Chicago's Roast.

Let Gotham lard her vulgar wealth,
And Boston boast her beans—
St. Louis praise her old fogy ways
And calm, placific scenes;
New shall Chicago, happy hough!
All dainty despite,
And to the sky pelth the cry!
"Hurrah for pants and pies!"

Chicago will construct the logs
Our president shall dine;
Chicago, too, the soup will brew
That he shall feast upon!
So let our chords to raised to pants—
To pants and pies likewise!
Ay, let us sing till earth shall ring,
"Hurrah for pants and pies!"

The Story of two Little Girls.

The following is a conversation written by one of Miss McGinty's scholars. Minnie Hartson, aged four years, which shows that her little mind reasons straighter about of children, as her elders do.

Two little girls were visiting in the village because was Ethel Hartson and Daisy Bryant. They were cousins. Ethel lived in the country and Daisy lived in the city. Ethel was very much discontented with her home and wanted to live in the city, but Daisy was satisfied with her home. As Ethel did not often go to the city, the girls did not know much of each other. They wrote a good many letters to each other. Here is one of them from Daisy.

MY DEAR ETHEL: I received your letter yesterday. I was glad to hear from you and glad that you are well. My health is very poor. I wish you could come and see me. It would be so nice. Next summer I think we will come out and see you. I went to the Christmas tree, I had a nice time. There were pieces spoke and the girls sang. I sang a song alone. Good bye for this time. As ever, your cousin, DAISY BRYANT.

Ethel was always glad to get Daisy's letters and Daisy the same. As Ethel read Daisy's letter she complained a good deal. The next day Ethel answered the letter. This is what she wrote.

MY DEAR DAISY: Your letter was very nice. What a nice time you must have had at the Christmas tree. I did not have any fun at all. Nobody ever has any fun but lives in the country. Oh Daisy I do wish I lived where you do. It is just dreadful living in the country. I am sorry you have not good health; Mine is good. Write soon to your cousin, ETHEL HARTSON.

The next summer Mr. and Mrs. Bryant and Daisy came out to Ethel's home. Daisy thought it was nice on the farm. Daisy was very pretty, but Ethel was tanned and not so pretty as Daisy, and that made Ethel complain more. One day she said to her mamma, I am the homeliest girl that ever lived, and Daisy is the prettiest. "Pretty is as pretty does," said her mamma. By this time Mr. and Mrs. Bryant and Daisy had gone back to the city. The night after they reached home Daisy was taken sick. They sent for Mr. and Mrs. Hartson and Ethel. Daisy was not sick long for she soon went to her far away home. Ethel felt very bad and put a great many flowers on Daisy's grave. The doctor said Daisy's death was caused by the impure air of the city. When Ethel found that out, she returned home a more contented girl, and she resolved to not complain of her surroundings any more.

How Whisky Prevents a Surplus of Geniuses.

Whisky has her enemies, but who of us has ever looked upon it as the greatest preventive? Look at the man whose nose is painted and face blotched from his frequent "rushing the growler," and there is always a fellow at your elbow ready to swear that, if it had not been for whisky he would have been the most brilliant man of the age; so you see from this great number of brilliants on hand, there would not be enough common sense men left to carry on the every day affairs of life. Whisky is a great preventive; let's take suthin'.

A Terrible Misfortune.

It is a calamity of the direst kind to feel that one's physical energies are failing in the prime of life—to feel more nervous, more dispirited, weaker every day. You think's the unhappy lot of thousands who surround us. A source of renewed strength which science approves, in behalf of which multitudes of the debilitated have and are every day testifying, and which, in countless instances, has built up constitutions, sapped by sickness and infirmity and long unbalanced by other means, surely commends itself to all who need a tonic. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is such a medicine—pure, botanic, nothing to the nerves, promotive of digestion and a fertilizer of the blood. Dyspepsia and nervousness—the first a cause, the second a consequence of lack of stamina—depart when a course of the Bitters is tried. All forms of malarial disease, rheumatism, kidney and bladder troubles, constipation and biliousness are annihilated by this standard family medicine.

"Sir," said the missionary to the departing legislator, "I wish you would do all in your power to reclaim the poor red man of the west." "I will," said the lawmaker, heartily; "I'll begin with their reservations first."

Takeitive Tommy—Rich aunt—"Why do you being me this grass, Tommy?" "Because I want you to bite it." "Why do you want me to bite it?" "Because I heard pa say that when you bite the grass we will get $10,000."

A Detroit couple settled down to eat their dinner, and when they returned to the kitchen discovered that some thief had got away with the cook stove. It was found later at a junk-shop a mile away with the still burning.

Two wild camels, which ran away like deer from mankind, are seen occasionally on the drive, near Gatewood, A. T. They are the last remnant of the band imported by the government and used on the desert for pack-animals some years ago.

