanding man in small business.

Members of the national organization may each nominate one person they feel has shown outstanding achievement and progress in small business provided that the nominee has completed a small business management course within the past five years. Wright completed the small business administration course last spring at Southern Oregon college.

In addition to the many advances in the production and packaging of pre-mix concrete, brick mortar, and grout mixture aimed at the "do it yourself" market, Wright and the Lininger brothers pioneered in the production of a large concrete pipe plant for culvert and sewer work.

Use of Trucks

Since the founding of the Lininger firm, in 1942, strides also have been made in the use of ready mix trucks which delivered fresh concrete in the proper quantities for large or small jobs.

Wright realized that the best salesmen for the company were the drivers of the trucks and he worked with the other members of the company to give each of them a sound knowledge of the composition of concrete and how it reacts under different conditions.

From time to time, Wright attended concrete engineering courses sponsored by the National Readymix Concrete association and participated in short courses in concrete inspection and technology at Oregon State university.

Eagle Point Board Rehires Teachers

Eagle Point – All of the Eagle Point school teachers were rehired for the 1963-64 school year at a meeting of the school board recently. Miss Jane Pollard resigned to accept a position in another school district.

Four student teachers from Southern Oregon college will be assigned to the Eagle Point grade schools during the spring quarter, according to Assistant Superintendent Robert Work. Student teachers are Steven Wisely, Tom Coullette, Miss Charlene Brown, and Mrs. Carolyn Norton.

Superintendent Glenn D. Hale discussed the progress of school legislation proposed to increase our financial appropriations. He urged that all school personnel and interested people should correspond with the legislators to emphasize the importance of receiving more state aid.

It was announced that the budget hearing will be held March 27 at 8 p.m. in the Eagle Point High school library. The budget election will be held April 17.
