Lawyer Dodge's Scheme.

At a meeting of the board of stockhold-ers of the trust, called to dissolve the trust in compliance with the order of the trust in compliance with the order of the court, he said, there was present for the company "a very great and learned law-yer by the name of Dodge, who intro-duced a resolution formally setting out a new plan of organization." In explaining this new plan, which was adopted, Mr. Dodge was quoted by Mr. David as saying to the stockholders: Your interest will be the same then as new Corporations will couring to do busi-

At this meeting, Mr. David continued arrangements were made for winding up the affairs of the trust and liquidating trustees were chosen, being the same as the old trustees, whom he again named. Several years later, in 1983, he said, John D. Rockefeller and the same trustees were still controlling the policies and business of the Standard Oll Trust and at that time only about 60 per cent of the trust certificates had been exchanged under the terms of the Dodge resolution.

John D. Rockefeller, he said, was the largest stock-owner and was president of the corporation between the years 1800 and 1901. Mr. David said the New Jersey organization issued $38,000, 000 of capital stock and purchased nearly all of the stock of the subsidiary com-

REBUFFS CORONER

But OLDS, WORTMAN & KING have changed all this,

This store organized its Custom Fitting Department, engaged only expert fitters and tailors who've had experience with the best houses in America. As a basis upon which to build such an organization we already had what has been aptly termed a "STYLE STORE "

Foreign gowns and street costumes, with the sentimental value of the celebrated maker's name attached, added to the regular intrinsic value of the gown, together with the import duty, makes the price too high for any except the few. But at this store one may see many reproductions of such garments at nominal, easy-to-pay prices, made possible by American methods, and our immense output, which enables us to control such productions, from the master hands of such renowned artistes as the world-famous modiste, Mile. Schroeder, and others. You see all these productions made up; and you may try on as many different styles as you choose-then select that which is most becoming, and the CUSTOM FITTER fits your figure perfectly. Expensive? No. The cost of this organization is spread over the thousands of garments we sell yearly, making the individual cost no greater than the haphazard fitting. It's high time you were selecting your new suit and coat for Fall and Winter wearing. Even tho the present mild and beautiful days tempt one to continue with the Summer clothing, bear in mind that changes come quickly, and one should be prepared with the heavier garb that the calendar calls for. Come in today, select your gown-and have it properly FITTED.