It is remarked that all the money that the world possesses to-day would only purchase one-third of its railways, more the railways in the world would be worth the money. Gold and silver are the least valuable of the long-necessary metals of the world, and one-third of the world's supply of gold is locked up in jewelry.

Postmaster-General Wanamaker has purchased from the Pennsylvanian estate the elegant residence which has until recently been the house of Secretary Whitney at Washington. The price paid for the house and part of the furniture is understood to be $80,000.

Captain Ben Richardson of Harlem, N.-Y., owner of a coach once belonging to George Washington, is dead. He was a 49er. Every Fourth of July and on Washington's birthday Captain Richardson would drive about the streets of Harlem in the ancient vehicle.

Some of our North American neighbors, especially Brazil and the Argentine Republic, have been holding out unusual inducements to emigrants from Europe of late, and with such success that they have managed to divert to their shores a good part of the usual immigration that would otherwise have come to this country.

Ex-Governor Holcomb, director of Vermont, now secretary of war, is described as "a tall, lank, broad-shouldered man, with shaggy, iron gray locks, a florid face and eight inch goatee. It would require but a spike-tail coat and hand-loom trousers made up of the stars and stripes to convert him into a typical Uncle Sam."

Santa Ana "demonstrated" last week over the passage by the legislature of the bill forming the county of Orange out of Los Angeles county. The new county includes an area of over a thousand square miles, a population of over seventeen hundred, and an assessed valuation greater than many of the older counties in the state.

Dominie John Berdan is a well known figure in northern New Jersey, and has preached at the Tyne Reformed church in Passaic for over fifty years without missing a Sunday. He is ninety-two years old, but his memory is so remarkable, it is said, that he can state the text from which he preached on any given Sunday during his long pastorate.

A German newspaper, published in Palestine, states that the city of Jerusalem is growing in size and population at a remarkable rate. New buildings are rising daily; churches, gardens and lattice-gates of various kinds are filling up the formerly desolate neighborhood to the distance of half an hour's walk beyond the old limits of the city. The Jews are to the front as builders.

Who weeps with you when you are sad, who laughs with you when you are glad, and joins with you when you are mad? The editor! Who is always kind, ever wise, and never—hardly ever—lies, and when he does, apologizes? The editor! Who has a heart and modest cheek, possessed with spirit true and meek, and lives on promises from week to week? The editor! Who reads a paper not his own, and lets the printer guess a issue, while with cash is of high issue? The deadbeat!—Credit lost.

Don't be a Champ.

Don't be a champ. Don't want the earth. Don't think it was built for you alone and other people put on it to contribute to your comfort. Don't coddle yourself into the belief that you are the lookout in this world is for No. 1. Strange as it may seem to you, there are millions of men beside yourself, and they have as much right to live as you. Don't sit and talk to yourself awhile and see if you don't come pretty near being a champ. Don't imagine that a few extra dollars makes you any man's superior. Don't try to make everyone believe that you are the best man living. Be a man. Don't be a pig. Don't be a champ.

A Coming Political Boss.

A man who wanted to learn what profession he would have his son enter, put him in a room with a Bible, an apple and a dollar bill. If he found him when he returned coming for the Bible, he would make a clergyman of him; if eating the apple, a farmer, and if interested in the dollar bill, a banker.

When he returned he found the boy sitting at the Bible, with the apple disposed of, and the dollar bill in the Alaska dominion. He made a politician of him.

Early Balls in California.

In 1847, only forty-two years ago, there was no such thing as a mail in California. Letters came dribbling in from time to time from China, Valparaiso, Oahu and the Sandwich Islands. The ship-mail arrived of the entry, afterwards famous in history and romance, Mark L. Ward, Edward Aubery and Benjamin Ward, bearing letters once a year by the mail of the Lexington, Capt. Hall, or the Brooklyn, Capt. Adams, which ever happened to be in port. Thirty years ago, or in 1858, when Capt. Hall was in Honolulu, he was called on to receive letters from our consul, Mr. Wyllie, for California, which had arrived in 1847, 1846 and 1845. Governor Mason, Governor Kearny, Commodore Stockton, Lieutenant Bartlett, Captain Folsom, at Yerba Buena (the San Francisco) established a fortnightly mail from San Francisco to San Diego, a distance of 500 miles. Captain Folsom divided the route into four portions, San Francisco to Monterey, Monterey to "Dutch," (Nepena), Santa Inez to Los Angeles and to San Diego. This was the first regular mail route ever established on the Pacific Coast. General Kearny in Boy of Mason. First Dragoons, Lieutenant Emory, Major Hardcastle, Lieutenant Bartlett, Lieutenant Ord, Lieutenant Hamilton, Lieutenant Tyler
