THE NEW AUTO PARK

On percursory consideration, it might seem to anyone that the chances for serious competition from owners of a private automobile park on the part of a municipality would be small. Under certain circumstances this might be very true.

The city of Hood River, however, should consider all of the circumstances and contingencies that may arise here before they allow such a status to exist. If today Hood River had a sufficient sum of money to make the Batchelder property available to motor tourists in a manner that would have a general appeal, we might find reason in making some concessions. But just now Hood River hasn't sufficient funds to improve the new park. With the money at hand, could the town make the new camping grounds more attractive next year than the old park? We doubt it. Right from the jump off the city would be forced to make money enough from its annual receipts to pay the installment of $1,000 on the purchase price and at the same time lay aside a fund for the gradual improvement of the park property. With the city facing the competition of a privately owned park, the transaction smacks of a weak shoe string.

Of course, Hood River, after such a deal was finally consummated, could levy a special tax or provide for charter amendment and vote a bond issue for caring for the park. But, it is our belief that the citizens of the city will not stand for any plans that hint of a tax increase. Senator Patterson, at the Lunch Club the other day, told of the benefits that had accrued to Salem from the automobile park there—that 38 tracts of land had been sold to motor tourists. We happen to know of several prospective settlers among motor tourists here last year. They went so far as to investigate residence property. One man was on the point of buying a fine home, but he finally was balked at the high taxes. What is it going to profit us by having the most attractive automobile park on the Columbia River highway if we have to purchase it by taxes so high that some of these same tourists will have no incentive to linger and buy homes?

It is true that a good automobile park will keep tourists here and that these transients, who linger a few days in our midst will swell to a considerable degree the coffers of our merchants. Do not get the idea that we are against an automobile park. We want one and a good one. But we believe that we can provide for the entire comfort of our tourists for some time to come by expending a comparatively small sum on the existing park and by, if need be, the purchase of some adjoining property.

We are in thorough accord with the sentiment expressed by Mr. Smith at the Tuesday Lunch Club. Certainly, Hood River wants the Batchelder property, and should have it, not merely for auto park purposes but for the general recreation of citizens and children. We believe that the time will come when we will find our way clear to acquire it. But we must travel slowly and fit our plans to our ability to pay. We must not bring to materialization plans that may set up a tax burden. Whatever we do, we should not purchase the Batchelder property without a five-year restriction clause.

COOPERATIVE MARKETING

The Glacier is very much interested in the plans that are now under way for effecting a cooperative marketing organization throughout the northwest. We are going, however, to occupy the position of interested observers for the time being. Our only suggestion will be that those of the committee of five work slowly, if they would work surely. The rocks of haste have caused the wrecks of many cooperative ventures in the past.

If the committee of five can accomplish the ends that are hoped for and a real federation of cooperative units in all northwestern apple districts can be effected, the industry will benefit. This federation, however, if it would be really effective, must control the tonnage of the entire northwest. We will repeat a comment we have so often made before—the work of bringing about the federation would be easy. If Washington apple districts had reached that state of district unit cooperation now prevailing in Hood River.

At intervals, the next few months, The Glacier will carry communications from various northwestern growers who are sincerely interested in the cooperative movement and who have been engaged in the administration of district units for a number of years. A communication, written by A. W. Stone, whose efforts in bringing the Apple Growers Association into being are well known appeared in last week's paper.

PLANT A FEW FLOWERS

Whether there be a concerted campaign to beautify the premises of Hood River homes this year or not, most of us, if we display a little energy and entreprise, can bring about garden results that will strengthen our pride in our surroundings.

Most of us have seen the autumnal glory of J. G. Ruggles' dahlia gardens surrounding his home on the break of the Heights. Not so many have witnessed the appealing array of coloring at the Summit gladioli farm of J. H. Wheeler. Did you ever wish that you could pluck from your own gardens bouquets as beautiful as these men grew?

You can, if you just will it hard enough. Both of these men this year are offering bulbs for sale. All you need to do, we think, is to tell either of them what you want in the way of flowers from their especial species. They'll furnish you the bulbs with directions as to their seting and cultivation. You'll be rewarded, when the blooming season rolls around, if you are willing to expend a little time in cultivation and care, with the opportunity of cutting from your own gardens magnificent bouquets. You will be making your home premises a delight to the eye of every caller to the valley.

