Hood River Glacier.

HOOD RIVER, OR., OCT. 3, 1891.

A USE FOR THE COUNTY FAIR.

The average county fair, or cattle show, is usually a very perfunctory event. It is seldom that it has an opportunity to produce a novel sensation. It is always the same old cattle show, and always just as enjoyable and just as useless as it used to be. In its original conception the county fair was intended to be a public teacher. Because of its lack of novelty it has become a sort of arena for fall hand-shaking, of which the pumpkins, the sheaves of wheat and jars of preserves form only the setting. It happens in this glorious year 1891 that there is a most unusual opportunity to make the county fairs tremenduously useful as public educators.

The county fairs of 1891, in certain portions of the central west; should be made to prove to an unwilling public that irrigation is better than dependence upon the rainfall. The comparison of results will certainly not be unfair this year to the rain-belt farmer. He has seen more rain during the past season than he has seen before in ten years, and more probably than he will see again in another ten. And yet in this very heyday of years for the rain-belt farmer the irrigationist has beaten him out of his boots. He has raised more wheat and other grain to the acre, more and better vegetables, more and better hay, and in the matter of fruit he is simply "out of sight." Let the rain-belt farmer toe the mark this year and demonstrate by hard facts that he really is not so foolish as he looks. Or, if he is beaten in this fairest of contests, let him go to work and get ditches and make himself as prosperous as his neighbors who have parted with the delusion of the rain-belt.

The shadowy line which divides the rain-belt country from the irrigation empire, falls somewhere athwart Central Kansas and Nebraska. These sections will, therefor, offer the best opportunity for a comparison of results. Take, for instance, Kearney, Finney, and Hamilton counties in Kansas, and Lincoln, Cheyenne and Scott's Bluff counties in Nebraska. In each of these six counties there is both irrigated and rain-belt farming. There is, therefore, a rare opportunity to make a direct comparison between irrigation in the year of its lowest value and rain in the year of its highest. Now, the world would like to know which method produced the best crops in quality and quantity. If the rain-belt man can not hold up his end this year, then it is certainly hopeless for him to compete with irrigation through the years as they run. His crop this year great as it is, is but half a crop if he averages it with the poverty-stricken year of 1890. Let him average it with all the years since he took up his homestead, and he will have to make a liberal discount for this year's returns. To be entirely fair to irrigation the rain-belt products of Kansas and Nebraska should be compared with the products of some of the older irrigation districts of the West. For instance, put the rain-belt wheat and potatoes of Kansas and Nebraska, beside the wheat and potatoes raised this year in Greely, It will be 75 bushels of potatoes to the acre against 250 bushels, and 20 bushels of wheat against 45 bushels. Besides the irrigated potatoes and wheat will be far superior in quality.

Heretofore the county fair has paid irrigation the compliment of ruling its products out of competition with the products of the rain-belt. The managers admitted that it was hardly fair to pit John L. Sullivan against a feather-weight. But there are peculiar reasons this year why they should relent. It is claimed that the past season has shown the power of water, and that in the best of years the water from the ditch has accomplished more than the water from the clouds.

General Boulanger the French "fake" committed suicide at Brussels Wednesday about noon, choosing as the most peculiarly appropriate spot for his mortal taking off, the grave of his late mistress who died recently. He placed a pistol in his right ear and fired expiring on the grave of his brevet wife. He was a noisy, garrulous, erratic fraudful Frenchman; a mud idol for certain of his kind, and his loss is far from irreparable. He earned his bread by the sweat of his brow according to the scriptural injunction; the sweat being superinduced by mental labor in devising schemes how not to work.

The Hood River GLACIER has the largest circulation of any paper in the county. It is more widely disseminated than all the others combined, being read from Celilo to Scappoose, and from Cooper's Spur to Skookum Chuck. This makes it the best possible advertising medium. This is not literally true, but we intend to be in the swim if it exhausts the material we wash our forms with. Dalles papers will please take notice that we intend to get there if the concentrated will do it.

A BAD EXPERIMENT.

