Hood River Glacier.

HOOD RIVER, OR., NOV. 28, 1891.

Minneapolis having captured the republican national convention, has raised the hopes of San Francisco for getting that of the democrats. The only objection to San Francisco is a trifling one, and that is that the morning papers of the east would not be able to get the dispatches in time, and the evening papers would thus have a "scoop." It is time the west be recognized, and the fact that the evening papers also get a boom should not deter our democratic friends from giving San Francisco a chance. She has better hotel accommodations, better facilities for holding the convention than Minneapolis, and in fact than any of the cities of the United States with the exception of New York and Chicago. Boss Buckley is at present in Canada, hence the convention would be safe from theft.

The revolutionary sentiment that pervades Brazil, struck the capital, Rio Janiero, the morninding of the 23d, inst. and assumed epidemic form in time to innoculate the entire population before noon. Da Fonseca, "resigned" in the afternoon, in favor of the vice president Peixotto, who, the dispatches state, is forming a new government. The announcement of the resignation of Fonseca was received with enthusiastic cheers by those who were his most devoted followers a few hours before. But a few weeks ago Fonseca prorogued the Brazilian congress, but the dispatches state that with his fall, the rogues are going back.

A general summary of the financial condition of Morrow county shows an indebtedness of $12,908.16. If all delinquent taxes were collected this amount would be reduced $11,270.34. This speaks well for as new a county as Morrow.—Long Creek Eagle.

Yes indeed it is a good thing. But a few years ago, Morrow was cut off from Wasco county, and from that time has always had a lower tax rate than Wasco. Its debt is now in round numbers $13,000, while that of Wasco is nearly $80,000. This is a very good object lesson.

The committee to whom is delegated the matter of renaming the streets of Portland made necessary by the consolidation, commenced their labors Wednesday. We suggest that while the changes are being made that not only the name of the streets be placed upon the lamps but the number of the adjacent house be added. This would prove of great convenience to strangers.

At the meeting of the republican national central committee held at Washington Monday, Minneapolis was selected as the place for holding the next national convention. Cincinnati, was second choice with a vote of 15, Minneapolis winning by a vote of 28.

Edward Robert Bulwer Lyton, died at Paris, France, Tuesday the 25 inst. He was a man of high literary attainments, and under the non de plume of "Owen Meredith" gave to the world that charming poem Lucile, by far the best of his numerous poetical writings.

Govenor Hovey of Indiana, died at Indianopolis Monday, Nov., 23d. The remains lay in state at the capitol building Tuesday, and Wednesday were removed to Mount Vernon, where the funeral took place Thursday.

Score one more for the gallant American navy. Our jack tars have again distinguished themselves. But a few years ago one of our heavy vessels of war collided with a fishing smack off the Delcware coast, and sunk in twenty minutes. Other equally astonishing results have followed, the careless practice of allowing the vessels of the navy to be moved at all, but the affair at Callao, recently where the steam launch of the cruiser San Francisco was sunk by a warlike target, is the latest and most unusual. The steam launch made an attack on the target, having 75 pounds of dynamite on the end of a spar which she jabbed into the side of the target when it wasn't looking, the dynamite exploded lifting the target and a goodly portion of the waters of the bay with it into the air for a hundred feet. The captain of the launch forgot to back her as the torpedo exploded and the result was she run directly under the descending volume of water and target which hit her on the back and carried her to the bottom. The crew escaped.

Some of the arguments made for as well as against the protective tariff theory, are so gaudily diaphanous that they have no shadow on the subject, and suggest that some new hand book on the "elements of logic" is needed for our hard-pressed contemporaries. The GLACIER from its non-partisan stand point, can look on amused at the "heavy" broadsides poured into the enemy by the newspaper talent. The Heppner Gazette advances a theory that deserves to be embalmed. It says the reason why all manufactured articles are steadily growing cheaper, is that: "Our home markets are open to American competition only." The inference is that if outside competition were allowed, the price of manufactured articles would be enhanced, consequently the manufacturer would be able to pay his employes better wages etc., and so the Gazette in loses the democratic idea in an effort to make a protective argument. We suggest to our contemporaries of political proclivities to be certain of the conclusions belonging to given premises. It is the logic of a sage—brusier.

The chamber of commerce of Portland, is an energetic issly and would spend money like water in the interest of Portland if the state at large would furnish it. It decided to assist Paul Mohr, in building his railroad around Celilo Dalles rapids on the Washington side, by giving him $500,000, but the ungrateful country folks of the state refused to put up the coin, and the chamber of commerce had to go back on its pledges. Since then this same chamber of commerce has voted $25,000 for the worlds fair exhibit and now has agents out over the state trying to collect the coin. When this appropriately named vessel of commerce digs up some of the money it proposes to spend, it will be time enough for us outsiders to contribute; until then he who gives illustrates the truth of the adage about a fool and his money soon parted.

Since writing the above the Oregonian has devoted a column of its valuable space to giving the proceedings of a meeting called to "further the proposition for the representation of Oregon at the Worlds Columbian exhibition in Chicago in 1893." We have read the columns carefully but only to be more strongly convinced that the preceding article is correct. The meeting was attend by Portland's heavy capitalists, W. S. Ladd, C. H. Dodd, Elijah Corbett, H. W. Scott, Van De Lashmutt, Frank Dekum and dozens of others, who could put up the entire amount and never miss it, but they didn't pass that way. They appointed a committee to solicit subscriptions in the city. Not one of them put up a cent. They simply sat on the chamber of commerce and passed—resolutions.

General Siglin, has resigned the office of Brigadier General of the Oregon militia, and of course there are many applicants for his abandoned shoulder straps. Among those mentioned for the position we notice the name of Charles E. Morgan, late Col. of the Third Regiment, Oregon Militia. The doughty Col. owns a fine dog, and weighs 130 pounds. He may possess some other qualifications for the office, but if he does they have escaped our comprehensive grasp. The Col. also hails from the Sunny South, the land of the magnolia and the orange, of chivalry and cotton, blue grass whiskey and blooded horses, the land as Watt puts it: "where every prospect pleases and only man is vile."

For any one purchasing ten dollars worth of furniture of me, I will deliver the same at landing free of charge.
