Capt. N. B. Humphrey celebrated his 53d birthday a day or two since and says, "I am an athletic, well-preserved young man today, though I have one foot in the grave." The captain's friends, legion in number, will hope that he may yet enjoy many birthdays. —Pendleton, E. O.

It seems that it is impossible for the administration to get a minister to Hawaii who will properly represent the desires of Gresham in our relations with that country. So long as new ideas in diplomacy are being used it seems fit and proper that Gresham should go there himself and fix the matter up. The country could easily spare him.

The state board of equalization has adjourned. The expense of the board meeting was $3300, which is $1000 less than last year and $1700 less than the first board. The assessment as returned be the county board of the state amounted to $179,088,770. As equalized by the state $177,249,086, a reduction of $1,839,684. Last year the valuation was raised $33,000,000.

While the Chinese are in many respects desirable citizens they are at the same time the cause of much trouble. The Chinese on this coast show a disposition to not obey the registration law, and unless they do they should be deported from the country. The failure of the law to accomplish this will result in many broils and dead Chinamen. The Chinaman that has good sense will apply for registration papers and file his photograph at the first opportunity.

The Pacific Banker and Investor has the following to say of one of McMinnville's banks; "The McMinnville National bank of McMinnville, Oregon, has a most flattering statement for Dec. 19, 1893. It has a large percentage of its deposits on hand and the statement particularly emphasizes these facts as given below: Certificates of deposits, for money borrowed, none; bills payable none; re-discounts, none. liabilities of officers, none."

The A. O. U. W. lodge of this city installed officers on Friday night of last week, and after the ceremony enjoyed a supper prepared in the vacant store room beneath the lodge room. The supper was one of the best, if not the very best ever served by an organization in this city. One look at the groaning table demonstrated the lack of perception in our governor more than any thing else could have done. The larders of the members of the A. O. U. W. are full and we should judge overflowing. Charity lodge has added a large number of members to its list within the month past and more are petitioning.

And I'd have one and all you know,

That they are the leading grocers.

They're a finely matched team;
That is, if there's aught in report, sirs,

The county court is in session and is waiting on the state for its levy before making the levy of this county. The levy last year was 26 mills, but the commissioners think that the levy this year will be below 20 mills. None of the school districts in the county have reported to the county court the amount of their levy. The court is also discussing the sheriff's fees in the collection of the school and city taxes. They want to determine whether it is best to allow the sheriff to deduct the 2 per cent allowed him for the collection of the school district and city taxes, turning over the balance to the city and district, or to have him turn over all the money, putting in his bill for the collection of the taxes to the various cities and school districts. The expenses of Yamhill county for the past year have been less by some $5000 than the average expenses of the county for the three previous years, and unless one or two bridges go out during high water the expense of the coming year will be less than than that of the past year.

THE MOTOR PROJECT.

The Cornelius Donation Claim to be Sub-Divided and Sold.

HILLSBORO, Jan. 10—The project of building the electric motor line from Portland to Beaverton in this county is again revived. The plan now adopted is to use the West Portland steam motor to the summit of the hill this side of Portland, and then leave that line in a branch to Beaverton. This will require only six miles of new road. A company of New York capitalists are the promoters. The question of subsidy is all that seems to be in the way of the undertaking of the extension this spring.

The old donation claim of Col. T. R. Cornelius, being a block of five hundred acres of the finest land in the county, is to be divided and sold in small tracts.

The Forest Grove canning company and electric light company put a mortgage on their plants this week to secure the payment of a note of $11,627.77 given to Capt. R. H. Lamson last July.

The city election at Forest Grove last Monday was a hot one. The issue was a lot of electric lights or a few. Three councilmen were selected who favor light, two who oppose and one who sits on the fence.

W. F. Gilkey has Returned.

W. F. Gilkey, of Dayton, returned from an extended visit in the east last week. He has been away from Oregon for over two months and visited all the principal cities of the east, Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington and as far south as Virginia. He spent a week at the World's fair. Monday he was in the city on business and in a conversation about the World's fair, said:

"The magnitude of the thing, the beauty of the grounds and buildings and the splendid exhibit of the American people was beyond words.

The bright, clean, self respecting and intelligent appearance of all the thousands of good natured humanity that crowded the buildings and grounds was remarkable. The display of exhibits was too vast to be studied or even noticed in detail. I gained something of an idea of the greatness of our country and its wonderful resources. I believe whoever attended the fair came home broader in mind and character, with more respect for other nations and love and pride of their own. One must indeed be dull of comprehension whose mind was not broadened, whose patriotism was not strengthed and who was not prepared to be a better man and better citizen by a visit to the World's fair."

Parker and his Partner.

About December 1st, last year, W. N. Parker—who now lies in jail here pending a trial on Thursday next—committed the last of a series of offenses, on which a warrant was issued for his arrest. The charge is for obtaining money under false pretenses from Marion Townsend, the liveryman here. Parker had skipped before service could be had on him, but was immediately located in a Portland lodging house, by Marshal Minto, who immediately put the Portland authorities at work without delay, but they were too late to round him up. Yesterday he was before Judge Edes and asked for the time to be extended for trial. This was granted until the date stated above. Last evening his partner, E. A. Payne, was arrested, charged with defrauding a party in Jefferson out of some money he received for the party for the sale of some potatoes. Payne was put under $500 bonds, in default of which he was placed in jail. He will probably come up Thursday for hearing.—Salem Statesman.

This is the same fellow that fooled the farmers of this section last fall in the fruit business. From all accounts, he is now in shape to receive punishment for his offenses.

A CLEVER BOSTON GIRL.