The case of the late Hopkins who accumulated $50,000,000 by patient industry and the assistance of congress, and before dying willed the whole business to his wife, is peculiarly discouraging viewed in the light of a philanthropic experiment. His widow consoled herself by in due time wedding a younger handsomer and more esthetic man, one who cared not so much for accumulating money as he did for spending it in tasteful though not wasteful ways. After a brief period of gilt edged bliss with her second mate, the widow retired from business, and emulating the example of her first lamented, left the entire $50,000,000 with its heriditaments appurtenances to the bereaved but not bereft widower, he of the chrysanthemum tastes. Now Hopkins the original founder of this vast fortune, did not have the pleasure even of his successors acquaintance, hence we say that as a purely philanthropic experiment the leaving of this vast sum of money to the widow was discouraging. Not a cent went for charity, not a cent for the glorification of the house of Hopkins, but instead said house under that name ceased to exist. The lawyers now have their eagle gazes fixed on the estate, and truly it is a carrion worthy of the biggest condors of that tribe.

It is the unanimous verdict of all who have seen the exposition this year, that it falls far below that of last year. The reason is plain. When the manager of such an institution imagines he can snub the newspapers of the state, and get away with it, he needs to have the upper vacant chambers in his skull re-furnished. That is exactly what "Rabelais, laughing in his easy chair" undertook to do, and it is safe to say that the directors of the exposition are laughing out of an entirely different corner of their mouths. Mr. Mitchell's management has cost the exposition thousands of dollars, and kept many other thousands out of Portland.

Guatemala is reported as being in the throes of another revolution. It seems to be a settled matter that the impressible and fiery mixed races of our little southern neighbors are incapable of self government, and it would be a blessing to them if the United States would absorb them, though it would not be an unmixed blessing for us. We are already loaded with pepper-headed fools. George Francis Train for instance.

It is rumored that Raum, is to be asked to resign the office of Commissioner of Pensions. In the meanwhile Raum wants some of the employes under him discharged, thinking that they are plotting against him, but the rules of the civil service will not allow him to decapitate them. This is a case of uncivil service indeed.

Closing out Sale at The Dalles.

I commenced Wednesday September 23rd and shall continue until all is sold, to close out my entire stock of clothing, boots and shoes, hats and caps, and men's furnishing goods, and shall offer them regardless of cost to close. The stock is complete and the best of the kind in the city. Most of the goods are new and the suits of the latest styles. There will be no filling in, or sorting up, but the sale will be positive and continue until everything is sold and disposed of.

J. C. BALDWIN.

The Regulator.

Several lots of freight have been received here per steamer Regulator from Portland by our merchants, and we regret to say, the rates are not satisfactory to the latter. One shipment of 2,600 pounds was landed on the beach at a cost of 51 cents less than the U. P rates for the same goods, but as it costs one dollar more to get the goods hauled from the landing than from the depot' the owner was out 99 cents, besides the risk he ran from having his merchandise dumped on the beach in the rain. Our friends of the Regulator can hardly expect much patronage from here until a better rate can be given us.

MILLINERY.

I have opened a line of millinery and fancy goods, in the Coe, building one door west of the GLACIER office, and invite the ladies of Hood River and surrounding country to call and see my goods and prices, before purchasing elsewhere. My stock of hats, caps, shapes trimmed, or untrimmed, flowers, feathers, ribbons, velvets, plushes, ornamental pins, veiling etc., In fact everything kept in a firstclass millinery store. My prices will speak far better.

MRS. R. S. HOWELLS.

Better than Ever!

Patriotic.

A young lady of Seattle, who has been forwarding very interesting accounts of her travels in Europe to her friends at home, sent her last letter from Paris.

She was enthusiastic over the French capital, and after saying everything else that she could in its favor, rapturously declared, "To my mind it is the Seattle of Europe!"—Albany Argus.

Dr. Swain, Dentist.

Many years of Europe, late of Portland, graduate of Pennsylvania College, will remain in Hood River until Oct. 10. Those wishing teeth made, gold or vulcanite, or fillings of gold, silver, enamel, etc., will find Dr. Swain a careful operator and moderate in his prices for first-class work. Don't delay if you need dental work done. Office near post office, adjoining Mr. Hartley's.