But please do not think that in our suggestion you should limit your flower plantings to dahlias or gladioli, although with either you can get results that are highly gratifying. The catalogs of the many reliable seedsmen, eastern and Pacific coast, are intriguing. Nearly all flowering annuals do well here. The opportunities for producing wonder gardens of blooms have no limit. Hood River valley can be made one of the most appealing spots on the Great Footstool.

THE ODD FELLOWS' CONVENTION

It behooves all of us to give earnest consideration to the plans of the Hood River Odd Fellow and Rebekah lodges in entertaining the 1924 state convention of the grand lodges of the fraternal organizations. The convention will bring the largest number of people to Hood River ever gathered here for any event. We are going to have to cooperate fully in lodging and caring for them.

It is up to all of us to join the Odd Fellows in seeing that the delegates are given a hospitable reception. When they leave we want each and every one of the visitors to carry back home the story of Hood River open heartedness. While it is a fraternal event, it belongs more or less to us, and we must take a pride in making it one of the best I. O. O. F. and Rebekah conventions ever held in Oregon.

CORRECTION

In our issue of February 14, an important typographical error appeared in an article by A. W. Stone, entitled, "Views are Given on Cooperation." The said error consisted of substituting the year 1923 for the year 1913. The part of said article affected by said error should have read as follows:

May, 1913, the Apple Growers Association was organized and for a period of ten years has efficiently and economically handled and marketed the fruit for its 800 to 1000 members. The cost of service to its members for all of its activities in handling and marketing their fruit and in furnishing them supplies was substantially less per box for similar services for the crop season of 1922 than for the crop season of 1913. This result was accomplished by loyal, efficient, collective action for the common benefit of those interested.

The value of this cooperative effort to the growers becomes apparent when we consider that there was no part of the activities of these members in the raising and preparing for market of their fruit that did not show a substantial increase in cost for the said period.

The Old Oregon Trail is getting on the map. Its story, a story of Oregon and romantic hardships and realizations of dreams come true, of the days of the prairie schooner, is going to be carried to far parts by the motor tourist. When we think of the Old Oregon Trail we can't help thinking of Walter E. Meacham. He has worked indefatiguably, and sometimes against odds, toward the end of making the long, long trail a monument to pioneers. He has succeeded. The tourist will learn of that great migration to Oregon. The restoration of the Old Oregon Trail, now a new transcontinental motor trail, will perpetuate in modern memory the overland journey of the pioneers.

People of Hood River county will be glad of the opportunity of voting again for Judge Fred W. Wilson. Judge Wilson has occupied the bench with rare dignity. He is a man guided by integrity and honesty and possessed of human understanding. His keen and sincere interest in all the good activities of our county have endeared him generally.

We have noted a number of folk, when they talk about their purebred cows, calling their thoroughbreds. Our learned contemporary, the Hood River News, applied this term to cows. Listen for the laugh when a horseman hears you talking of a thoroughbred cow. Such an animal, we imagine, would be better on the run than for butterfat.

In this week's issue of The Glacier we carry an article on cooperative marketing by Dr. C. A. Macrum, president of the Mosier Fruitgrowers Association. At intervals throughout the spring we will carry such articles from those interested in cooperation throughout the Northwest.

Hugh Hume, editor of the Portland Spectator, suggests that Portland, to be logically in line with Seattle and Tacoma, should change the name of Mount Hood to Mount Portland. Mr. Hume is joking, of course. He doesn't want to start a scrap between Portland and Hood River.

The Ohio state grange has adopted the slogan, "Lower Taxes and Less Legislation." It is possible someone will run for the legislature on just such a platform and get away with it. Another idea might be for someone to run on a platform of being the one representative in that body who would agree only to present such bills as would repeal something, instead of trying to get elected on a platform of correcting all the things that appear wrong.

Those who attend the Out Door Life Exposition in Portland this week will know a little more about Hood River. The activities of the men who arranged the display will result in many visitors here, we predict.

He who slings mud is more than likely to get slimed up himself. This is true especially when he plunges into muckraking as indiscriminately as did F. A. Vanderlip.

"All's quiet along the Potomac" is obsolete. Today it is: "Oil's well along the Potomac."

The orchardists with the cows are prosperous orchardists, if they take the care they should of the animals.

The primaries are not far off, gentlemen. It is time for you to be jockeying for the start.

Spring is coming. Park grange is already laying plans for celebration of July 4.

Get your garden spaded up early.