Even a Chicago Hackman Was Paralyzed by Her Financial Operations.

The Chicago hackman is supposed to be endowed with a full allowance of the smartness peculiar to men in his profession, but a Boston girl is credited with getting the best of him. The hackman himself tells the story, says the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette. His name is Johnson, and his business during the summer has been mainly in the service of the guests in the dormitories of the Chicago university. Johnson has run daily excursions for them through a twenty-five mile drive for one dollar.

Within two days after her arrival Johnson took the Boston young woman out as one of his morning party. She occupied the seat with him and plied him with questions. On the following day when he called for passengers Johnson noticed this Boston girl flying around in a lively way. Soon she came to him and wanted to know how much he would charge to take forty persons up to the center of town and back for an evening reception. He gave his figures, and then she went shopping.

The next day she told Johnson she could get the work done for twenty-eight dollars, and that he might as well take the job at that figure. She preferred his rigs, she said, because they looked nicer than any she had seen elsewhere. Johnson took the job, and on the evening appointed the young woman marshaled out her forty people. They were in evening dress and full of gayety. Suddenly the Boston young woman spoke out: "We may not all get together when we come back and may be very tired. Suppose I collect the fares now and be done with it?"

She did so, and each person paid her one dollar for the evening's transportation. She quickly counted out twenty-eight dollars and gave it to Johnson, and placing twelve dollars in her own purse rode to the evening's reception with a satisfied smile and a most charming affability. Three days later she did the same thing over again. As she put the twelve dollars in her purse Johnson scratched his head and says he muttered: "Well, I'll be d—!"

The next time he proposed a division of the spoils. She eyed him for a minute, saw that he was in earnest, gave him four dollars out of the twelve, and after that they did business on this basis. She got up sightseeing parties inside the fair, theatrical parties, lecture parties, made scores of friends, and at every move seemed to add to her purse. So well did she succeed that she had two months at the fair and went home with one hundred dollars in her pocket.

Johnson says he has traveled about a good bit, his last excursion of importance being a trip to the Paris exposition, but he never saw a person who could "do up" Chicago hackmen as that Boston girl did.

The Poojah Stone.

Trouble was recently threatened between the people of Orissa and the Indian government on account of the "Poojah stone," which had rested for ages over the main entrance to the temple of the Sun. It was carved with symbols of the sun and planet, and thirty years ago fell from its place in the temple to become at once a special object of worship. The governor of Bengal, being interested in it as an archeological treasure, had it removed to the Indian museum, and this raised such resentment among the natives that the stone has been restored to them and has been raised again to its original place in the temple.

WALKING CLUBS FOR GIRLS.

Keeping Up in the Fall the Athletic Practices of Last Summer.

Walking clubs are the popular fad through September and October. One very exclusive club which was formed in St. Louis recently consists of eight members. Athletic girls they are who have been at the seashore and mountains all the summer. They were restless when they reached town for outdoor exercises, so the club was immediately started. It meets once a week on Friday afternoons. The plan is that each week a different walk shall be taken. In describing the walking costumes, the Post-Dispatch says they were very sensible gowns, indeed. One was a brown cheviot made with a full plain skirt, trimmed around the bottom with four rows of black and gilt braid With this was worn a waistcoat of scarlet broadcloth, glistening gilt buttons, and over it a loose three-quarter length jacket. This was elaborately braided and made with revers and epaulettes over the shoulders. At dinner the coat was removed and a little Eton jacket of the cheviot, with scarlet sleeves, substituted. An extremely novel hopsacking gown was also present. It was black, the skirt trimmed with two rows of guipure insertion over a lining in the new blue shade. The baby waist tucked in beneath a belt. It was made with a deep yoke of the insertion, which showed very plainly its silk lining. A jaunty little cape in black, with wide guipure revers, completed the costume.

THE CALLA LILY EDIBLE.

It Tastes and Is to Be Cooked Like the Potato.

A new vegetable is about to be introduced to the people of the United States through the department of agriculture. It is the root of the calla lily, which resembles somewhat in appearance the Irish tuber, with the addition of a few whiskers that have nothing to do with the qualities of the article as an esculent, says the Philadelphia Times.

It is more elongated, and when cut the interior is a trifle more viscid. But a section of it is so potato-like you would not be likely to distinguish any difference. In cooking it first has to be boiled to destroy certain acrid properties, after which it may be fried, roasted, baked or what not, according to taste.

Farmers in Florida have begun to raise these calla roots for market. The plants grow rapidly in the swamps, and so thickly that the yield of a single flooded acre is enormous. They reproduce themselves by the multiplication of their bulbs under ground, so that the grower has simply to dig up the offshoots and leave the parents to propagate anew.

For centuries the Egyptians have cultivated a similar crop during the season of the Nile overflow, and at the present time calla lily bulbs are a common vegetable in Japanese markets. So prolific and palatable are they that their propagation in many parts of the United States, where conditions are favorable, may reasonably be looked forward to as an agricultural industry of the future.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure at Druggists.

Saved Her Life.

MRS. C. J. WOOLDRIDGE, of Wortham, Texas, saved the life of her child by the use of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

"One of my children had Croup. The case was attended by our physician, and was supposed to be well under control. One night I was startled by the child's hard breathing, and on going to it found it strangling. It had nearly ceased to breathe. Realizing that the child's alarming condition had become possible in spite of the medicines given, I reasoned that such remedies would be of no avail. Having part of a bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, I gave the child three doses, at short intervals, and anxiously waited results. From the moment the Pectoral was given, the child's breathing grew easier, and, in a short time, she was sleeping quietly and breathing naturally. The child is alive and well to-day, and I do not hesitate to say that Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved her life."
